NOTRE DAME WILL PLAY FINAL CAGE GAME WITH DEPAUW

Irish Basket Tossers Out to Win Victory in Last Contest Friday Night.

Only five days remain before the last home game on the basketball schedule will be played by Notre Dame. De Pauw will furnish the opposition, and the Irish basket ball players will work like trojans to finish the season with a success. The Tigers are rated among the best teams in the state, and defeated the Irish by a large score in the early part of the season, but Notre Dame has improved tremendously since that time. The team that was able to hold Washburn to a five-point victory should be able to make De Pauw travel at a great rate to prevent a defeat. With the students behind them on their home floor, the Irish are always hard to beat, and Friday night they will be harder to beat than ever. For it has become their ambition to duplicate the feat of last winter's quintet and close the home season with a win over a powerful opponent.

Defeat Washburn.

Last year Washburn was defeated on the last home date of the schedule, despite the fact that the Little Giants were practically undisputed basketball champions of the middle west.

De Pauw has been playing whirlwind ball this winter, having defeated on various occasions, teams like Purdue, Indiana and other first class conference fives. They will come to Notre Dame with an unbeaten record, and under ordinary conditions should defeat the Irish easily. But conditions Friday will not be ordinary. The student body is preparing to stage the greatest demonstration ever witnessed at a basketball game. They are ready to outdo the cheering at the Washburn game, and it was the cheering at that game that kept the Irish in the running. The basketball players themselves can be counted upon to fight with everything that is in them, and consequently the Tigers can not afford to expect anything easy in that game.

LANDIS TO STUDY TRAINING SYSTEM

Will Make Circuit of Spring Camps for First Hand Information.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Judge K. M. Landis, who Saturday announced his resignation from the federal bench, Sunday told of his plans to devote more time to the American Legion, besides his duties as the supreme dictator of organized baseball. "The American Legion is the greatest insurance policy this nation has," he said. "It is our standing guarantee of peace and liberty. I am deeply devoted to the Legion and shall help in whatever way I can."

Judge Landis said that one of the first things he will do when he leaves the bench will be to make a swing around the baseball training camps in the south. "I'm a rookie at this game, myself," he said. "I want to study the training systems. There has been some complaint that promising rookies have not been given a fair show. Some of them claim that they have 'arrived,' but are not given an opportunity to prove it. Some of them, on the other hand, think that they have 'arrived' when they are not ripe. I want to have a look at this spring training system and study it."

HIGH SCHOOL BASKET MEN TO PLAY TONIGHT

Something in the way of a feat will be attempted by Coach Elmer Burnham's high school basketball five tonight when it will endeavor to win its third game in four days.

Benton Harbor high will oppose the Benders on the Y. M. C. A. floor at 7 o'clock, and Coach Burnham expects his proteges to triumph, although they will have a very formidable enemy.

The full strength of the local group, including Edmar and Edwards at forwards; Nytkos at center and Scheer and Voodish at guard, will take the floor.

BILLY EVANS Says—

Evidently there are some colleges who place scholarship ahead of proficiency in athletics. Likewise there are some athletes who place loyalty before filthy lucre.

I am in receipt of the following very interesting letter from one who has evidently taken much interest in the present tangle that a number of the leading colleges find themselves in. Here is the letter which is written in behalf of Haverford college.

"While we are hearing so much about scandal in college and university athletics, it is refreshing to find a conspicuous example of the high degree of purity. I have reference to Haverford.

"Haverford is a small Quaker college near Philadelphia. For years its rigid adherence to the amateur regulations held the institution to the graduate coach system. Finally a paid coach was approved.

"Over-zealous alumni who desired to boost the caliber of the football team were immediately frowned into silent disgrace.

"Years ago there was a split in branches because known as the Orthodox and the Hixite Quakers.

"Haverford was established by the conservative Orthodox element, while the Hixites built up the rival institution, Swarthmore.

"It was only natural that these two schools should be the bitterest of athletic rivals.

"Swarthmore grew in size and prominence. Haverford was content to remain small enough that each student could have the personal contact with the professors.

"College spirit was made the big thing at Haverford. Fraternities were practically eliminated by faculty ruling because they detracted from the oneness of college spirit.

"Swarthmore usually won the big football game because it obtained some grid stars of national prominence. They point to ties with and victories over Pennsylvania with much pride.

"After repeated defeats, Haverford finally cancelled the Swarthmore booking. They could not beat the larger institution without resorting to unsportsmanlike tactics. This they would not do.

"Several years later relations were resumed, but Swarthmore usually wins by heavy scores.

"Haverford has gone into games with these rivals outweighing 20 pounds to the man and knowing that defeat was certain. This happened year after year, but 'college spirit' strengthened by a determined faculty, gave the student body honor through those defeats.

"Amateur rules are in effect at Haverford. Every student reflects the sternly conscientious attitude of the faculty and takes greater pride in being from a college of unquestioned integrity than he could find in any number of athletic victories."

Newton C. Gilliam, an attorney from Kansas City, Mo., has suggested to Judge Landis, baseball commissioner, that the batsman be given the right to steal first base if he elects to do so.

Gilliam contends that such a right would tend to speed up the game. Would add an additional element of uncertainty that is now lacking, and would tend to make the players keep their heads up.

The idea is not a new one. Three or four years ago Gilliam wrote me a letter explaining his suggestion, and asking me to use it as the basis for one of my baseball stories. I did so, and in detail offered reasons why such a change would not be advisable.

I agree with Gilliam that the fans like and want more base running. That feature of the game has suffered a great deal in the last three or four years, due largely to the increased hitting that has crept into the sport.

However, I cannot agree with Gilliam that it would be advisable to increase base running through the medium of permitting the batter to steal first base.

I fear that such a change would tend to upset the basic principles of the game. The infielders would surely be topsy-turvy, realizing that at any time during the progress of some play in the base lines, the batter might dash madly for first base.

It would indeed be difficult to enact any legislation that would satisfactorily cover plays that would give the batsman the right to steal first.

Holds Featherweight Title Ten Years

Winning a championship title in any branch of sport is one thing, holding it is another.

On February 22, 1912, Johnny Kilbane won the featherweight title from Abe Attell at Vernon, California.

Kilbane has held the title ever since, and on the twenty-second of this month will celebrate the tenth anniversary of lifting the crown. No other fighter under the Marquis of Queensbury rules can boast of such a record.

A year after winning the title from Abe Attell, Kilbane defended it against Johnny Dundee. The bout went the limit, 20 rounds, and was declared a draw by Referee Charley Ezyon.

CURVE BALL HARD STRAIN ON HURLER

Walter Johnson Tells Why Constant Use of Curve Shortens Ones Career.

BY WALTER JOHNSON. What type of delivery places the greatest strain on the pitcher's arm?

The curve ball is the toughest ball for the pitcher. It is unquestionably the hardest of all types, unless it is the spitball.

"I never used the spitball to any great extent. One year, when every pitcher was using it, I learned how to throw it. I did so simply to keep up with the times, rather than the thought of using it.

Occasionally in a pinch with two strikes on the batter, I would throw him a spitball. His great surprise, more than any deceptive trick I got on the ball, made it rather effective.

One season I threw perhaps 50 spitballs all year, so I am not competent to speak on just what effect its constant use has on the arm. However, the fact that most spitball pitchers have had a shorter career, makes it seem that it is a hard delivery on the arm.

Since the spitball is now passe, only a very few pitchers being permitted to use it, a comparison between the two is of no particular moment.

"I do know that the curve is very trying on the arm from my own experience. In the days when I used a fast ball almost entirely, I would finish a game almost as fresh as when I started.

Later, in games in which I used a curve frequently, my arm would feel as if it was dead, and I would be as tired as some fellow who had been using a pick and shovel all day.

A catcher can be of great assistance to a pitcher in his selection of a curve frequently. I can only explain, as it was dead, and I would be as tired as some fellow who had been using a pick and shovel all day.

"Why use a curve, Walter, when they can't see your fast one?"

Tomorrow Johnson tells what it means to the pitcher who is breaking a record.

GRID GAME IS IN NEED OF CHANGES

Football Coaches Believe a Slight Change in the Rules Would Improve Game.

BY BILLY EVANS. Will the rules committee do any tinkering with the football code when they meet in New York to consider suggestions?

Unquestionably there are certain changes that could be made to better the game. None of them is of a radical nature, yet a slight change here and there might help.

Last year several college games were lost because the player carrying the ball failed to retain possession of it after crossing the goal line.

Usually when a player so offends a member of the opposing team falls on the ball, converting a touchdown into nothing more than a mere touchback.

A great many of the leading football coaches and officials seem to think that some special provision should be made in the rules for fumbled balls after the player carrying it had crossed the goal line.

There is a rule in effect that the ball shall be declared dead when the ball or any part of the player's person is out of bounds, which means over the side lines.

If the player carrying the ball fumbles it after he steps out of bounds and the ball is recovered by the opposition, the ball reverts to the original holder.

Should Touchdown Count? Fumbling after having crossed the side lines means nothing, since play automatically stops the moment the player is forced out of bounds.

Just how to cover such a contingency is up to the officials. Some of the coaches believe the touchdown should count, if the ball is fumbled after the player has crossed the goal line, provided the player is free when he crosses the line.

The coaches believe some distinction should be made if a player is tackled before crossing the line, and then fumbles as he crosses the line, with the tackler holding on. In such a case they feel the ball should be in play, since the tackle was primarily the cause of the fumble.

The elimination of the goal after touchdown is generally favored. There is no question but that some day this feature of play will be stricken out.

Restriction on Pass. Some restriction on the forward pass is also suggested. The opinion prevails that the forward pass is being overdone. A losing team, late in the game, goes to the forward pass almost entirely in hope of getting away with a long toss for a touchdown.

It has been suggested that after the first incomplete forward pass, that for every other pass tried in the remaining three downs when the pass is incomplete, the ball shall be taken back to the place where the hurler started the play.

There has been much comment on the shift plays used by a number of teams. The contention has been raised that many teams are in violation before the ball is passed, thereby making the play illegal.

There is really no way to cover this play in the code, as it resolves itself purely into a matter of judgment on the part of the officials.

SORIN HALL WINS FROM CARROLLITES

Combination of Stuhldreher, Foley-Falvey Too Much For Losing Team.

In the greatest game of basketball that has been played in the interhall league so far this season, Sorin Hall nosed out the fast going Carrollites 17 to 15 yesterday morning in the gymnasium.

Every college ball player who is worth while, and who needs the money, wants to play during the summer. A great many of them do it, taking precautions to protect their amateur standing by being paid for other work, which merely covers up the baseball compensation.

Permit summer ball. Place the athletes on their honor during the college season. Deal harshly with those who then offend and professionalism will take the count.

MICHIGAN PLANS TO WIN BASEBALL TITLE. ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 19.—The largest number of baseball candidates that ever turned out for Michigan has reported to Coach Ray Fisher and with last year's pitching staff intact the mentor claims to see a prospect that another western conference championship will be added to the Wolverines string this season. Sixty-five men were out for practice yesterday.

JAPAN VISE DENIED. SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—The Japanese consulate here Friday announced that instructions had been received from Tokyo to refuse a visa to the passport of Mrs. Margaret Sanger, head of the birth control league, who is in San Francisco preparing to start on a tour of the far east. Last of the visa will prevent her landing in Japan, it was said.

Only two games will be played by the two St. Louis clubs this spring instead of the usual seven-game series. Last of the visa will prevent her landing in Japan, it was said.

Declares Fast Ball Is Pitcher's Best Asset

BY WALTER JOHNSON. WHAT IS the best type ball for a pitcher to use?

If a pitcher has a good fast ball, that is always his one best bet. I don't mean just an ordinary fast ball, but one with a lot of 'swift' on it, as Nick Altrock would say.

When I came to the American League I scarcely knew there was anything other than a fast ball in a pitcher's repertoire.

For three years I used a fast ball entirely to fool the great hitters of the American League. I really believe I enjoyed my great success during those three years.

In the first three years, I could just about throw my fast one by the batsman, as we put it in baseball. No pitcher could retain forever the terrific speed I had when I came to the American League. As I grew older, my fast ball began to realize that I was slowing up a bit.

I had been working on a curve ball in the meantime, and when it became evident to me that I was losing a bit of my speed, I began to resort to the curve to cross the batters up.

I met with almost as much success with my curve as my fast one. However, I will always believe that I made a mistake in using too many curve balls after once acquiring a good 'hook.'

When I switched to a curve ball pitcher, from my fast ball pitcher exclusively, I still had perhaps more speed than any other pitcher in the American League. I should have continued the use of the fast ball, with the curve as a constant threat.

I am sure I would have been a better pitcher had I done so.

"Rip" Collins, who was secured by Boston from New York, isn't making any fuss because he has been let out by a club that appears to have a fine chance to repeat in the American League. "Any place is home to me just so long as I get my money and a chance to pitch. I didn't get much of the latter while with New York," says "Red."

George Mogridge, who did such good work for Washington last year, is of the opinion that the addition of Rodger Peckinpaugh gives the Nationals enough strength to be a contender all the way. George, who pitches with his head more than his arm, says the success of the club is now largely up to the pitching staff.

Any club in either of the major leagues would welcome a good left-hander. Strangely enough Cleveland and New York, the two contenders last year, and picked to show well this year, are lacking a good, steady southpaw. Mails and Harper are too erratic to get much consideration.

Over half of the Philadelphia Athletics, according to rumor, have agreed to hold out because of the low salaries offered them. All Connie Mack has to say is that they should take their case to Landis if not satisfied.

COLLEGES WINDING UP NET SCHEDULES

Second Contest Between Indiana and Purdue Big Event on Week's Card.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 19.—The Indiana Collegiate basketball record for 1922 will soon be completed. Games during the coming week will bring the season almost to a close. The season will end during the first week of March, with the exception of a few scattered games. While the college men are concluding the high school boys will begin their final training for the state tournament.

The big event of this week will be the second game between Purdue and Indiana, this one to be played at Lafayette, Purdue won the first at Bloomington, Feb. 15, and now seems to be favored to take another victory.

Games of the week include the following college entries: Monday, Feb. 20, Indiana and Michigan at Ann Arbor; Butler and Franklin at Franklin.

Tuesday, Feb. 21, Wilmington and De Pauw at Greencastle. Wednesday, Feb. 22, Wilmington and Washburn at Crawfordsville; Butler and Earlham at Richmond.

Friday, Feb. 24, De Pauw and Notre Dame at South Bend; Oakland City college and Rose Poly at Terre Haute; Eastern Illinois State Normal and Indiana Dental at Indianapolis; State Normal and Indiana State Normal at Oakland City college; and Indiana Law School at Indianapolis.

The Washburn-Butler game here on Saturday night is expected to attract a large crowd because of the traditional rivalry between the schools and the large number of alumni of the two institutions in this city.

"Pop" Young is the dark horse in the Detroit team's chances to make a good showing. The veteran second sacker, once noted for his fine fielding, went all to pieces last year. With his Rose Poly in Terre Haute, he of the Tigers. There is a chance that he may regain old-time form, but the mental hazard that constantly bothered him last year may still be with him.

New comes the rumor that Joe Dugan may go to the Detroit club via a trade which will involve Pitcher Ehmke. Detroit needs infielders while Boston lacks good pitchers. However, it is hard to see where Dugan would strengthen Detroit. With his Rose Poly in Terre Haute and a second baseman, while Dugan is a third sacker. He can't play either of the two positions at which Detroit is weak.
