

NRA VIOLATORS TO FEEL STING OF PUNISHMENT

Recovery Director Calls on Washington to Give Specific Instructions.

Francis Wells, Indiana representative of the United States department of commerce, today requested Washington to send more specific instructions for handling of violators of the NRA.

Wells said his move was prompted by a desire to show a flagrant violator of the NRA program that the recovery act "really had teeth." He will turn the instructions from Washington over to the newly appointed mediation board.

Widespread violation of NRA codes by restaurants is causing concern among state and local recovery leaders, Wells announced today.

Many Violate Agreement

Reports reaching recovery headquarters here indicated that only about 10 per cent of the restaurants are complying with their signed agreements, according to Wells.

Little heed apparently was paid to a warning issued by Wells several weeks ago that restaurants either must comply with the terms of the recovery program or remove the blue eagle insignia.

Seven men have been selected to sit as a board of recommendation on complaints that can not be handled by persuasive or educational methods. M. Overley, "referee" of the local bureau of compliance and complaints, will act as chairman of the mediation board.

Other members are Harry O. Chamberlin, former judge of Marion circuit court; Robert Fox, of the Central Labor Union; Paul Q. Richter, president of the Bussell M. Seeds Company; Curtis M. Rotger, former president of the Indiana Bell Telephone Company; George S. Olive, certified public accountant; Frank J. Burke, assistant to Wells, will be the seventh man.

Will Punish Violators

In cases where firms refuse to comply with the NRA program and refuse to surrender the blue eagle insignia when their violations have been explained to them, the board will recommend publicly that the insignia be removed by the federal government.

"The committee appointed today simply is a fact-finding body and, in no sense a court," said Overley. "It will serve in an advisory capacity on policy with reference to handling of complaints and will hear evidence in connection with complaints that can not be adjusted by explanation."

All complaints will be adjusted secretly, except those in which the persons complained against deliberately refuse to co-operate when informed of their violations.

Many Are Discarded

In speaking of possible removal of blue eagles from firms which refuse to live up to the NRA program after a clear explanation of the recovery act has been made to them, Overley said:

"I do not believe removal of the blue eagle will be necessary in one out of 100 cases. In fact, the situation has been much exaggerated. There were, in all, about 500 complaints on file. Of these, 263 were anonymous or did not give any date as to violations, but merely wished to have certain companies investigated. They have been discarded."

Wells frequently has said that he had received "about 1,000 complaints." He stated Friday that he considered "about 100" of them serious enough to engage the attention of a mediation board.

More than 300 complaints have been adjusted by explanations due to misunderstandings, according to Wells.

Personnel Is Completed

Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum Company, wired The Indianapolis Times from Bartlesville, Okla., today that his company had completed addition of 3,000 employees to its personnel in accordance with NRA provisions.

Stating that 3,000 men and an annual payroll of $3,000,000 had been affected, Phillips said he had been deluged with job applications. He made the announcement that the firm's additional employment program had been completed "to save hundreds from possible disappointment."

Indianapolis office of the oil company is at 644 East Maple road.

Charles R. Michael of Indianapolis, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, asked all members of the organization to co-operate to the fullest extent "with the NRA in letters mailed today to all posts in the state."

WORRIES OVER LOSS OF JOB, TAKES LIFE

Former Tech High Cafeteria Worker Commits Suicide.

Mrs. Edna Reed, 48, of 3601 East North street, committed suicide on Friday at her home by inhaling gas. Despondency over loss of a position she had held in the cafeteria of Technical high school is believed to have prompted the suicide.

Thomas Reed, the husband, found all doors and windows of the house locked when he returned from work. He removed a screen from a window to effect entrance and found Mrs. Reed unconscious on the kitchen floor. All jets of a gas stove were open.

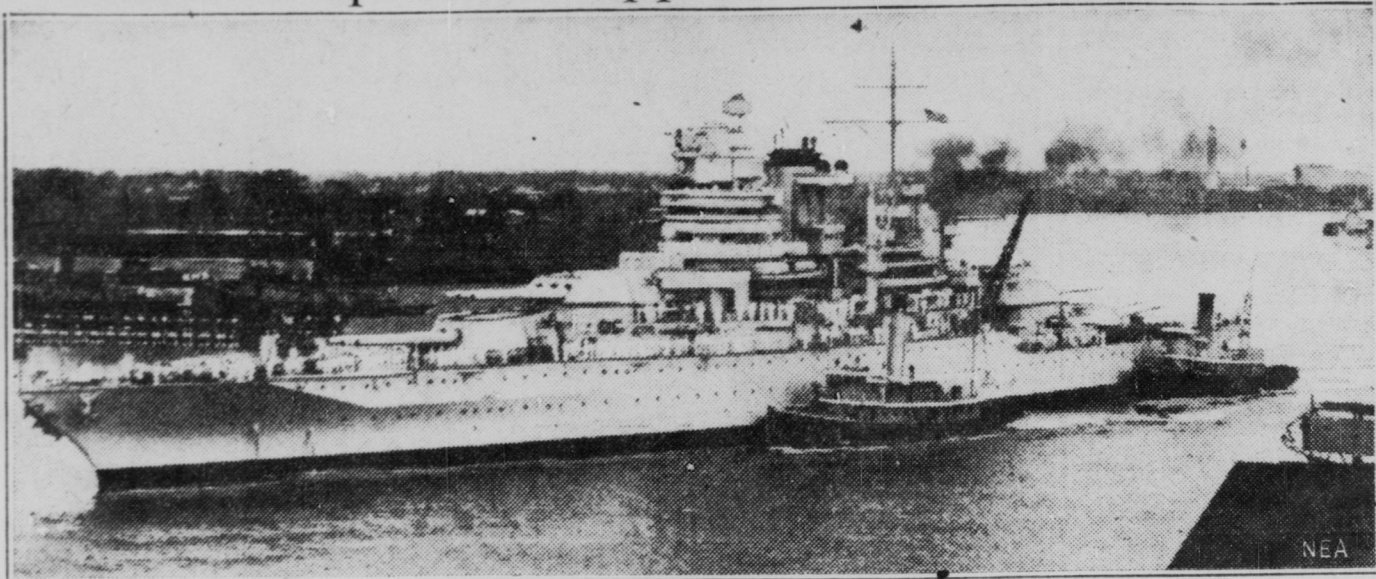

Police and a doctor called by the husband failed in efforts to revive Mrs. Reed.

Sunday Services in City Churches

The Rev. Dr. E. G. Homrighausen, pastor of the Carrollton Avenue Reformed church, will speak on "The Belfast Presbyterian Council" at the 10:45 worship hour Sunday at the church, East Forty-fourth street and Carrollton avenue.

Dr. Homrighausen was a delegate to this world convention held in Belfast, Ireland, last June, which embraces the Presbyterian and Reformed churches throughout the world, including nearly forty millions of Christians.

He also served on the business committee of the conference and was honored by being appointed corresponding secretary for the western section.

He was the youngest delegate in attendance. Church representatives were present from the United States, Canada and British Isles, as well as from every country on the continent and from the Orient.

The Presbyterian and Reformed churches originated from the same source, and while the former is named after its organization and arose in Britain, particularly Scotland, out of the conflict over church government, the latter arose in Switzerland, France and Germany out of the differences over church doctrine.

Both denominations are Reformed in faith and yet both are Presbyterian in government. Their only distinction is the matter of historical origins and social heritages.

The World Council meets every four years. The 1929 gathering was held in Boston and the delegates will meet four years hence in Montreal as guests of the United Church of Canada and the continuing Presbyterian body of that country.

Sunday morning Dr. Homrighausen will give a descriptive account of the Belfast assembly, its personnel and its speeches and seek to interpret this great treaty of Protestantism and its unique heritage and message.

LITTLE FLOWER ANNOUNCES NOVENA

Announcement is made by the Rev. Charles Duffey, pastor of the Church of Little Flower, that the annual Novena in honor of St. Therese of Lisieux will be held this year for nine days, beginning Monday, Sept. 25, and closing Oct. 3.

This Novena, or nine days of prayer and devotion, has been observed annually ever since the Little Flower church was dedicated seven years ago.

The patron of this church and the object of this annual Novena is St. Therese, a young Carmelite nun who lived and died in Lisieux, France. She lived but twenty-four years, but during that time practiced every virtue in an heroic degree.

The sanctity of her life was attested by miracles after her death. The Novena held at the Little Flower church in devotion to St. Therese is attended annually by hundreds of people, both Catholic and non-Catholic.
