ARMY CORRESPONDENCE. The following extract from a letter of Capt. James Saunders to his brother in this city, gives his explanation of the difficulty between him and one of his men, resulting in the death of the latter.

DEAR BROTHER:—Since I last wrote you, we have again moved some thirty-five miles towards the "sunny South," and so far as the climate is concerned, I have not as yet found it much different from Indiana.

On the morning of the 28th ult., orders were received to march to the place of this place. My company there was struck, and after loading company wagon, roll was called, and my late First Sergeant (James Devine), and two others were found missing.

Your affectionate brother, JAMES D. SAUNDERS. New Use for Cotton. Cotton has been used for a great variety of the most contrary purposes, for clothing, for gunpowder, for fortifications, for medicine,
