SAPOLIO

AT THE CAPITAL
Points Political and Otherwise From Hoosier's seat.

Indianapolis, Sept. 11.—James P. Goodrich of Winchester, chairman of the Republican state committee and one of the most clever men in the world, was here yesterday. It is understood that he is displaying the qualities of a harmonizer early in his official career, and that he is trying to reduce the friction in the McCulloch-Cromer fight in the Eighth district to a minimum by applying his special make of harmony oil. He had a long conference with Vice Chairman Keating of the state committee when, it is said, this subject was discussed. The free and easy manner in which Mr. McCulloch is flourishing his battle ax, worrying the Republican leaders. He refuses to say who his candidate for congress in the Eighth district will be, but it is understood he has one. His very reticence is considered ominous, especially when coupled with the report that he is now the actual owner of two newspapers in addition to his organ at Muncie. There is a general feeling in the air that he intends to "raise Cain," and this is disquieting political circles not a little.

The train bearing Indianans to Buffalo to participate in the celebration of Indiana Day at the Pan-American exposition will pull out of the Union depot in this city Friday at 6:30 p. m. Two of the coaches will be occupied by the Terre Haute and Monticello companies of the national guard. A private car will contain Governor and Mrs. Durbin and son Fletcher, James Whitcomb Riley and Colonel Charles E. Wilson, the governor's secretary. Niagara hotel will be Indiana headquarters at Buffalo, and the four companies of the national guard will escort the visitors from the hotel to the exposition grounds via Delaware avenue, one of the finest streets in the world. At 10 o'clock Saturday morning the director general of the exposition will deliver a welcome. Governor Durbin will respond. Poet Riley will recite "Old Glory," and Senator Fairbanks will deliver the address of the day. The party will return to Indianapolis Monday morning. The governor's staff will be well represented. The congressmen have all been invited to attend, and Congressmen Holliday, Hemenway, Cromer, Watson, Miers, Landis and Crumpacker have accepted. Steele and Zenor have not been heard from. Lieutenant Governor Gilbert will represent the legislative branch, L. J. Munks the supreme court, D. W. Constock the appellate court, and Attorney General Taylor the state officials. Mrs. Fairbanks, wife of Senator Fairbanks, left last night for Buffalo.

The latest gossip in state political circles is that State Senator Fremont Goodwine of Williamsport will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in 1904. He is a banker and farmer and one of the largest land owners in the state. The people of Indiana have shown a liking for men of bucolic pursuits in selecting their governors, and Senator Goodwine's friends say he would be a worthy successor of Governor Matthews and Governor Mount.

W. A. Lower, the genial assistant superintendent of public instruction, was absent from his desk today, and it leaked out that he has gone to Decatur to marry Miss Nora Peterson, a charming young lady of that town.

Something in a Name.
Peoria, Ills., Sept. 11.—William Nieman, an insane farmer, who had been under a delusion that the people were trying to lynch him for the murder of President McKinley, died raving like a maniac in the county jail. He was picked up on the street Saturday fleeing from an imaginary mob. His condition is said to have been due to drink.

Grief Unbalanced Him.
Erie, Pa., Sept. 11.—Grief over the shooting of President McKinley and subsequent worry over his condition and prospects of recovery were the causes that led to Orlando D. Vancamp, one of Erie county's most prominent men, to kill himself. He blew off his head with a shotgun.

He Worked the Guests.
Huntington, Ind., Sept. 11.—Paul Bartley, a well dressed stranger, registered from Pittsburg, Pa., has been committed to the Indianapolis reformatory under the indeterminate act for stealing clothing from guests at a hotel and ransacking their trunks.

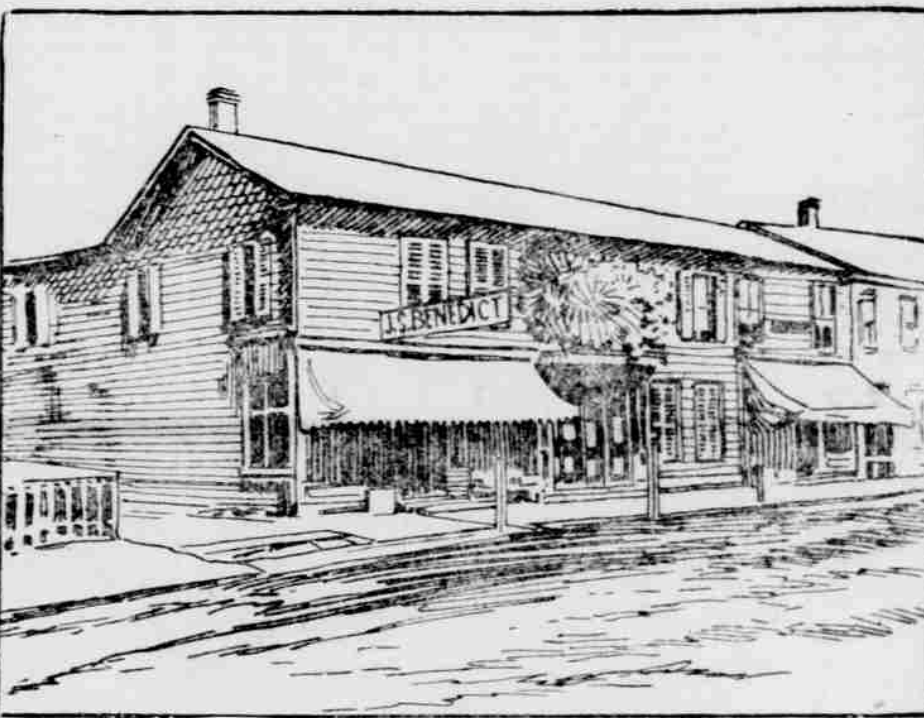

The Pope Is Aroused.
Rome, Sept. 11.—The pope has been so impressed by the attack upon President McKinley that he intends to take the initiative in joint action by the Christian powers against anarchism. He is writing an important encyclical on the subject, which will be published next month.

Must Show Them.
Elkhart, Ind., Sept. 11.—The county commissioners hereafter will grant no more electric railway franchises unless a certified check of $1,000 accompanies the proposition as a guarantee of good faith.

Carried on Engine's Pilot.
Chicago, Sept. 11.—Seven persons riding in a wagon were struck at a crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Sixty-third and Loomis streets. Two girls who were in the wagon were carried for a block on the pilot of the engine and escaped apparently unharmed, but terribly frightened. All the others were injured.

MRS. M'KINLEY.

M'KINLEY'S BIRTHPLACE. THE HOME PIAZZA.

EASILY CONVERTED INTO AN OUT-DOOR SITTING ROOM.

Rugs or Matting For the Floor—Attractive Pieces of Furniture—Little Touches That Lead Spice to Home Living.

The woman with a home of her own, built on modern plans, no longer is obliged to endure the discomforts of hotel life in order to enjoy the summer months, for the home piazza suggests additional relaxation. With screens drawn, there may be privacy on the main deck of the home craft. In the evening there are the same front seats at the Moon as there are for sojourners at crowded hotels. In the morning there is the privilege of sitting behind drawn screens in negligee attire, and in the afternoon there is an opportunity to entertain friends with a cup of tea or an ice. The piazza is really only another room, and if it extends around the house there is always a place screened from the rays of the sun.

The cheap cotton Japanese rugs, even those that have done first service within doors, are appropriate for a floor covering. Indeed, a strip of matting is preferred by some women to the cotton rugs. The latter match well the light oak rockers known as piazza chairs and need not be taken in at night, for even if a shower gives them a good wetting there is no harm done. A couch of cane is less expensive than a rattan couch and is almost as pretty. Over this rug may be thrown and pillows piled up at the back.

A kitchen table, the legs of which have been shortened and over the top of which a denim table cover has been thrown, is convenient for books and magazines. The Japanese screens or shades that hang at the front and sides of piazzas are inexpensive, easily lowered and raised and by many preferred to the striped awning.

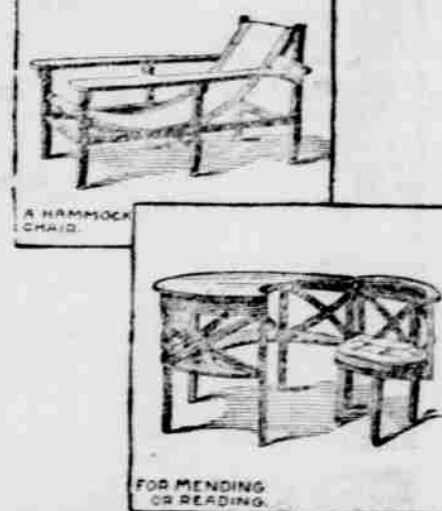

A hammock, which is the usual feature of piazza comfort, is often more pleasing to look at than to lie in and for that reason is not so popular as it once was. If there is a secluded corner in which to suspend it, all well and good, but it no longer monopolizes space that can be more satisfactorily filled. The large willow steamer chair, which is really a couch, is far more comfortable. It may be filled with pillows at the reclining back or not.

It is a comfortable summer chair and far ahead of a hammock. For the hammock the pillows should be linen covered or gingham covered, so that the slips can be washed every week or two, for they are bound to catch the dust.

A very attractive piece consists of a cross between a steamer chair and a hammock. The canvas is swung in an enormous wooden framework, and when the hammock chair is filled with pillows it is to be recommended for a siesta in a shady, secluded corner of the piazza.

The woman who knows how best to enjoy the summer at home has dessert served out on the piazza after dinner. The little tables are spread with traycloths, and the coffee and fruit and an ice are waiting there when the family adjourns from the dinner table. Then, also, the gentlemen can enjoy their after-dinner cigars. Such little touches as these do so much to lend spice to and to dispel monotony from home living.

The piazza party is now a feature of summer entertaining and takes the place of the lawn party in a measure. Guests meet on the piazza of the hostess and without entering the house at all on warm summer afternoons partake of refreshments, ambleside and while away a few delightful, informal hours.—New Idea Woman's Magazine.

The Kongo is one of the widest waterways on the globe, if not the finest. In some parts it is so wide that vessels may pass one another and yet be out of sight.
