

neutrality of existing small States, which are already so difficult to protect, would only make them capable of many dangerous complications. I do not think it would be worth while to make more neutral States, with their new duties and dangers.

Secondly, we might annex Alsace and Lorraine, and hold them as conquered territory, but I am sure this would not be looked on favorably by a majority of my German fellow countrymen. It is a great temptation to go forward to meet King William of Prussia.

The death of McMahon is contradicted. Bonnet quit Paris, last night, from private sources.

PARIS, September 6.—Bazaine still maintains his position, notwithstanding the strength of the army guarding and preventing his escape from the fortress.

The total force now under arms in France, including the Garde National and the Garde Mobile, is 700,000.

It is stated that Count Palikao and M. Henri Cheverus, late Ministers of the Interior, are in Belgium, having fled during the crisis preceding the declaration of the Republic.

It is rumored that Italian troops, leaving Southern German borders, are General Cadore marching on Rome.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The corps of Gen. Very has reached the Loire.

On the retrograde movement, the corps of Very is intact, and falling back on the Rhine.

PARIS, September 6.—The Prefect of Police has issued the following proclamation to the policeman and inhabitants of Paris:

After being for eighteen years crushed under cruel blows, the traditions interrupted on the 13th Brumaire and 23 of December are at last resumed.

The deputies of the Left, after the withdrawal of their colleagues, have, by a majority, proclaimed a decree of Dechéance. Soon afterwards the Republic was proclaimed from the Hotel de Ville.

The revolution which has just taken place, has been a pacific one. It was understood that no French blood should flow except on the field of battle. It has for its object, as in 1792, the repression of a foreign foe. It behoves, therefore, the inhabitants of Paris, by their calm possession and the manliness of their attitude, to continue to show themselves equal to the task that they and the nation have undertaken, and for this reason are invested by the Government with the powers that have been so much abused under previous regimes.

"I write the inhabitants of Paris to the exercise of those political rights which they have just reconquered to the fullest extent possible consistent with wisdom and moderation, and to show France and the world that we are indeed worthy of liberty. Our rights are the rights of the French people, which have been placed in, above all, to remember that the country is in danger, and that France, under the auspices of Republican authority, prepared to resist or die. I am certain that my powers will only be used to defend you from the blows of those who seek to betray the country."

(Signed) KEMATRY.

PARIS, September 6.—The Minister of the Interior has received a dispatch dated Mulhausen, stating that the enemy had appeared at several points, crossing the Rhine, in that vicinity. The Garde National and other bodies were going to meet them.

The enemy had also appeared at Neuf Chateau, in the Department of Cote d'Or.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—It is now positively asserted that the Empress left Paris on Sunday afternoon, going to Belgium to rejoin the Prince Imperial. She left the palace by the entrance of the evening with her husband and a servant, in the morning. Ferdinand d'Lesseps, a relative of the Empress, went to her and advised her that she should sign her abdication. She seemed to agree to this, and taking the project of the act, went to the Hall where the Ministers sat in Council.

They all declare she must not sign the paper. Princess Clotilde says the journals, was the last of the Imperial family to leave the place. She has gone to Bergues, where her children are. It was evident from the signs of the rooms in the palace, that the departure of the Empress was hasty. It is stated that the officials remaining in charge of the palace—all those whom the Empress had so far favored—deserted her, and not one remained to see her off. Nothing inside the palace was injured.

Some of the national guard required coats, trousers, and handkerchiefs, and drank some of the wine in the Imperial cellars, but nothing else was touched. "N" on the railings and about the palace was torn off or covered with tags or handkerchiefs. A strong force is posted in front of the new Academy of Music to prevent the mob injuring that building.

The Provisional Government makes known that it will not permit such excesses.

Victor Hugo and Cerrahis have returned to Paris. The former received an ovation.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 6.—The Prince Imperial has left Hanover for England. The Empress arrived in Belgium on Sunday.

MADRID, September 6.—In view of the circumstances, the Constitutional Cortes have been called in session for the 15th of September. The Regent has returned to this city. The press councils moderation.

New York, Sept. 6.—The Commercial Advertiser says that President Grant has instructed Secretary Fish to issue a proclamation recognizing the new French Republic.

hour, and for the department of Bas Rhein. The country depends upon his energy and patriotism to reach and defend his post.

All the police of Paris have been incorporated with the National Guard.

It is reported that the Italian troops have entered Rome.

The Prefect of Police, Keraty, has placed additional seals on the doors of the Corps Legion.

It is reported that Jules Favre has complete our unity, but we do not want any people among us who are unwilling members of the German nation. That the Alsacians were the most disloyal subjects of the King of Prussia, in spite of a great majority of them speaking the German language and being of Teutonic origin, there can be no doubt.

Thirdly, there remains to us, then, as a chief object, to take Metz and Strasbourg, and to keep them. This is what we shall do. Strasbourg, particularly, is absolutely needful for the protection of South Germany, which is the most important of the French army. So long as France possesses Strasbourg there is nothing to stop a French invading army. Now, it would be very unfair if we were to leave the Southern German borders open to the invasion of the Prussian army. So long as France possesses Strasbourg there is nothing to stop a French invading army. Now, it would be very unfair if we were to leave the Southern German borders open to the invasion of the Prussian army.

Then again, by holding Strasbourg we could always prevent any movement of the Prussian army. We should be able, not only to march an army by the valley of the Moselle, but to take the French army, marching on Mayence, or Coblenz, in the rear. So long as we have besieged Strasbourg vigorously, and when we have got the old German town back again, we shall make a Gibraltar of it.

New York, Sept. 6.—A special correspondent of the Tribune sends the following telegram from the provisional government, taking the name of the National Defense Government: Emmanuel Arago, Comte, Jules Favre, Jules Ferry, Gambier Bages, Jules Grévy, Pellissier, Ernest Picard, Des Picard, Rochefort and Jules Simons.

The Ministry is as follows: Minister of Foreign Affairs, Jules Favre; Minister of Justice, Isaac Cremieux; Minister of Interior, Leon Gambetta; Minister of Finance, Ernest Picard; Superintendent of Public Works, Pierre Dorian; Minister of Commerce, Jos. Magen; Superintendent of Education, Louis Simon; Minister of Marine, Martin Fourisher; Minister of War, Lewis Jules Trochu, also President of the Committee.

Prince Imperial in London.

The Death of McMahon Confirmed.

LONDON, September 5, evening.—The Bavarian corps, under Von Der Lasur Rothenshausen, have left Sedan, which is now held by the Prussian army. The Emperor has been seen by the French, and is now being escorted to the French prisoners which have been placed in his charge, and which number 90,000.

The death of General Faillly is denied.

LONDON, September 5.—The Daily News says that Jules Favre, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs, has already made peace propositions to the Prussian Government. The basis of the proposition is the withdrawal of the German from the territory of France. France will give a guarantee that her standing army shall be abolished.

The Rue Dix Décembre, has been re-named Rue September.

The Avenue L'Empereur, becomes Rue Victor Noir.

LONDON, September 5.—The Times and other morning papers accept the French revolution with enthusiasm. McMahon's death is a relief to the national will. They anticipate no disorder.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—McMahon's lies dead at Namur, in Belgium.

LONDON, September 6.—Declarations have reached Paris from the Committee of several States of Europe, congratulating France on the peaceful and successful formation of a Republic.

Republicans are already leaving London in great numbers for France. Victor Hugo reached Paris last night.

LONDON, September 6.—The Times disbelieves the miracle of 1792 will be repeated.

The Standard this morning says: "We learn from reliable sources that England, in conjunction with France, as soon as a state of government is formed in the latter named country, intends declaring war upon China for satisfaction for the massacre of English and French citizens at Tien Tsen. The demand guarantees from the Emperor of China for security of English and French subjects in that country in the future."

The Times says the crisis may be postponed for several months, but such submission will be the end.

The Emperor is advancing on Paris by forced marches.

Uprisings are reported in Italy. A great war is believed imminent.

The deposit in the Bank of France are said to have been removed.

(Special to the Evening Telegram.)

LONDON, September 6.—The Prince Imperial reached London this morning. His arrival at the Charing Cross Hotel, in London, was unexpected, and, therefore, did not create attention. The Prince was attended by his suite. He appeared to be suffering from recent indisposition.

LONDON, September 6.—The burning of the public library at Strasbourg, one of the most useful and valuable in Europe, owing to the rarity of its treasures, seems to be fully verified.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The Mayor has issued the following proclamation: "Citizens:—I have been called by the people and the Government of national defense to the Mayor of the City of Paris, and I have accepted the honor of this position of this City Hall in the name of the Republic, which was the scene of the patriotic events of 1792, 1830 and 1848. I speak, you now as our fathers did in 1792. Citizens, the country is in danger. Rally around this Parisian municipality, defended to-day from the siege by the following proclamation: 'Vive la République.'"

(Signed.) ETIENNE ARAGO.

PARIS, September 5, evening.—The public order is a matter of the greatest importance, considering the demoralization of a mob.

General Lowenstein's corps, comprising the German advance, has arrived at Viçy, on its march to Paris.
