

POSTAL BANK HAS A STEADY GROWTH

End of the Second Week at Local Institution Shows Good Business.

Although the success of the Richmond branch of the postal savings bank could not be termed phenomenal, its growth since October 14, when the first account was opened with assistant postmaster Henry Deuker, has been steady and the report for the second week, just closed, shows that there were two thirds more depositors than during the first week, the amounts deposited being amount in the same proportion, it is understood. The number of depositors is in the neighborhood of forty, including a few foreigners. Many have opened accounts who undoubtedly had never had any business with banks and had been saving their money in some secret hiding places in their homes.

Some of these deposits have been large. Postal savings bonds to be issued by the postal department about January 1, will find a market here. Several people have spoken to Assistant postmaster Deuker, relative to the investment feature, and have declared their intention to take up a part of the issue. Two and a half percent interest, payable semi-annually, will be paid by the government. The bonds are redeemable at the pleasure of the government, after they have been in existence one year. They are to be issued in denominations of $20, $40, $60, $75 and $100 and multiples of a hundred up to five hundred.

The success of the postal savings department in this city is as great as anticipated. In such communities as Richmond, where the banks are safe and in which the public has a great deal of confidence, the government did not expect very large returns. In no instance is a bank established in order to compete with the national or state banks or the building and loan associations. One of the purposes of the government in the postal savings bank system was to get into circulation money which those distrusting the banks or building and loan associations had been in the habit of hoarding. All of the Richmond banks are being used as depositories by the local postal savings department.

TO SERVE LUNCHES TO H. S. STUDENTS

New System for Benefit of Those Whose Homes Are Far from School.

The idea of serving hot lunches at the high school building for the accommodation of students who live long distances from the building, which was advanced two years ago by high school instructors, will be materialized within a short time. Miss Kiturab Parsons, head of the Domestic Science department at the high school, is promoting the plan and she hopes within the immediate future to have it in operation. Students who are obliged to drive to the local high school, and those who are forced to walk long distances to the institution, are enthusiastic over the idea. They declare that they either have to eat cold lunches or go to a restaurant, and that if they could purchase a warm lunch at the school building for a nominal fee it would be much better.

It is the object of Miss Parsons and Principal Neff, who endorses the plan to make the service self supporting. It has been decided to charge fifteen cents for the lunch at first and if it is possible the price will be lowered. Just what will be served has not yet been decided.

Miss Parsons desires to put the plan in operation as soon as the inclement weather forces many students to carry their lunches to school.

This idea originated in the Chicago schools two years ago and worked out very satisfactorily, the students being well pleased with the lunch served and the cost being very low. Instead of utilizing the entire noon hour in walking to and from the school building the students were given that time to study and prepare for their afternoon lessons.
