Our Neighbors.
 The new Army at La Salle will be opened Nov. 9th by a grand ball.
 Mr. N. W. Duncan, of La Salle, on Tuesday last married Miss Mary A. Stur-art.

The foundation was laid this week for a round house for the Pekin road at Streator.
 The stockholders of the Union National Bank, Streator, have voted to increase their capital from $50,000 to $100,000.

George Railton, a farmer living west of Wenona, was thrown from his wagon by a runaway team on Saturday and had a hip fractured.

Chris. Fisher, of Streator, is reported as swindled out of a large amount of money on his way to Iowa, by the usual form of confidence game.

It takes 38 cars of stone at $12 per car to macadamize a Streator street the distance of one block. Kankakee stone is being tried in addition to Joliet stone.

Philo Barber, of Lostant, manufactured about 1,300 gallons of syrup from his 20-acre field of sorghum. He also made up a large amount for his neighbors on shares.

Intelligence was received in Streator on Saturday that Richard Burton, a resident of Streator four or five weeks ago, was run over by a freight train near Bristol, Ind., last week, and instantly killed.

Kerian Matlocks, of La Salle, died on last Friday afternoon. His funeral took place Sunday under the direction of the A. O. H., of which he was a member.
 Some thirty-five members attended from this city.

A new manufactory, the Aurora Machine and Tool Company, has commenced the erection of a new building in this city and will have their institution in operation within sixty days. They will devote their time to local work, and to the manufacture of lathes, and to the various adaptations of the jig saw.

The Kankakee knitting factory gives employment to eighty-five persons, and is running twenty-eight machines until nine o'clock at night. The factory is $2,000 behind its orders. This season the demand is larger for extra fine goods than at any time previous. Ten machines are kept running on this kind of work.

Streator Free Press: "A most painful and unusual accident befell Tom Smith, a miner at Eagle shaft. He some way allowed a wedge to drop point foremost from the top of the coal into his foot. It struck about the center of his foot and went clean through that member and the shoe that enveloped it. The wound is causing Mr.
 Smith severe suffering and the foot is swelled to twice the ordinary size."

The stagnation of the bottle business in the west this season is having a depressing effect on the Streator makers, and the Free Press says: "It is reported, and with considerable color of truth, that the bottle works company are seriously contemplating changing their present establishment into a window glass factory. They cannot afford to allow their capital and plant to remain unemployed without considerable loss, and it is thought that about $5,000 will more than enable them to go into the manufacture of window glass and at the same time leave them in a condition to return to bottle-making whenever the trade would warrant it."

On the 23d two professional forgers were arrested in Morris by local officers and a Chicago man. On Aug. 23, the men opened an account with a bank at Racine.
 Shortly thereafter they presented a draft on the Chatham National Bank of New York to the amount of $40. On this draft they drew $350 and took a certificate of deposit for the remainder, and then went to Morris, where they commenced operating as at Racine, but were fooled in their design by the cashier of the Morris bank, who, being acquainted with the Racine matter, at once notified the bank. Requisition papers were procured, and the arrest followed, and the prisoners taken to Racine. Their names are F. M. Brown, of Stanton, Mich., and Thomas Cardomy, of New York.

Washington Letter.
 (Regular correspondence.)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23, 1892.
 Washington has long been attractive beyond any city in this hemisphere, at least for the grandeur of its public edifices. It is not so generally known that it has a larger number of colossal bronze equestrian statues than any city in the world. But what I wish to write about to-day is the splendor of the private residences that have been erected in the last five years. These residences may perhaps be eclipsed by some private palaces that have been built in New York by the Stewarts, Vanderbilts, Tildens, and other millionaires, but for luxuriousness, spaciousness and an unstinted use of air, earth and sky, the width of street and park in the capitol city presents advantages in building which no city of mere commercial and manufacturing growth can rival. It is perhaps a misnomer to call any of these houses recently built by Mr. Blaine and other millionaire statesmen private residences. It is true that the owner will have a sleeping apartment that will be, at certain hours, free from the intrusion of his admiring constituents, but the plans and the appointments of Mr. Blaine's immense pile on Massachusetts Avenue are peculiarly adapted to the latitude, the life, the society and the politics of Washington. The mansion was never intended for that retirement from the maddening crowd and that ideal privacy and rest which poets and lovers dream about, and which soured and disappointed people sometimes seek.

Mr. Blaine's new house is in the fashionable west end, near the conjunction of Connecticut and Massachusetts Avenues, and fronting Dupont circle, which is a pretty circular park, destined, at sometime, to have a bronze statue of somebody, perhaps Mr. Blaine, in it. No park in Washington can escape a bronze statue. But to return to the house. It is the largest residence in Washington, covering less ground space than the house of the British Minister, but rising two stories higher. It was designed by the same architect that built the house of the British Minister, but the original designs have been very materially altered by the owner's suggestions, and it is said Mrs. Blaine has also had something to say about it. Perhaps the most distinguished feature of the house is the spaciousness of its halls, its stairways, and its reception room.

On the second and third floors are many finely proportioned bed-rooms, goods closets, and bath rooms. There are three of the latter (one for servants) on the second floor. In one of these, for Mr. Blaine's use, is a Russian hot air bath. The main-scotching above stairs is of Georgia pine.
 The back stair-case, while much smaller, of course, is as pleasing in its way as the grand one. It runs all the way up to what was first meant only for a loft, but is now utilized for sleeping rooms, which are well lighted, for the servants, while the dark rooms formed by the slope of the steep roof make admirable baggage rooms. The elevator which is to be used for baggage and fuel only goes up to the third story.
 The rooms on this floor are fully as handsomely finished as those below and will be used by members of the family.

In the rear of the house are a cistern and filtering apparatus, the rain water from the roof passing through the latter before entering the cistern. This water will be used for drinking.

Paris Letter.
 (Regular Correspondence.)
 PARIS, FRANCE, Oct. 11th, 1892.
 A certain air of mystery usually surrounds the visits of illustrious persons to the Vatican. Now it is Comte de Chambord who has set the clerical world talking. It is asserted that the Legatist Pretender paid a visit to Leo XIII. last week; and the Gazette d'Italia, in the following note, professes to throw some light on his sojourn to Rome: "I am in a position to state, on the best authority, that the Pope really received a visit from a mysterious person, but it was not the Comte de Paris, as erroneously stated. The visitor was no other than the Comte de Chambord, whom the Pope honored with a secret audience on Sept. 29th last. He remained at Rome a few days, staying with his relative, the Comte Massini. The question whether the Comte de Chambord really visited Rome, and if so what his object was in seeking an interview with his Holiness, will produce a flutter of agitation in Legatist circles. Outside the charmed regions of the noble faubourg people will not be very deeply affected by the news of secret audiences and mysterious confabulations within the Walls of the Vatican."

The promoters of the new system of lay and compulsory education have often been accused of the intention of introducing politics into the schools with a view to Republican propaganda. Speaking, however, at Tantonville, on Sunday last, M.
 Duvaux, Minister for Public Instruction, while to a certain extent admitting the soft impeachment, explained the point at which the line would be drawn. The children would not, he declared, be mixed up with political discussions, but they must, on the other hand, be informed as to the constitution of the country. Students of the reign of Louis Quatorze must be shown the stakes planted by the Inquisition and the religious persecutions, as well as the splendor of the sport; for was history to be suppressed under the pretext that politics were mingled with it? Then, too, when the teacher showed the map of France to his pupils, could he hide from them the black stain which covered two of her old provinces? Could he prevent his pupils from asking him when and how they were lost, and which regime was to blame for this? "Such," added M. Duvaux, "are the politics of the school. We must leave them there, since, when these lessons have been given, the pupils will be better understand what a debt they have contracted towards France and the Republic." This piece of plain speaking has already aroused the wrath of the Reactionary press, and the Bonapartist Pres contains to-night a fierce attack on M. Duvaux. "According to the law," it exclaims, "the son of a Bonapartist must train himself with the lying tales which a worthy tool of the Pion Du-vaux will relate to him." Nor is the outcry confined to the clerical press. Even the strongly anti-clerical Di-Nevre loudly protests, and says: "For Heaven's sake do not initiate the little children in the quarrels of the fathers.
 Are we giving hundreds of millions for our schools that they may be transformed into 'clubs de monarches'?" You are well aware that among the fathers of family are not only Bonapartists or Imperialists or Royalists, and who have the right to be so; and you would teach these men's children that they only owe hate and contempt to the political opinions embraced by their fathers. This would be madness." The Di-Nevre concludes by berating M.
 Duvaux to correct the speech before handling it to the printer, but the mischief is already done, and the Minister for Public Instruction has supplied his opponents with a most telling weapon. The Liberte affirms that this unlucky speech was discussed at the Cabinet Council held this morning at the Elysee.

Wenona Coal.—At the new Wenona coal shaft the vein has been cut showing 35 inches of coal over 4 1/2 feet of fire clay.
 The roof is slate and solid and favorable to successful mining. The coal has been tested for blacksmith, boiler and domestic uses and thus far the results are regarded as being highly satisfactory. It is said to leave a white ash and in the latter stages of burning seems to resemble coke. It is now the intention to open up the mine as rapidly as possible and put in good, permanent hoisting appliances. The citizens of Wenona are giving liberal support to the mining scheme and many of them are refraining from buying their winter's coal until they can obtain it at the new shaft.

The Fool-Killer has Retired.
 Chicago Times.
 Ours Wilder visited Saratoga not long ago, and a correspondent at that watering place says: "I did not witness the occurrence, but was told by a lady who boards at the Grand Union hotel that Mr. Wilder walked the length of the piazza at that hotel during the morning concert, and that a crowd of women and children followed him, and that the woman touched his clothes and stroked his neck-looking hair, drawing to the water his head and his face, and that the water was so warm that he was obliged to retire. The incident is a curious one, and it is not surprising that the fool-killer has evidently retired from business."

The Rothschild's Poor Relations.
 Baron Wilhelm Rothschild, of Frankfurt, returned his last year's income at $1,197,000, while his brother, Baron Meyer, returned $1, 110,000. They are the "poor relations" of the Paris Rothschilds.

Lord Chesterfield, the pink of politeness in his day, said that a true gentleman should be always ready to assist, further in which words, mild in manner, stern in action.
 This is precisely the character of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. Nothing operates so mild yet so powerfully in removing disease.

Miscellaneous.
Oh, My Back!
 That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by kidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

Wm. P. Marshall, of Logansport, Indiana, writes: "My wife has for many years been troubled from pain in her back and general debility incident to her sex. She has taken one bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, and I can truthfully say that she has been so much benefited that she procures it as the only remedy of many medicines she has tried."

Leading physicians and clergymen use and recommend BROWN'S IRON BIT-TERS. It has cured others suffering as you are, and it will cure you.

Bill Arp on Nature.
 Atlanta Constitution.
 There are some curious things about Indian ears, and one is where do the red ears and the speckled ears come from when you don't plant any but white ears; and another, why don't we find an ear with an odd number of rows on it? You can find a four-lobed ear, but I have never found the odd row on an ear of corn yet. It is always fourteen, or sixteen or twenty, or some even number, and I would like to understand what corn knows about mathematics, and what objection nature has to odd numbers. But nature is full of mysteries. I was looking at some homopodan flies the other day and wondered how it could be made so true and uniform and perfect even under a microscope, and yet be all made in the dark, and I thought I know how the lightning bug kindles the fire so suddenly, and I've noticed that there is not only light in it to show him how to travel, but there is power, and I wonder how he knows and always upward. How does he know which is a good emblem. When a man sets himself up as a preacher, or a teacher, or an author, and I wonder how he knows how to light around the people he ought to see by precept and example that he would rise higher and higher as he mounted. And right before me in front of the piazza are two climbing a cane—one a mule and the other a jessamine—and they cross each other at every round, climbing in opposite directions, and I have tried to make the mule reverse his way, but he won't. You may try one with a string, but it will squirm and twist out of it and go according to its nature.
