

STORY OF SCOTT LOSING HIS FIGHT FOR LIFE IS OUT

London, Nov. 6.—The thrilling story of Captain Scott's discovery of the South Pole and his losing fight for life in the Antarctic, including the explorer's diary, was published today. The narrative fills two large volumes.

"The end cannot be far. It seems a pity, but I do not think I can write more. For God's sake, look after our people."

Those were the last words written by Scott, and they are produced in fac simile in the first book. Though the man was then partly dead, his frozen feet being in process of mortification, the handwriting shows no tremor.

At one stage of their suffering, Scott made the expedition's doctor furnish all the men with enough opium to kill them, but the suicide plan finally was abandoned.

SAYS WHITE CHILDREN ARE BECOMING DEGENERATE

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 6.—"Within a generation the negro in the South will be the superior, both mentally and physically, of the white, unless there is a radical change on the part of the South in handling the child labor problem."

President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor made this declaration today upon his arrival to attend the annual convention of labor hosts.

"White children," said Gompers, "are becoming degenerates through work in the cotton mills, while the negro children, because of their ability to live on less, grow up in the outside air and attend school more regularly."

Gompers reiterated his statement at Chicago that he is only a receptive candidate to succeed himself.

LINER LIPS INTO PORT

New York, Nov. 6.—The steamer Bremen struggled into port today with all her upper works smashed as a result of buffeting for four days with one of the worst storms of the season.

For three days the passengers could not visit the dining saloon. Even the officers and crew were sick and the steerage passengers were in a panic.

SHAW OFFICIAL FINED FOR THE SLUGGING OF UNION MAN

Slugging of union men by non-unionists received a severe setback when Judge Mahoney fined Paul Geiser, foreman of the Waiden W. Shaw Auto Livery Co., $50 for beating Rudolph Stimpfel, a member of the Machinists' Union.

Stimpfel was beaten up when it was discovered that he was a union man. He had been working at his trade at the Shaw garage, which is notoriously non-union, when he was ordered into Geiser's office.

"Is it true that you're a union man," asked Geiser.

The man admitted he was.

"Don't you know we ain't got any use for union men around this place," shouted Geiser. Then he pounced upon Stimpfel and struck him several blows.

In fining Geiser for the slugging Judge Mahoney administered a caustic rebuke to the foreman.
