

afraid of him?" asked Prosecutor John Fleming.

"Well, I had a better view of his intentions when he was near the stand," answered the defendant. "When he was nearer to the car I talked to him and urged him to keep peace. I addressed the entire crowd that way."

"What did you do when you got back to the Tribune building after the shooting," asked Annenberg's attorney, W. S. Forrest.

"I went up to Managing Editor Beck's office and told him of the shooting. While I was there I was told that two officers from the Maxwell street station were there after me. I sent for them and they came up," said Annenberg.

"What did you do with the gun?" asked Forrest.

"I gave it to Tom McGuire." (McGuire is the head of the detective agency which "investigated" the case of the Tribune.)

"Now, did you give the gun to McGuire, or to me?" asked Forrest, suggestively.

"Ah—I don't just remember," floundered the defendant.

Annenberg said that as boss of the Tribune gang he had charge of 215 salaried employes and 5,000 employes on commission.

Edward Weigle, photographer, and Herman Brocher, chauffeur, both of whom were working under Annenberg that night, substantiated his story.

"SPENCER" INDICTED ON THE CHARGE OF MURDER

Henry Spencer, alias Burke, most remarkable criminal of a decade and confessed slayer of Mrs. Mildred Allison-Rexroat, was indicted by the Wheaton County grand jury on a charge of murder this afternoon.

State's Attorney Hoyne and State's Attorney Hadley of DuPage County will confer this afternoon on the disposition of the slayer.

Hoyne and Capt. Halpin of the detective bureau wish to hold Spencer here for a while in order to make further investigation of his astounding "confession."

Halpin is certain that Spencer killed Mrs. Annabelle Wight of 2148 DeKalb street, and if this is proven Cook County will remain in possession of this criminal.

Spencer passed a restless, feverish night in his cell. Fear that he will attempt to kill himself caused a double guard to be thrown around his cell.

Spencer was very angry when he was accused of lying as to the story of his many murders. He stormed when shown telegrams from various cities denying his blood-curdling tales.

"I did commit them," he cried, "and I wasn't full of hop either."

However, there is no doubt he murdered the tango teacher. He has been positively identified by Frank Oleson, owner of the dancing academy, where Mrs. Rexroat taught. The suitcase found in his room has also been identified as Mrs. Rexroat's.

Halpin still sticks to the opinion that Spencer is nearly as bad as he claims to be. He is almost certain he can prove other murders besides those of Mrs. Rexroat and Mrs. Wight. His statement that he killed the latter woman is born out by police records. Mrs. Wight was beaten over the head with a hammer. The police say her assailant took $50. Spencer claims he got $435. The woman died eight months after the assault.

His story that he killed a girl named Bessie Connors in St. Joseph, Mich., was also partly born out by a telegram received by Capt. Halpin.

Customer (to his barber)—Your hair-restorer has made my hair come out more than ever! Barber—Ah, you must have put too much on, sir! Made the hair come right out, instead of only half way.
