

Then came Dr. Alexander Mc-Canachie, who had heard his story and examined his eyes.

"Come with me," he said to Haley. "I am going to restore your sight."

Haley went to the hospital, and McConachie removed the cataracts, and made artificial lenses, which he put into glasses.

When he left the hospital yesterday, Haley was told not to remove the bandage from his eyes for 24 hours.

But the temptation was too strong. He lifted the bandage for a peep, and fell unconscious. When he had been brought to, he sobbed:

"I saw the light, the beautiful, wonderful sunlight," he sobbed. "Oh, thank God, I can see."

So today, the little blind tailor sat at his window—just seeing.

CUPID GETS THE ONLY WOMAN DEPUTY SHERIFF

Miss Lucy B. Johns.

Uniontown, Pa., Nov. 28.—Daniel Cupid has served a warrant on Miss Lucy Beech Johns, said to be the only woman deputy in the United States. On Dec. 19 Miss Johns will become the wife of John C. Grier of Pittsburg.

Miss Johns was appointed a deputy sheriff of Fayette County by her father, Sheriff Peter A. Johns, last January. She wears a badge of solid gold, and carries a handsomely mounted police revolver.

SHOOTING AT THE SKY

The interstate commerce committee of the United States senate has opened up shop, and invited everybody with an idea about what to do with the trusts to step up and say his say.

There is sure to be a large response. A big collection of ideas will result. But it may turn out like the late Secretary Jere Rusk's experiment in trying to induce rainfall in western Texas by means of explosives. His official report described the elaborate and costly preparations to shake rain from the clear sky and, concluded as follows:

"The result was—a loud noise."
