THE NEW PIANO KEYBOARD IS CURVED

Here's the common sense keyboard, invented by Frederick Clutsam of Australia. Instead of having to stretch and bend the wrist to reach the keys of the extremities of the keyboard, as the player must do with the straight keyboard, he simply sweeps his arms in an arc of a circle. FIND NO TRACE OF JUROR DESERTER

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 12.—No trace has been discovered of Harry Waldron, the juror in the Hyde murder trial, who escaped from the jury room yesterday morning.

A close watch has been kept on his home, as it was thought he might have fled in order to see his wife and children, of whom he was passionately fond. Mrs. Waldron said this morning she had not heard from her husband.

In many quarters the opinion is held that Waldron is a suicide, business worries connected with his dairy being thought to have temporarily unbalanced his mind.
