A Meal.

Philanthropist—Er—I sent a poor, starving fellow out of work through the strike down to you with a note this morning to tell you to give him a meal. What's the bill?

Innkeeper—Forty cents.

Philanthropist—What are the items?

Innkeeper—Four beers and two cigars.

The Old Days.

The "old days" of our fathers—

They had no picture shows;

And if you had a headache

They bled you at the nose.

The horse cars of our daddies

Would quickly make us sick;

And we would do some cussing

About the candle wick.
