DULL OPENINGS; SLOW ADVANCES

Under Lead of United States Steel Late Improvement Is Shown—Sears Roebuck Gain.

New York, July 28.—Stocks continued their uncertain course at today's fairly extensive number of advancers and declines. Sears Roebuck materially supplemented yesterday's gain over 6 points and some of the war and equipment issues were substantially better, particularly Industrial Alcohol, Crucible Steel, the locomotives, Studebaker, and American Car. Shipping shares again tended downward. Ralls were not much altered aside from further pressure upon New Haven and some inquiry for Reading. The entire list improved later under lead of United States Steel.

FRESH ADVANCE ON WHEAT SALE

Black Rust Damage Increasing and Infested Territory Widening—Trade Relatively Light.

Chicago, July 28.—Black rust damage increasing and the infested territory widening caused a fresh advance today in the price of wheat. Trade was relatively light. The opening, which ranged from 1 3/4c to 1 5/8c higher, with September at 1 3/4c to 1 5/8c and December at 1 1/2c to 1 3/4c, was followed by a moderate reaction, but then another upturn.

Later the market underwent a material sag owing to assertions by a prominent expert that crop losses in the Dakotas and Minnesota would perhaps not reduce the yield there under a seven year average. The close was weak 1/2c to 1 1/2c lower, with September at 1 2 1/2c to 1 3/4c and December at 1 1/2c to 1 3/4c.

THE DAY IN DAVENPORT

Clothes Lines and Birds Cause Arguments of a neighborhood squabble which involved clothes lines and robins. C. Biddison and A. Pahl were brought before Police Magistrate Claussen to answer to charges of disturbing the peace. The Biddison and Pahl families live in the same house, and the squabble arose over the ownership of the back yard of the residence. Mrs. Biddison claimed a right to hang clothes to dry in the yard, and the Pahl family claimed the same right. Unfortunately both women washed on the same day. Mrs. Biddison beat her neighbor to the clothes line, and when Mrs. Pahl was ready to hang up her clothes, she simply took the line down. Then Mr. Biddison came to the rescue, and Mrs. Pahl's son did likewise. The fight that followed landed the two in court. The feud began, both parties claimed, when Mrs. Pahl engaged a bunch of boys to shoot the robins out of her cherry tree. Mrs. Biddison claims that she objected to having the robins shot, and a verbal fight led to open enmity. Pahl drew a fine of $1 and costs, and Biddison was discharged.

Pat Ruhl Keeps Cool With Cakes of Ice

Prominent officials have said that the most important thing for a policeman to know is how to keep cool. No matter what the conditions—weather or otherwise—may be, the officer must preserve his equilibrium. Recognizing this important fact, Pat Ruhl, traffic "cop" at Second and Brady streets, has invented a new scheme which it is said he intends to patent. Every time an ice wagon goes by, he places it carefully on the intersection between the street car tracks. Then he places one foot on the ice while he handles traffic in his capable way. When one foot becomes passably cool, Pat simply shifts his weight on to the other foot, and changes sides. The invention is one that will probably be copied by the other traffic policemen within a short time.

Brands Private "Coward"

Branding Private Wilt of the Iowa National guard, Battery B, as a "coward" and "yellow," Attorney N. D. Ely states that if it were not for the excess trouble he would force Wilt to go to the Mexican border and do guard duty in the United States. Private Wilt went to Des Moines several days ago to join the battery but refused to take the federal oath. He stated his action was prompted because he would have been forced to work with a barber

VALUES LIFTED ON HOG MARKET

Falling Off in Number Arriving at Western Centers Causes Rise in Figures Offered.

Inquest Over Body of Frank Rader.

Coroner E. N. Mackey went to Keithsburg Wednesday night immediately following the recovery of the body of Frank Clifford Rader, who was drowned that afternoon in the Mississippi river just opposite Keithsburg at the east end of Black Hawk Island, and held an inquest. Coroner Mackey impaneled the following jurors: E. J. Glancey, Harvey Willis, C. E. Dryden, A. Dunn, E. Welch and J. J. Ogle. After careful consideration of all evidence attainable the jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning. According to the evidence the young man did not fall from a boat, but became exhausted while swimming and could not gain his way back to the shallow water near the shore. Rader and Frank Robinson, a neighbor, had gone to Keithsburg from their homes at Pennell to purchase repairs for the Rader thrashing machine. They decided to row across Black Hawk Island and go swimming. They waded about near the shore for some time, but steadily worked their way out into the river. Evidently they had left the boat 15 rods behind. When in striking deep water Rader became unable to swim. He yelled to Robinson to get the boat. The latter immediately swam for the boat. Upon looking about just as he reached the boat Robinson says he saw Rader endeavoring to stay above the water. After climbing into the boat and starting to the rescue Rader disappeared. He then dove and struck his head on the bottom. Some men of Rader's drowning, Frank Tobias and Dan Thompson, employees of a button factory not over a hundred yards away from the scene of the drowning, when told of the tragedy wanted to go at once and drag for the body. The management of the factory, however, would not allow Tobias and Thompson to do so. An hour after the drowning a number of people had arrived at the scene, but nothing was accomplished toward recovery of the body until Tobias and Thompson came at quitting time from the button factory and began dragging the river bottom about the place. They used a long pole weighted heavily and equipped with a large number of strings with common fish hooks attached. After about one hour of earnest endeavor on the part of these two young men the hooks became fast upon the body. Tobias and Thompson, being in each trouser leg and another in the left hand. The body was taken immediately to the Steubinger undertaking parlor at Keithsburg, where the inquest was held. The remains were then brought to Aledo and placed in the Morrison undertaking parlor. Yesterday afternoon the remains were carried to the Rader home at Pennell, where funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the Pennell church, Rev. N. S. Sutherland officiating. The Aledo I. O. O. F. lodge No. 236 will conduct the funeral services.

AT SPENCER SQUARE.

Victor Moore, star of the Jesse Lasky Film company, will be seen at the Spencer Square today and tomorrow in the latest release, "The Clown," a story of circus life by Marion Fairfax. As Piffles, the clown, Moore has opportunity to display his ability as a comedian and against the background of the dazzle of circus life he lives a tragedy and a romance. There are plenty of laughs in "The Clown," but Moore demonstrates that he is something beyond a mere comedian for in his more serious moments he puts over an appeal to the heart that demonstrates his dramatic ability. "The Clown" is a fine film and will come up to the standard set by the earlier Moore releases.

Vein Struck at Depth of 464 Feet.

Wednesday evening saw the striking of the coveted vein of water at the new ice plant site by the W. S. Van Tyle Drilling company. The vein was encountered at a depth of 464 feet, 50 feet deeper than the city well. Van Tyle says that there must be a drop in the land containing the vein at the ice plant site. The last 200 feet the men were drilling through solid limestone. The water from the well looks and tastes the same as that which was taken from the city well at the time. Water has risen in the well to a point 150 feet below the surface of the ground. The water will be analyzed by a state chemist and it is expected that it will be found to be pure. Plans for the erection of the new artificial ice plant on this well site will be pushed.

Heat Killing Horses.

Scott county farmers are suffering a great loss during the hot weather was the remark made by Dairy Inspector Dr. Albert Wright. Horses, he says, are dying by dozens in the fields every day, and hardly a day passes that wagon loads of dead animals are not hauled to the rendering works. It is a pitiful thing to see a horse overcome by heat. Dr. Wright said: "He is rattled by the heat, his coat shines with perspiration, when all at once he stops short, shudders, his body becomes absolutely dry, and then he topples over."

Obituary Record.

Following a fall from a cherry tree a few years ago, William Lage, a prominent farmer of Scott county, passed away at his home on R. 1, Utica Ridge road, Mr. Lage had been ill but three days before death claimed him. The deceased was born in Blue Grass township Nov. 8, 1866, and had lived all his life in this county. He was united in marriage with Miss Antoinette Einfield on Feb. 24, 1892. The widow and six children, Della, Lovona, Helen, Walter, Myles and William, Jr., all residing at home, survive to mourn his untimely death. Two sisters, Mrs. Mary Jens and Mrs. Amelia Kerr, and five brothers, Henry, John, Frank, George and Louis, all of Davenport, also survive to mourn his death. The deceased was the son of Mrs. Hans Lage, pioneer residents of Scott county.

Two Heat Prostrations.

Two heat prostrations were reported in Davenport as a result of the terrific heat wave which has held Davenport and vicinity in its grasp. Miss Myrtle Dunn, who lives with her mother, Mrs. M. J. Dunn, in Fishertown, returned from her work at the Modern Woodmen of America office. She complained of having a terrific headache, and retiring to her room, laid down on a sofa. A combination of booze and heat got away with Tim Brady. He started up the steps at the postoffice, hesitated on the third step, sat down, collapsed and rolled to the sidewalk. A crowd gathered and the police ambulance was called. Tim was carried off to the city jail, thence to the county jail, and when his condition grew too acute he was removed to St. John's hospital, where he is recuperating.
