UNNUMBERED DEAD

In the Ruins of a Big Building Razed by the Flames at Chicago.

HUNDREDS AT WORK IN THE HOUSE

Explosion Adds to the Horror and Many People Are Wounded—Death Roll Is Not Known, But There Are More Than a Score Missing Who It Is Feared Found a Grave Among the Debris—Firemen Have a Narrow Escape—Heroic Forewoman.

Chicago, March 17.—The most appalling fire since the cold storage holocaust at the World's fair, broke out in the Conover Piano building, 215 to 221 Wabash avenue at 11 yesterday forenoon. Three hundred girls employed on the top floors of the building trampled over one another in their frantic efforts to escape the flames. Within half an hour after the sheet of fire shot out from the top floor of the six-story building the entire structure was wrapped in flames, and the crash of the huge walls as they tumbled down was heard for blocks around. The streets in the vicinity of Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard were literally black with people who streamed thither from all parts of the city, attracted by the clouds of smoke which belched from the burning building and spread all over the downtown district.

Number of Dead is in Doubt.

The number of dead is in doubt, and probably will not be definitely known until the debris of the building is sufficiently cleared to admit a search being made for the bodies of those who are undoubtedly in the ruins. This will be days hence at least. Three men are known to be dead—Samuel A. Clark, bookkeeper for Olmsted Scientific company; Miles A. Smith, salesman for Olmsted Scientific company, and Edward Lintz, cashier for Sweet, Wallach & Co.

The missing of whom nothing has been learned at this writing, and most of whom are probably buried in the wreck of the building, are: W. A. Olmsted, president of Olmsted Scientific company; C. B. Arms, secretary of the Olmsted company; Mrs. M. E. Harris, widow, bookkeeper for the Olmsted company; unknown woman, seen at a window of the sixth floor shortly after Miles Smith leaped to his death; C. T. Anderson, employed by Sweet, Wallach & Co.; —— Hill, assistant in office of the Presbyterian Board of Publication; Tony —— (last name unknown), office boy for Sweet, Wallach & Co.; Fred Hamill, vaudeville singer; C. A. Price, cashier Olmsted company; Solomon Grollman, Jr., western agent for Henry Heltzman, Columbus, O.; Solomon Grollman, Sr., with Grollman, Jr.; Anna Guest, cashier for the National Music company; H. R. Nelson, worked for Olmsted company; William Marvin, shipping clerk for the Presbyterian Board of Publication; Wm. Ross, errand boy for the Presbyterian Board of Publication; W. J. Wilcox, partner of W. A. Olmsted; Hattie Davidson, employed by the Olmsted company.

Explosion Wounds a Number.

An explosion caused by the varnishes in the piano company's portion of the building caused the wounding of a number of people. The rear wall was blown out by the force of the explosion. The iron shutters of the buildings across the alley, facing State street, had been closed. The stone and brick crushed through there as if they had been paper. William Lansley, awaiter for H. H. Kohlenat & Co., 402 State street, had his leg broken by the falling debris. Large numbers of bystanders in both the front and rear were struck in this way or burned by the flames, which shot clear across the street in front and the alley in the rear.

NAMES OF THE KNOWN INJURED.

Terrible Leaps for Life Taken by Those Penned by the Flames.

This is the list of injured so far reported: Paul C. Snyder, severely burned about head and body, may die; Emil Bressenman, hip and spine injured, may die; A. E. McCullough, hip and shoulder broken, internal injuries, may die; Mary Lapere, burned about face and head, internal injuries, may die; Hugh S. Elliott, hands and face burned, not serious; Herman B. Overman, fell from fire escape, badly bruised; H. D. Cunningham, head and body burned; W. S. Lemley, right leg broken; Officer Joseph Rogers, overcome by smoke; Professor Hans Line, hands burned; E. A. Wise, legs and hands severely burned; Philip Farley, right leg broken; W. H. Murphy, burned about face and shoulders; Jozie Baxa, right ankle broken; Annie Baxa, severely bruised; David Schaefer, arm broken trying to catch A. E. McCullough, who jumped from the third floor; Andrew Nystrom, face and hands burned; A. J. Nystrom, face, hands and legs burned; Fred Smith, face and neck cut and head bruised; Jacob Kerchin, back injured, ankle sprained; John McDermott, dislocated shoulder; James W. Wall, pipeman, head and back injured by a falling wall; Kate Carney, face and head burned. All the broken bones were caused by jumping from windows above the first floor.

The Conover Piano company occupied the first, second third stories of the building, the other tenants, including the Presbyterian Board of Publication and the Sweet-Wallach company, dealers in photographic supplies, the latter firm on the sixth floor. It was here that the fire broke out. The floor was stored with chemicals and materials used in the manufacture of photographic supplies, and according to some who escaped the entire floor was swept with flame in five minutes after the fire broke out. Three hundred girls were employed by this firm, and when the fire broke out a panic ensued, many of the unfortunate women being trampled under the feet of their comrades in their frantic effort to escape. Cut off from escape by the elevators and the stairways, people penned in the burning building began jumping from the windows, and though the firemen and others held nets and canvas many were crushed on the stone sidewalks.

According to eye-witnesses as many as ten jumped at once from the top floor and others were seen shortly after to fall back into the flames. The flames quickly spread to the floors beneath, and the floor occupied by the Presbyterian Board of Publication and the Sunday School Supply company also contained material which readily burned. On the lower floor the piano supplies and instruments held in stock by the Conover Piano company were soon transformed into tinder. Miss Kate Carney, forewoman of the National Music company on the fourth floor of the Emerson building, is thought to have been burned to death after heroically helping to save many lives of her fellow employes. When it was first learned the building was on fire the forty or more girls employed by the National Music company rushed to the elevator and stairways.

Miss Carney tried to stop the rush, but was unable to cope with the panic-stricken girls, and while some rushed down the stairways a large number beat at the elevator door and screamed for help. The elevator was ascending and the conductor stopped it at the fourth floor. In an instant it was filled with the frightened girls. Miss Carney remained on the floor to see that all the girls escaped, and as the last one entered the car, Miss Carney started to follow. There was such a crowd in the elevator that Miss Carney could not get in and the elevator descended without her. It is thought she was too late to escape, and overcome by the smoke, which was pouring into the place, fell to the floor and was burned to death.

FIREMEN HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Come Near Being Buried by a Falling Wall—An Electric Exhibition.

How the firemen working in the rear of the building escaped death is a mystery. In spite of the repeated warnings given them by their battalion chief they remained at their post, apparently fascinated by the slowing bulging wall, until it seemed certain death to stay there a second longer. Then they took to their heels. The wall seemed to hang for a moment, but finally the big iron girders broke, and it came down with a crash, just as the last man got safely out of the way. The breaking of telephone and telegraph wires almost caused a panic among the dense crowds of spectators. The wires falling across the rails of the elevated loop were instantly charged with electricity, and a wild rush to get out of the way took place at once.

When the water was turned on the burning elevated loop structure a beautiful sight occurred. As soon as the streams struck the feed rail they were apparently converted into showers of electric sparks, and an arc formed, sometimes spreading fan-wise, then shooting high into the air. This was kept up until the powerhouse was telephoned to shut off the current. The fire seemed to spring from three floors at one time. The occupants of the fourth floor of the Emerson building saw it sweep to the front from the rear of the building. There was but one narrow, winding stair leading from the top floor to the bottom, and but one elevator.

The building and contents are a total loss. In less than half an hour after the fire broke out the structure, which was seven stories high, 99 feet front by 159 feet deep, was level with the ground. The occupants were the Emerson Piano company, Conover Piano company, Chicago Cottage Organ company, Decorators' Wall Paper company, National Music company; H. Heltzman & Co., piano stools; Presbyterian Board of Publication; Alfred Berll, sheet music publisher; Sweet, Wallach & Co., photographic supplies; W. A. Olmsted, school supplies. The building was owned by Fred K. Ayers, of Lowell, Mass. It was worth about $75,000, and is said to be partially insured. Estimates on the total loss put it variously at from $500,000 to $900,000, with 50 per cent. insurance.

MARIX IS GOING TO WASHINGTON.

May Take His Report with Him—Gossip About the Disaster from Havana.

Washington, March 17.—The most important piece of real news yesterday found its way out through a strictly confidential personal source. Judge Advocate Marix, of the Maine court of inquiry, will be in Washington "this week." He notified a friend to that effect in a confidential letter which was received yesterday afternoon. He does not state whether he is coming alone or whether the other members of the court of inquiry will be with him. If he comes alone he will undoubtedly bring the report with him. If his associates accompany him several days may elapse after their arrival in Washington before they report their findings.

News received here from Havana via Key West says that "Captain Sampson intimated to a correspondent yesterday that the testimony was 'gratifyingly complete.' This might mean that an accidental cause had been discovered, but the indications are all the other way. No one believes that any Spanish officials or officers of rank will be implicated, whatever may be the findings of the court." From Key West the following comes: "Among naval officers and others it is generally believed that the court of inquiry has come to the definite conclusion that the explosion was external and that the court is now only busied over minor technical details. This, however, is only an opinion and of no further importance; for with the exception of the members of the court, Rear Admiral Sicard and Commander West, no one here has any real cue to the final decision.

One of the officials of the Maine said to a correspondent: "I believe the Maine was blown up from the outside, but judging from the questions asked by members of the court when previously here I am utterly unable to ascertain whether they have even countenanced such a solution of the disaster. I have talked with fellow officers, and having their opinions on the character of the questions asked, they, too, were bound to confess that they were just as much in the dark."

A Havana, via Key West, dispatch says: "La Lucha, in its leading editorial, says it is unable to explain the bellicose attitude of the United States, and inclines to the belief that this is the fault of business syndicates, like the sugar trust; or due to some new desire to annex Cuba, which has 'changed the physiognomy of the American people. It claims that Spain has done nothing to hurt the pride of the United States, and refers to the friendliness of Spain for the American colonies when they were fighting England, and also to the 'strict neutrality maintained during the civil war.' La Lucha says it can only explain the help given the insurgents from American sources during the present insurrection in Cuba by 'defective law, varying in the different states of the American Union.'"

ELKINS' VIEW OF THE CUBAN CASE.

Applies the "Put Yourself in His Place" Principle to the Matter.

New York, March 17.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins, in a signed statement in The World says: "The American people should treat Spain in this present state of affairs just as she would treat any other nation. Conscious of her strength, and desiring to be just, the United States cannot afford to be other than fair in her conduct toward Spain. Up to this moment the United States has no cause for war with Spain. Spain is simply trying to hold what belongs to her, and what has been hers for the last century or more, just as any other nation would do, and just as the United States did in the civil war. The United States did all it could then to prevent the independence of the southern states.

"Cuba has fought for three years for independence. The south with more claims for independence, with a capital, a congress, postal facilities and the like, possessed of one-third of the republic, with an army equal to any that the world has ever seen, fought four years, and the United States steadily resented and resisted any idea of intervention or recognition. It seems to me the United States laid down a doctrine of non-intervention in our civil war from which she cannot easily and with consistency depart.

"As to freeing Cuba without war. If Cuba can drive Spain from the island she will secure her independence. Before the United States secured its independence the armies of England on United States soil surrendered. The United States has no more to do with the war between Spain and Cuba than any other nation on earth. Whenever it becomes just and right for the United States to recognize the independence of Cuba it will be just and right for all other nations to do the same thing, especially the governments on this continent. This, of course, will end the Cuban war and other difficulties. What Cuba would do afterward I cannot say.

"The independence of Cuba will not solve the entire Cuban problem. The question will remain whether Cuba can govern herself in case she should secure her independence."

If some people would laugh more, their doctors' bills would be less.
