

HAIR OF ALL COLORS EXCEPT ORANGE, TO BE WORN NEXT SPRING—MAYBE!

Paris, Jan. 28.—Orange hair will not be in fashion this spring. It doesn't harmonize with the new dress-shade of the season—sealing-wax red. Green or bright blue tints of hair are much to be preferred and are being generally adopted by ladies of fashion, though yellow, ashes-of-roses, salmon pink, and violet wigs are also being worn, depending upon the color of the gown.

This is a verbatim version of the veritably vertiginous fashionable inversions that are taking place in this city. Complexions colored to harmonize with the gown have been accepted facts. Now milady, in addition, is to wear a wig to match the color ensemble which she has thus constructed with such painstaking art. The exclusive coiffures of the Rue de la Paix are showing attractive wigs of heliotrope and emerald.

The purple peruke is also considered especially engaging by those
