

themselves out. Frightened away. Peter freed himself and put out fuse.

John Trapp, 1939 Barry av., attempted suicide. Gun. Despondent over death of father. May recover.

Two men attempted to hold up V. Miller, 1118 W. Erie st. He stabbed one of them. They escaped.

G. I. Boyle, 4328 Gladys av., wealthy contractor, attempted suicide in river. F. A. Williams, 510 Cass st., hung by knees to bridge and dragged him out. Boyle sent to Detention Hospital.

—o—o—
HE PUSHED HIS WIFE TO WATER BUT DIDN'T MAKE HER DRINK.

Marinette, Wis., March 10.—Mrs. John Hetkos has decided her husband doesn't care a whole lot for her. Mrs. Hetkos is not one who rushes to conclusions, and is about as slow and deliberate as the Illinois legislature is in giving Ham Lewis a salaried job.

But John's dislike has become too strong to be overlooked, according to a story she has told the local police.

Three times in the last year her husband has deserted her. The first time she thought it was merely an accident. The second time she decided it was a coincidence. When Hetkos beat it the third time Mrs. John concluded desertion was a habit with him, and an annoying one, at that.

She followed him to Chicago, and discovered him last week. John was not worrying about friend wife. When she suggested it was time for him to come home and act like a regular husband he became peeved.

"Go soak your head!" shouted Hetkos.

Mrs. Hetkos didn't obey quickly enough for John, so he pushed her off the dock into Lake Michigan. Mrs. Hetkos' head was "soaked." So were other parts of her body.

After she has been fished out of the water she decided John no longer cared for her.

"He's driving me to drink," she confided to the police.

BOY KILLS FATHER HE SAYS WAS "NO GOOD"

Defending his sister from the frenzied rage of their father, Peter Scheibler, 19, shot and instantly killed his father, Charles Scheibler, in their home, 5806 S. Fairfield avenue, today.

Young Scheibler was locked up at Englewood station. He claimed the shooting was accidental.

According to the boy, the family was at the breakfast table when Scheibler became angry at a remark made by his daughter, Helma, 15. Grabbing a butcher knife he chased his wife and two younger daughters out of the house.

Peter and Helma barricaded themselves in a closet. Scheibler forced the door partly open. Peter stuck a rifle through the opening, aimed at his father, and fired.

Questioned by the police young Scheibler declared his father abused the family every day.

"He's gone now, and he won't trouble us any more," said the boy. "He caused my mother a lot of trouble, too. He was no good."

The police declare that after the shooting he walked into the parlor, lighted his pipe, and sat down, apparently unconcerned over what he had done.

Helma Scheibler is being held as a witness.

—o—o—
Women's compensation act having passed both houses of the Ohio legislature without a dissenting vote, it looks as if there were one law among American statutes that pleases everybody.

—o—o—
Orator—Horribly dry work speechifying in this weather! Admirer—Dry? I hadn't ought to be dry, for I have been drinking in every word. Orator—Oh, indeed! Then I suppose you have been making a draught of my speech?