

MERELY COMMENT

T. R. is scheduled to reach the U. S. in about two weeks, and he will have a tough time of it keeping quiet when he gets here.

It will require considerable self-restraint on Teddy's part to keep from trying to be president and running the Mexican mess.

If Mother Jones were governor of Colorado instead of the jelly-fish they have now, U. S. troops wouldn't be necessary.

If YOU are really interested in a living wage for women you can help some by eating in restaurants that employ union labor.

There are plenty of them, and grub costs no more there than in the ones that want waitresses to live on tips.

Talking about judges, it took Judge Stewart about five minutes to see the law and common sense about picketing, while McGoorty, Windes and Baldwin fussed around for weeks and then discovered that you can lawfully picket if you only picket lawfully.

Now that Mayor Harrison has cut the string that bound him to Willie Hearst, he might instruct the police to treat pickets as human beings.

Those waitresses have just as much right on this earth as John Vogelsang and other members of the hotel and restaurant trust.

Talking about gunmen, Chief Gleason says the police force is crippled and hasn't enough available men.

Why not put on duty some of the men now working for newspapers and other private interests?

And then disarm some of the 12,000 employes of private employers who have city permits to carry guns.

The chief may be surprised to find out how many of the policemen are not working for the city at all, but are working for private interests, although paid by the city.

In the meantime, is there no way we can get the streets of Chicago cleaned?

Can't Johnny Powers clean up the streets around the corner of Congress and Peoria? Or have the city do it?

The Board of Review evidently doesn't like Hoyne's attitude toward big tax-dodgers. Smatter? Spoiling something soft?

FISHIN'

By Jimi Manee.
With hook and line
And can of bait,
For fishin' I
Can hardly wait.
I'll cast my worm
And trust to fate.
One lonely bite
Will sure feel great.

P. S.—Go on, you couldn't catch cold.

TODAY'S HEALTHOGRAM

In feeding a baby it is just as important proper attention be given to the regularity of nursing as it is that grown people should eat their meals at regular times. There are three things necessary if the health and development of a baby are to be regularly maintained. These are the amount of food given, the quality or kind of food given and the regularity with which this food is given.
