SMITH SAVES DAY

Cambridge Merchant Pulls Out Victory for Colts in the Ninth Inning.

HIS HIT FOLLOWS A PASS

Interest is Intense From Beginning to Close—One More With Davenport.

Table with columns P, W, L, Pct. for various teams like Springfield, Cedar Rapids, Bloomington, etc.

Results Yesterday. Rock Island 4, Davenport 3. Bloomington 8, Rockford 3. Cedar Rapids 3, Springfield 0. Decatur 10, Dubuque 6.

Games Tomorrow. Rock Island at Cedar Rapids. Springfield at Dubuque. Decatur at Davenport. Bloomington at Rockford.

Mr. Smith, the Cambridge merchant, who plays ball to keep his muscles in condition for the handling of butter irkins and turning the coffee grinder in his store in the Henry county town, returned to Rock Island yesterday to help out the Colts while their backstops, Moore and Donahue, were laid up for repairs, and just to show that he still was in possession of his batting eye hammered out a hit in the last half of the ninth inning at the Twelfth street park and sent Jems Hayes and his Davenport string across the creek with long faces. But one man was down when Smith connected, pushing the ball over in the vicinity of third base, bringing home Rebscher, who had drawn a pass.

Interest never lagged in the game. It was close from the start, each side getting a score in the opening inning. Lakoff and Wallace, both southpaws, were on the slab. Davenport had the best of it in hitting, having eight, to six for the Colts, but was not so successful at bunting as on the previous day. The pitchers each fanned three men. Lakoff displayed more coolness in tight places than he had in former games, an improvement that if he is able to maintain through the season, will make him one of the most valuable members of the league pitching staff. In addition to his splendid work in the firing line he smeared for a pretty two-sacker in the fifth inning, registering Rebscher, and giving the Colts a lead of one score.

Passed Balls Give Visitors First Score. Smith had a bad time of it in the first inning, Ives, who had singled, making the circle on two passed balls. Smith had not taken part in a game for fully a week, and consequently his blunders were excusable. He did not walk, as do some players, but waded in determined to make amends, and that he succeeded most beautifully any one who was a witness to his performance with the willow in the ninth will testify. In the second, third and fourth the side was retired three in a row. In the fifth Alperman drove for two bags, but died on base, Gwin and Williams flying and Corkhill swatting the atmosphere. In the sixth, after Wallace had gone out second to first, and Ives had connected for a base, your old friend Umpire Beardley moved into the line fight and endeavored to play Santa Claus for Davenport by calling Ruby safe at first on a hit to the infield when he had been beaten five feet by a throw by Rebscher. Ruby himself knew that he had been caught, and chuckled in his sleeve.

STOPS A MARRIAGE

Woman Claims Groom as Her Husband at Church Wedding in Dubuque.

EJECTED, CEREMONY GOES ON

Believed She Was Insane—Escaped Not Taken Seriously.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 11.—Presumably suffering from dementia, Mrs. Ruscht ran down the middle aisle of St. Mary's Catholic church yesterday screaming "That man is my husband; stop the marriage!"

Knelling at the altar rail and about to be joined in wedlock were Joseph Frick and Miss Mary Hartman. Father Rohman was reading a nuptial mass, the relatives of the bride and groom were seated in the front pews and the church contained a goodly number of the couple's friends.

Heavy set and a wild look in her eyes, Mrs. Ruscht, screaming and yelling, rushed to the kneeling couple and peering into the face of the groom, screamed anew: "That's him, that's him, that's him; he's my husband; stop the marriage!"

Fights With Men. The witnesses were astounded. The priest, turning about on the altar, signaled two men in the rear to come forward and remove Mrs. Ruscht. She fought them off, however, and still wildly gesticulating and screaming declared that as Frick was her husband, she would sit with the relatives. Then she sat near the bride's relatives.

But she would not be stilled and finally was escorted out of the church, the two men putting their hands over her mouth in an effort to check her screams. Going out the door she declared she would return with assistance and stop the marriage. She was not seen after that. The mass was resumed and the marriage performed without further interruption.

Groom Does Not Know Her. At the Hartman home, 1734 Washington street, there was no trace of identification of the woman. Mr. Frick, the man whom the woman claimed as her husband, did not take the matter seriously, but, instead, laughed over it.

"I don't know who the woman is," said the groom. "I never saw her before, and I am at a loss to account for the strange occurrence. None of my friends know the woman. She's crazy. That is the only way I can account for it."

The relatives of the young couple took the matter as a joke.

It's about time for Hugh Nicol to disappear in the woods of Wisconsin and turn up with a string of ball players. Hugh has had a leather seat built on his trousers.

Umpire Beardley certainly has endeavored himself to the Davenport fans. It is probable he will be made the permanent referee of the games on the Davenport grounds throughout the season. Davenport could not do better choosing a home man.
