WESTERN LEAGUE AVERAGES

Players Who Led in Fielding and Bating in Season of 1904.

The fielding and batting averages of players who have taken part in eight or more games in the Western league in the season of 1904 have been compiled by President M. H. Sexton. In individual batting Leslie, of Sioux City, leads with a percentage of 375, but he participated in only 31 games. Congalton, of Colorado Springs, who was in 128 games, is next with 327. Graham, the former Rock Island player, has an average of 276 for 128 games. White, of Denver, leads the first basemen with 989 for 55 games. Conery, of Des Moines, is next with 987 for 143 games. Hallman, of Denver, heads the second basemen, with 964 for 139 games. Scheibeck, of St. Joe, heads the third basemen. His average is 936 for 124 games. Of the shortstops, Radcliff, of Colorado Springs, has the best average, 940, for 70 games. Of the fielders, Fiske, Des Moines, 11 games, and Scheibeck, of St. Joe, 10 games, have a percentage of 1,000. Blake, Colorado Springs, 140 games, has 983. Of the catchers, Herman, Colorado Springs, nine games, has a percentage of 1,000. Goodling, Omaha, 115 games, has 978. Brown, Omaha, leads the pitchers, with a winning percentage of 714 in 28 games. His fielding average is 857.

Mr. Sexton, speaking of his purpose to bring before the meeting of the National board of arbitration at New York the reported attempt of the Rockford association to disrupt the Three-Eye league because of its dismissal, said this morning that one of the chief functions of the national association was to protect the leagues scattered over the country of which it was composed. "The people of Rockford who take a common sense view of the action of the Three-Eye league cannot help but admit that the move was forced by reason of the poor patronage of the games played in that city," Mr. Sexton said. "There was no other grievance against Rockford. Six of the cities voted for the change. It had to be made. The national association will sustain our action, I am satisfied, and if the fans of Rockford know what is best for them, they will take their medicine in sportsmanlike fashion."

The averages, as compared with former years—even former years under the foul strike rule—are very feeble, weak all along the line.

Pittsburg leads in team batting and New York in extra bases and steals. Wagner is the chief individual slugger and the star base runner.

Taylor of New York and Briggs lead the pitchers in the field. Warner tops the catchers, Pietz the first basemen and Raymer the second sackers.
