Three Cases Are Begun to Recover Damages for Injuries in Coasting Accident.

AUTO OWNER IS DEFENDANT

Claimed Driver Was Responsible for Collision With Sleds on Third Street Hill, Moline.

Three suits to recover damages aggregating $16,000 for the coasting accident on the Third street hill, Moline, Feb. 8, 1908, were filed today in the circuit court, against John W. Good of Moline, and his wife. The defendant's automobile struck one of the sleds on the hill at the Fourth avenue crossing, and the allegation is made that the driver was running the machine at too great a rate of speed, and failed to heed the warning of those stationed on the crossing by the coasters.

Anna B. Swanson, one of those who alleges that she sustained injury, sues for $10,000 damages for an alleged fracture of her thigh, and other injuries. Clara Clausen, then aged 14, a plaintiff by her father as next friend, in a $5,000 suit for alleged injuries. She claims her right ankle was injured, one tooth was knocked out, and her face and lips were cut, in addition to bruises and other injuries. Her father, Henry Clausen, sues for $1,000 damages for the expense connected with the care of his daughter necessitated by the accident, and for the loss of her assistance in the home.

J. R. Oakleaf of Moline and J. T. and S. R. Kenworthy of this city are the attorneys for the plaintiffs in the three cases.
