

HE MARRIED HIS AUNT AND A BUST-UP FOLLOWED

A peculiar matrimonial tangle was before Judge Sabath in the court of domestic relations yesterday when Mrs. Michael Percisbosco, 3619 Wentworth av., asked the court to force Michael to support her, charged that he has lately married a girl of 18 and revealed that he is 32 while she is 52 and his aunt, the pair having gone to Indiana nine years ago to be married.

Mrs. Michael claimed her nephew-husband had raised a loan of $250 on some property she owned, with which he furnished a barber shop for himself and now had turned from her for a younger girl.

Judge Sabath ruled that the marriage was not a valid one and dismissed the defendant.

Mrs. Nicholas Cannon, 1828 Hammond st., found her way into court early in her matrimonial life. She is just 17 and has been married 7 months. She charged that her husband was cross with her and would not let her live with her mother, and that when she wanted to go to a nickel show she either had to steal the money out of the food money or out of his pocket.

Cannon said he was saving to take his girl-wife to his home in Philadelphia, but Judge Sabath prevailed upon him to move with the girl to her mother's home.

Mrs. Albert Yascureski appeared in court to testify against her husband for non-support with a five-day-old baby in her arms. She admitted she had to borrow carfare to come to court.

Judge Sabath ordered efforts made to get Yascureski a job, and the Junior Cheer league furnished immediate relief to Mrs. Yascureski.

James Davenport, 1830 Park av., with a complexion like a starless night, was in court, but his wife Lena, who charged he had abandoned her, was not. James said he just "didn't intend to support that woman no-how as she had a fellow that had a handsomer physique than him and that fellow could support her." The case against James was dismissed when he brought witnesses to support his allegations that Lena had spurned him for his rival.

THE DOGGONE CIVILIAN ARMY IS ALL DRESSED UP

The proposed Ft. Sheridan civilian military training camp is in a sad plight. Looks like it is going to prove a fizzle and if it does the loop sheets, especially the Trib, will have to eat a large mess of humble pie.

Request of a local army official upon Washington for camp paraphernalia brought the reply that more interest will have to be shown or no school will be started.

When the camp was planned the loop sheets all predicted 500 enlistments in a few days' time. But the total to date is but 215.

"Send substitutes to camp if you can't go," says Trib today in urging business men to save the camp. The Trib suggests that business men who lack sufficient patriotism to do a month's work in learning how to fight for Old Glory pay $40 to send a recruit in their place. "If you can't afford the $40, why not take a $5 or $20 share in one rookie," says the Trib.

If this plan goes through, look out for some resignations. It was announced when the camp was planned that it was to be "exclusive," and the blue stocking boys are not going to mix with any common university grads who have to have their way paid. It would be getting away from one purpose of the camp, which is to train the scions of big business in militarism so as to give them a firmer advantage over the common herd.
