SOX HOME TOMORROW — STILL FAIL TO HIT

By Mark Shields

Tomorrow the White Sox will be out on the South Side lot, still, according to their box score records, suffering from a pitiful weakness with the bat. We are told that the rumors that radical shake-ups and the possibility of the sale of several men has had a psychological effect on the playing of the Hose, and that since that story got out one game has been won and one tied.

But just notice that in 14 innings yesterday the Sox made a total of five blows and had two of their runs blown home on errors, and this psychological stuff is given a jab where it lives. Ed Collins got two hits, and Schalk, McMullin and Jackson one each. Thirteen noble athletes fanned one, Johnson accounting for six of them in the last four and two-thirds innings, only one hit being made in that time.

In the tenth Schalk was on second base with one out, but Johnson fanned Ness and John Collins.

Of their ten games in the east the Sox copped four, which does not mean any rise in the percentage column and gives no prospects of a world's series crowd on the South Side next fall. Ed Collins appears to be emerging from his batting slump, but the other men are still as badly in the dumps and it seems to make no difference whether they are operating against a southpaw or a regular pitcher. Washington used three pitchers yesterday, a pair of left-handers and Johnson, but the attack against each brand of pitching was equally futile.

Cleveland comes tomorrow for two games and the Sox will do well at this stage of the proceedings to take one. Jim Scott is being groomed for one crack at the league leaders, hav-
