

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl aged 16 and have been going with a young man aged 18. Everybody gives this man a good name. My mother doesn't want me to go with him. She doesn't know anything of him but as a gentleman, I love him very much. What must I do? (2) Give me a nice form to write an invitation for a party. (3) Should a girl get after a young man about other girls? SWEETNESS.

(1) She probably does not like it because he quit her, and so may say spiteful things about him. If the young man has a good reputation with other people and acts respectfully toward you, do not listen to the other girl. Use your common sense, my dear.

(2) She should be on the inside of the walk.

(3) Your good wishes would be the best thing and should be the only thing. It is not a good idea for a girl to give presents to a young man; it makes him feel under obligations to her and he doesn't like that. However, if you are very old friends, some inexpensive thing would do—an embroidered handkerchief or a bookmark or something of the sort.

(4) Good health is the best complexion brightener I know of. Eat a lot of nourishing food, drink rich, fresh milk, eat plenty of beets and carrots and exercise out of doors a great deal.

(5) White Sugar Fudge—Two cups granulated sugar, 1/2 cup milk, vanilla flavor, butter size of walnut. Boil slowly until it threads from spoon and stir briskly until creamy. Add nuts as liked.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a pretty girl of 20 years, well built and admired. There are several young men in love with me. They are all well fixed financially, but I am a poor working girl. Tell me how I can decide which one to take. WHITE TEETH.

Take the one you love. The one who really loves you will propose honorably to you and want to make you happy as well as himself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl aged 17. I have been going with a young man aged 18 for two years. He stopped going with another girl to go with me. She tells me ugly things about him. He tells me not to believe her. Who must I believe? Should I pay any attention to those things? (2) When a girl and her young man friend are taking an evening walk, which side should the girl be on? (3) What would be nice to give a young man for a birthday present? (4) What will make your complexion brighter? (5) Give me a recipe for making BLACK EYES.

foliage in all portions of the house. The bride's table was spread in the dining room, with covers for 16 of the younger friends of the bridal couple. A towering wedding cake was the centerpiece, and large white waxed orchids at each place were later the receptacles for the ices. In the center of each of the guests' tables was a gold basket containing pink roses.

Later in the evening the guests scattered over the spacious grounds, which were converted into a veritable midsummer night's dream by over 300 Chinese and Japanese lanterns, of varying size and design. A large canopied dancing pavilion erected for the occasion was the center of interest for the dancers, Peterson's augmented orchestra being stationed just to the east in a separate tent, while on the west was a Japanese garden where refreshments were served during the evening.

The guests from abroad were Mr. and Mrs. Chris Neipp of St. Joseph, Mo., and Miss Mary Neipp, the maid of honor; Mrs. William T. Jefferson and daughter Jenness of Evanston; Miss Dorothy Jefferson, daughter of Ben H. Jefferson of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Von Maur of St. Louis; Clifford Crowe of Clarion, Iowa; Bruce Finkbine of Des Moines, and Clifford Halkes of Muscatine.

Mr. and Mrs. Von Maur left for the west on their honeymoon, and after their return will reside for the remainder of the summer at "The Hawthornes." The bride is the only daughter of Ex-Congressman and Mrs. Joe R. Lane. She is a graduate of St. Katherine's school in Davenport, following her course there with a year at Miss Somers' school in Washington, D. C. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Von Maur, his father being one of Davenport's leading business men. He attended Culver Military academy and the Lawrenceville school, and graduated later from the academic and law schools of the University of Iowa.

There were egg races, potato dashes, three-legged races and 50-yard dashes and a ball game between the girls and the V. C. U. team, all of which provoked lots of fun. SOCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The young ladies of the Immanuel's German Lutheran church will serve ice cream and cake this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Landeck, 1620 Twenty-fourth and a half street.

A French philosopher has said: "Succulent and carefully prepared food has proved by a series of minute studies to delay the exterior signs of age. It gives brilliancy to the eye, freshness to the skin, strength to the muscles, dissipates wrinkles, and it can be safely said that all men and women who know how to eat are comparatively ten years younger than those who ignore this science."

Salads are good at all seasons, but appeal more to the eye, and to the palate, than to the entire body especially during the mid-summer season. Not everything that is green or has a little seedy sliced cucumber on it is a salad—far from it. There are concoctions placed before one to eat called "salads" which are certainly an insult to the real thing.

WASH THE GREENS. In the first place, the lettuce or greens should be washed, and washed perfectly clean, with every imperfection removed from them. Then the lettuce or other greens should be dried and put away in a cold place in a pall with cover or wrapped in a damp cloth. Whether in a hotel, restaurant or home, there is no excuse for not having this always done. When the lettuce comes home with the other marketing, then is the time to wash, dry and put it into the refrigerator ready for instant use when wanted.

After knowing how to prepare the greens, the next thing is to know how to make a real French dressing. I am sorry to say the "real thing" is difficult to find. Instead of being the "miser" for vinegar the salad maker at most public dining places is the worst possible "spendthrift" imaginable. This kind of seasoning is ruinous to salads or the cultivation of taste for them. The old saying is "A miser of vinegar, a spendthrift for oil, and a madcat to stir it up." Having the dish icy cold or a small piece of ice in it, makes a perfect dressing. Then make changes by the addition of chopped vegetables and seasonings to the French dressings.

EUCLID SALAD. Materials—Beets, six; Philadelphia cream cheese, one; pimento, one; olives, four; paprika, salt, capers, French dressing. Directions—Select nice bright red beets, not too large; scoop out the centers and fill with the cheese mixed with the pimento cut in small pieces, olives chopped fine, adding seasonings and enough mayonnaise to make smooth and creamy, put a caper on top, place on a lettuce leaf with French dressing over the whole. Garnish with the tiny balls of the beets rolled in very finely chopped parsley. Serve very cold.

CANTALOUPE SOUP. Materials—Two cantaloupes, salt, paprika, one-half tablespoonful cinnamon, one pint cream, one teaspoon gelatin, lettuce, pink mayonnaise and one tablespoonful lemon juice. Directions—Cut the edible part of two cantaloupes into small cubes, sprinkle with salt, paprika and cinnamon. Then add the cream beaten stiff, to which the dissolved gelatin has been added with the lemon juice. Whip until the whole is firm and then turn into a mold and bury in ice and salt as directed for all mousses and parfaits. When ready to serve wipe the mold with a cloth wet in cold water and place on platter garnished with curly lettuce and pink mayonnaise pressed through a pastry tube. Individual molds may be used.

APPRECIATING PRESS OF CITY

Rock Island, July 17. Editor The Argus: Realizing that, in any community, the papers are a power for good that can hardly be estimated, the one authorized source of reliable information, and the one medium of reaching all the people all the time, the members of the Civic department of the Rock Island Woman's club appreciate to the fullest extent the value of the cooperation and assistance of the three local papers. Through almost daily notices the work undertaken by the department has been kept before the public; ways of improving conditions have been pointed out; and citizens have been urged each to do his share, in developing a cleaner, healthier, better, and more beautiful city. Though the time has been short already results are gratifying. The ladies wish publicly to testify to the uniform interest in all that contributes to the city's welfare, to the unflinching courtesy shown them, and the generosity in giving unlimited space to anything and everything the department wanted published. At the last regular meeting of the department this feeling of grateful appreciation was expressed in a vote of hearty thanks extended to The Argus, the financier, who has been the guest of Miss Jean Morris, daughter of Mrs. Lewis Class Ledyard of Sunset Ridge. The picture of the Moreland sisters, two of the pretty debutantes of the season, was taken as they were leaving for a tennis court. With bathing, yachting, dancing, motoring and tennis the young people are kept in a busy whirl. When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver and the kidneys congest, causing numerous diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets can be depended upon to do it. Easy to take and most effective. Sold by all druggists.—(Adv.)

SOCIETY

VON MAUR-LANE. AT "THE HAWTHORNES," THE country home of Hon. and Mrs. Joe R. Lane, the parents of the bride, last evening at 7:30 o'clock at Davenport, occurred the marriage of Miss Jennette Darling Lane and Cable George Von Maur, Very Rev. Marmaduke Hare, dean of Trinity cathedral, being the officiating clergyman. It was an out-of-doors wedding, under conditions that were fairly idyllic. The Lane home crowns one of the highest bluffs along this middle stretch of the Mississippi river, and here their troth was plighted, in the presence of a company of 250 of their kindred and friends. The guests were gathered on the broad porches of the house when the musician, from Peterson's orchestra, stationed in the balcony above the front entrance, played the wedding march from Lohengrin, and the bridal party emerged from the east entrance and advanced along a beribboned aisle that terminated in the plot before the front entrance, which was flanked by bay trees and ivied columns and canopied with fresh oak leaves. In advance came two of the flower girls, Jenness Jefferson and Josephine Von Maur, preceding the bridesmaid, Miss Mary Neipp of St. Joseph, Mo., who was followed by the matrons of honor, Mrs. Dick Lane and Mrs. Reed Lane. Then came the third flower girl, little Jane Bendixen, and then the bride on the arm of her father. They were met by the groom, who advanced from the main entrance, accompanied by the best man, James Von Maur, and the minister, Very Rev. Dean Hare. An immense oriental rug had been laid on the grass plot where the vows were said. The ushers were Charles Shuler, Jr., Mal-
