

NIGHT PROWLER ALARMS WOMAN

Sheriff's Office Called to House of Chris King to Arrest Would-Be Burglar.

Deputy Sheriff Edward Glasgow was called to the home of Chris King, farmer, living on Colona avenue, two miles south of East Moline, last evening about 11 o'clock to arrest a prowler, who during the evening had made three ineffectual efforts to get into the house.

Mr. King was at Springfield, taking in the state fair and his housekeeper and the children were alone when suddenly a man's face appeared at the window. When the fellow attempted to raise the sash, the frightened woman called H. C. Newton, tax collector for South Moline township, a near neighbor, to the house and the sheriff's force was notified. Later the burglar made two other attempts to get into the house but was not seen after the deputy arrived. He had a red handkerchief tied around his neck and his description suited that of an inmate from the Waterfront hospital who has been missing for several days. He has not been apprehended.

The doctor who has visited Europe and inspected hospitals in many of the cities, is well versed on the sub-

BANQUET PLANS ARE DISCUSSED

Meeting of Rock Island Bar Association Held to Consider Annual Spread.

Plans were informally discussed this morning at a meeting of the Rock Island Bar association held in the county court room, relative to the annual banquet of the organization. Last year the event was not held but the sentiment at the session today seemed favorable to the spread and the banquet committee is to get busy at once with the details for the affair.

S. R. Kenworthy acted as chairman of the meeting and Devore N. Simonson as secretary. It is understood that the association has quite a sum in its exchequer and the members think that the money could be spent in no more appropriate manner than in a banquet.

WAGE INCREASES RIVALRY CAUSE

Trainmen's Scale in the West Makes Employes of Eastern Roads Uneasy.

New York, Oct. 10.—Wage rivalry exists between the trainmen of the eastern railroads and those of the western roads and brotherhood officials who are accustomed to handling situations involving threats of strikes are unable to check it and do not know where it will end, according to testimony yesterday before the federal board that is arbitrating the wage demands of 80,000 trainmen on eastern roads.

This rivalry, it was declared, is in part responsible for dissatisfaction among the eastern employes, for western trainmen, getting better wages meanwhile, ridicule the men on the eastern roads.

This testimony was given by A. B. Garretson and W. G. Lee, respective heads of the conductors and trainmen's brotherhoods, witnesses in rebuttal for the men.

Mr. Garretson, comparing eastern and western wage schedules, declared the eastern men are more poorly paid and said that the men in the east were prepared to accept the wage rates of the western roads.

In reply to questions by counsel for the roads Mr. Garretson said it was all he could do to avert new wage movements in various parts of the country.

Mr. Lee, testifying along the same line, said:

"On Oct. 28 we hope to be in Chicago to assist in arranging wage differences in the western territory. At western trainmen have their wages increased again, will not the trainmen in the east again want more money, even if the present requests are granted?" Seth Low, chairman of the arbitration board, asked.

"I do not know where this rivalry is going to lead to," Mr. Lee replied. "I do not feel sure we can check the trainmen in their desire for more pay. This is the cause of it all."

The Argus Daily Pattern

The Lure of Oriental-Like Fabrics and Accessories.

From the top of her head to her dainty foot the modish woman aims to look as Oriental as possible. Everything tends toward this—trimmings, fabrics, accessories and even the outlines of the figure. The closely dressed hair with perhaps just an unobtrusive feather front or a jeweled comb, such as Cleopatra, might have worn harmonies with the loosely draped gown of oddly patterned silk and its accompanying wide hip sash.

New ways of draping these sashes are being shown daily. The large bow in the back after the Japanese manner is becoming to many, but the sash that swishes the waist, giving the new broad line, crosses in back and is draped low over the hip, is most becoming, lending, as it does, the distinction of height and grace to the figure.

Canary color crepe de chine used with tulle would make a stunning frock. The broad, deep yoke could be of lace, veiled in the palest yellow chiffon, and the sash of figured silk duvetyn in a shade or shades harmonizing with the crepe de chine.

In 1884 the overhouse offers an attractive way of introducing contrast. Here a quaintly figured Futurist silk is used with an underblouse of figured net and a foundation skirt of plain satin lame. The result is charming.
