THE CAIRO BULLETIN

THE WEATHER

General Conditions.
Yesterday was an ideal fall day, fair and mild. The government bulletin reports the weather generally throughout the country, rain being reported from only two points. The extreme temperature were 71 at Phoenix, Ariz., and 23 at North Platte.

Forecasts For Today.
Cairo and vicinity—(Issued at Chicago)—Fair Saturday.
Kentucky—Partly cloudy and colder.
Tennessee—Partly cloudy; colder.

Washington Forecast.
Washington, Nov. 8.—ILLINOIS—Generally fair Saturday and Sunday; cooler Saturday in evening; light to fresh west to northwest winds.

NEWS OF RIVERS AND STEAMBOATS

LIGHTNESS OF COTTON SHIPMENTS MAKES LEE LINE WITHDRAW BOATS—GOVERNMENT BOATS RETURNING.

The Lee Line of Memphis has withdrawn the steamer Saddle Lee from the Cairo and Memphis trade in consequence of the lightness of cotton having been cut off by the depressed financial condition. The steamer Georgia Lee has been withdrawn from the Memphis and Ashport trade and the Harry Lee is now running in her place. The Cairo and Memphis business will be taken care of by the Saddle Lee and the Peters Lee.

General and Local Notes.
The river marked 11.5 feet on the Cairo gauge last evening showing a rise of .6 of a foot in 24 hours.

Kingdoms were reported yesterday from points above here as follows: Pittsburg 2.8, Cincinnati 1.9, Louisville 0.3, Evansville 1.7, Gunterville 0.1, Paducah 0.5, Paducah 0.7.

The Richardson was in and out as usual yesterday. She will be the Paducah packet today.

The steamer Lee will be in port today from St. Louis bound for Memphis.

Gen. John Smith of Paducah purchased the steamer Charles Turner and fleet of five barges from Mrs. Estel Gordon, widow of Capt. Gordon. The price was $7,500 and the sale was consummated last Monday at Paducah. The Turner will be used in the domestic trade out of Paducah port by her new owner.

These million bushels of coal is coming out of the Ohio for southern ports.

To Winter Quarters.
The Upper Mississippi river will be frozen at A. McKimble, has held up for the arrival of McKimble, and has been taken to winter quarters in the canal at that city. The steamer and a number of other government craft will go into winter quarters in the canal.

When the first few days, much to take will be done on the government side during the winter, and any large boats and barges will be built and ready for service in the spring. Capt. J. B. Martin of the C. & O. McKimble has charge of all the government property now in use for the transportation of the upper Mississippi river government work and will soon be busy in completing and properly re-arranging the same.

Yesterday's River Forecasts.
The Ohio river at Hannibal, Mo. will contain about 100,000 tons of coal during the next 24 hours.

BODY OF BABY FOUND IN RUINS

HOME OF GUY DALTON NEAR CHARLESTON DESTROYED BY FIRE THURSDAY.

MOTHER FOUND BODY

Nearly Sacrificed Her Life in the Effort to Save Her Child—Was Seriously Burned.

The home of Guy Dalton seven miles southeast of Charleston, Mo., was destroyed by fire late Thursday afternoon and the infant child of the family was burned to death.

Mrs. Dalton was not making the bricks and turning suddenly she was horrified to see her home in flames. Thinking of her child, she rushed into the burning building just as the roof fell in. Fortunately the falling timbers did not strike her and the agonized mother hunted in the ruins until she found the charred body of her child.

Mrs. Dalton was very seriously burned but it is thought that she will recover.

NEW MILEAGE BOOKS FOR SALE

THIS MONTH AT POINTS IN ILLINOIS—ILLINOIS CENTRAL TO ISSUE 1,000-MILE BOOKS.

The new western interchangeable 2,000 mile books, good for bearer, price $40, so on sale at points in Illinois Nov. 10. In addition it is reported that the Illinois Central will have a 1,000-mile book, price $20, good only on Illinois Central lines.

When the 2-cent rate law went into effect the railroads announced that mileage books with a 2-cent rate would not be sold. In case a person wished a mileage book, he could purchase that of the Central Passenger association, a 1,000-mile book, price $25. Though this was paying $5 extra just for the privilege of using the book, many were sold, especially to traveling men, who found them very convenient.

Meanwhile a protest had gone up from the traveling men and others who had been in the habit of using the old book, against the arrangement by which they were forced to pay $5 extra for the Central Passenger association books which, besides being good only on certain lines, the Eastern and Western Passenger associations having withdrawn their books. The protest had the desired effect, and so beginning Nov. 10 mileage books embodying the 2-cent rate will be ready for sale.

Central Passenger association books at the old rate will still remain on sale. They will still be bought for certain railroads, the C. H. & D. and the Vandavia for instance, belong to the Western. The Wabash and Illinois Central belong to both associations.

It is expected that the new books will be exceedingly popular.

Why pay three and five for each when you can buy just as good for $10 on Saturday or Sunday. Paul G. Schuh & Sons.

SOLID BRASS FILINGS

Man Influenced By High Premium on Gold Disposed of Same to Friend.

New York, Nov. 8.—Influenced by the present premium on the precious metal Samuel Hirschfeld entered the business district today, according to allegations which later led to his arrest, disposed of a bar of brass filings for $1,000. The purchaser was Houben Hirschfeld, who described himself as a diamond broker and until his awakening today, a friend of Hirschfeld. The latter was held in $2,500 bail on a charge of grand larceny.

CRUSHED UNDER HEARSE.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 8.—William Johnson, aged 55, driver of a hearse, was killed in front of St. Catherine's church today when his horses ran away and upset the hearse, which fell on him.

FIRST WEEK ENDS BANKERS PLEASSED

CLEARING HOUSE CERTIFICATES DID EXCELLENT WORK IN CITY'S BUSINESS LIFE.

DEPOSITS INCREASED

In All the Banks—Small Bills Issued Today to Meet Needs of Big Employers of Labor.

Cairo's financial, commercial and industrial situation is quite satisfactory. While business is somewhat quiet, due of course in part to the financial stringency and in part to the too pleasant weather, yet the feeling among business men is not at all depressed, and they look forward with confidence for a good fall trade as soon as the weather braces up a bit. It is generally conceded that here as all over the country the people have money to spend. They have it in the banks, in their pockets and in their coffers, and they need only be gotten over the scare that possesses them in order to turn loose the wheels of commerce and progress. It is not expected to take very long to bring this about. Confidence will come and money will begin to flow again as soon as it is seen that the banks and the big business firms are not going to close their doors.

Cairo Bankers Satisfied.
The bankers of Cairo are particularly well pleased with the work of the first week with clearing house certificates. The first week ended last evening. They have met every day at 4:30 p. m. to survey the situation and hear reports. Their meeting yesterday was one of self-congratulation for the reports of all were of the most satisfactory nature. All the banks reported steady gains in currency, showing that patrons continued to deposit their surplus money the same as usual.

Certificates Issued.
Up to the closing hour last evening the Cairo banks had put in circulation only $16,518 in clearing house certificates, against an original deposit of securities amounting to nearly $40,000.

"That such a small amount has been called for during the past week may be taken as proof that there is a great deal of money in circulation among the people and that much of the business of the community is done on credit in various ways," it is stated on good authority, and it is a significant fact, that the banks of Cairo had last evening in actual cash very considerably more than ten times the amount of the clearing house certificates issued during the week.

Plenty of Small Bills.
Today being pay day at a number of the big industrial establishments a larger number of certificates of the smaller denomination will be put out. Last Saturday the want of these was seriously felt, only $5 and $10 bills having been issued. It has been a bureau task for H. S. Candeo, chairman of the Clearing House Committee, and Chas. Feuchter, Jr., manager of the Clearing House Association, to sign all the certificates by hand. They have been at work on this several days and nights. No certificate is genuine without the signature of both these gentlemen. But signatures are sufficiently peculiar to be readily recognized when once seen and are not easily imitated. The small bills will circulate more readily as they will take less of currency in the exchange between buyers and seller.

DEFENDANTS RATES WERE UNREASONABLE

Washington, Nov. 8.—A decision was rendered today by the interstate commerce commission, the opinion being handed down by Commissioner Clark, in the case of the Lead Commercial club of Lead, S. D., against the Northwestern and Burlington railways, in which the rates of the defendants are held to be reasonable. The complainant alleged the class rates on tariff moving from Chicago and Missouri river points to Lead, S. D., were unjust and unreasonable.

STILL AFTER SANTA FEE FOR REBATING

Los Angeles, Nov. 8.—Following upon the heavy fine imposed upon the Santa Fe railroad by Judge Wellborn in the federal district court yesterday, United States District Attorney Lawler announced today that he would proceed at the January term of court to prosecute the road upon the remaining indictments of ten counts charging rebating.

SUIT CASE FULL OF COUNTERFEIT MONEY

St. Paul, Nov. 8.—Ernest R. Workman of Winnipeg, was arrested here this afternoon by a United States secret service agent, and $20,000 of counterfeit currency found in a suit case Workman dropped when the officer seized him.

In the suit case was also found a quantity of paper, supposed to be used in counterfeiting, some ink, and a plate. A hand press was found in his room. More plates were found in a room on West Seventh street in which Workman lived.

WINS BILLIARD TOURNAY.

St. Louis, Nov. 8.—John G. Hogan, defeated Thomas A. Houston in tonight's game of the National Three Cushion Billiard Tourney, 50 to 47. Hogan's high run was 5, and his average .87; Houston's high was 4, average .861.

AGED COUPLE KILLED.

Ashtabula, Ohio, Nov. 8.—Charles Fry and wife, both over 80, of Saybrook, Ohio, were killed by a Lake Shore passenger train near here today while driving across the tracks.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Crofton, Neb., Nov. 8.—Fire tonight destroyed the most of the business portion of Crofton and threatened the entire town. The loss exceeds $50,000.

AMUSEMENTS

"My Wife's Family," is the title of Stephens and Linton's musical farce comedy in three acts, which is to be presented at Cairo Opera House next Wednesday night. This is the third successful season for this farce, which has been greeted by crowded houses and enthusiastic audiences since it was first produced in New York City, where it scored a long and profitable run. Unlike the majority of musical comedies, it possesses a distinct and amusing plot sufficient to carry the action of the piece if there was not a musical number introduced. The company appearing here is positively guaranteed by the management to be the same identical organization that will play extended engagements this season in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh and all of the large eastern cities.

College Play.
There is no lack of the atmosphere of college life in "Strangest," which Henry B. Harris will present in this city next Thursday night with Edgar Selwyn as the star and with a company that is said to be fully up to the standard that distinguishes all of the organization under Mr. Harris' direction. "Strangest" is a study of college life by William C. De Mille. Its scenes are laid at Columbia University and its characters are young men and women who are perfecting their education. The stellar role is that of "Soanagatha," a full-blooded Indian, with a brilliant education and who has become a very popular member of the college set until he falls in love with the sister of his rival. This forms the key-note of the drama and the racial prejudice that it arouses has given the author plenty of reason for some intensely dramatic scenes. Mr. Selwyn is a young actor of great ability of his advancement to the position of star was earned by conscientious work.

HOW MEN PROPOSE
The Amateur Sociologist Reports on His Investigations.

The amateur sociologist said:
"The impassioned declarations of love and the heated proposals of marriage as made by the lively young male pieces of work in the novels had always impressed me as being grotesquely overdrawn. I could not picture the lovely young male pieces of work saying such things to girls who were not insane."
"So I instituted such quiet inquiries among my married friends for the purpose of ascertaining whether any of these idiotic manifestations had happened to them at their mating time. I am giving you the result of these investigations."
"The first man I tackled was the head clerk in a grocery store and he'd been going with the girl for a year and a half when it happened. One Sunday afternoon he took a walk with her."
"Annie," he said to her after they'd been looking at some marked down refrigerators in a furniture store window, "the old man boosted my pay to 20 a week last night. Guess we ought to be able to scurrrle along on 20 a week, hadn't we?"
"Well, I should say," was Annie's offhand reply. "There are thousands of folks in New York who live mighty comfortably on half of 20 a week, and—"
"And the date of that wedding was immediately arranged."
"Next man, clerk in an insurance office, had been going with her for about eight months. There were two or three others in the field against him, but he was game enough to take a gambler's chance. They were at a show one night and between the first and second acts he leaped over to her and said:
"Say, Hazel, where do I stand with you, anyhow?"
"Now, pulchase, Jim, don't get sentimental," she replied.
"But, Hazel," he persisted, "I'm getting pretty anxious to find out, you know. I don't know now whether I'm aces or an ace man."
"Oh, I don't know that you have any occasion to worry," was her reply, and that, of course, was enough for him. The date was fixed a couple of evenings later.
"Third friend of mine whom I tackled on this investigation was a shorthand man in a broker's office, and he'd been calling on her about three times a week, taking her out, too, with considerable regularity, for a period covering about a year. One evening he was sitting on the front steps with her when she said to him:
"Say, Charlie, guess who ran away and got married last week? Edith Startsomething!"
"That so?" said he. "Well, say, Ethel, how good on the run are you?"
"That it was fixed.
"My fourth informant was a young lawyer—briefless at that—who'd been a frequent caller at the home of a wealthy girl for two years. Good-looking chap, and the girl was there with the looks, too, in addition to having the coin. One night they formed part of a chaperoned box party at a play. The play was about a family suddenly plunged from wealth to poverty.
"D'ye know, Kate," he'd said to her, "without desiring to appear mean or cruel, I wish something of that sort would happen to you."
"What a very friendly wish!" was her reply. "Why, pray?" she added, although, of course, she understood him perfectly well.
"Because, then, my dear," he very quickly made answer, "I wouldn't feel like such an infernal snob if I asked you to share the little I have with me."
"O, is that it?" she inquired, gazing tenderly into his eyes. "Well, you know very well, Ed, that I should never consider you a man under any circumstances, no matter what you did; and it is mean of you to reproach me for not being poor. I can't help it, can I?"
"This looked good enough to my friend the young lawyer, and it was. They'd decided upon the date before the end of that week.
"Fifth man I asked was another lawyer, and he'd been calling and sending her candy and flowers and taking her out right often for nearly a twelvemonth. One evening they were taking a fair ride when they passed a tidy apartment house, in course of construction and nearly completed.
"Say the plans of those flats a few days ago," he said to her, "and they're flats—best arranged I ever saw. Burly walls and all that. Mighty cheap at that—only $50 a month for the best of 'em, and there is an elevator, too."
"I just love red bar for the dining room of a flat, don't you?" was her reply.
"That was good enough for him, and he filed his caveat then and there.
"I think," concluded the amateur sociologist, "that these few random cases which I quote, the results, as I say, of careful investigation along this line, clearly indicate that the flabby, mushy junk as to declarations and proposals set down in the fiction books simply does not go. They don't kneel, they don't claw the air, they don't crawl on their stomachs. They just ask them like sensible human beings. They're glad if they get 'em, and they take their medicine as a rule like little men if they're turned down."
A man on a Chestnut street car, searching his pocket for a ticket, found he had only one, and handed the conductor a nickel instead.
"I wouldn't think of giving up my last ticket," he explained to a friend, "for I'm liable to blow in all my cash and want to be sure of getting home. I always keep one ticket on hand for cases of emergency."—Philadelphia Ledger.
