CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

Has a New Position. Tenny Goldsmith is acting second assistant city engineer during the absence of Charles Quellmalz who is in Chicago. Now in Ireland. Rev. Father Downey of St. Patrick's church who has been on a tour of Europe for some weeks is now visiting his mother in Ireland. He will leave there Sept. 11 for home. He attended the Massion Play at Oberammergau. Reunion Today. Judge and Mrs. Conings are at Windsor, Vt., where today they will attend the big family reunion. They stopped for a time at Easton, Pa., where they visited Rabbi Sadler and wife, formerly of Cairo, whom they found well and happy. Refreshment Stand Started. W. E. Twohey has opened a refreshment stand in the Arcade building on Eighth street. His specialties will be ice cream in cones and floss candies. The manufacture of this candy is quite interesting and is done in view of the public. Kick on Garbage Man. Some of the residents on lower Railroad street complain that the garbage man does not attend to business properly, although they have complained about him to the authorities. Garbage is left to stand in the street for weeks at a time. About the New Fire Wagon. The firemen at station No. 1 are patiently awaiting the arrival of the new hose wagon. It was ordered many months ago from a firm in Columbus, Ohio. It is understood that the wagon has been shipped and ought to arrive here within a week. Back From Michigan. C. C. HARMONY CORNERS

By M. QUAD Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press. Harmony Corners consisted of a store, a postoffice and a blacksmith shop. Moses Schiff ran the store. Jacob Schiff the postoffice and Peter Schiff the blacksmith shop. Then there was Philetus Schiff, Aaron Schiff, Adiron Schiff, Goodheart Schiff, Thursday Schiff, Godfear Schiff and Elijah Schiff, all farmers, within a radius of two miles. Each Schiff was related to all the other Schiffs by blood or marriage. It was a settlement of Schiffs alone and had been for fifty years. No strangers were allowed to butt in. Old Moses, who ran the store with the help of a son, was the patriarch of the flock. He was adviser, judge and jury in all matters. There had never been a case for the lawyers in that community. If there was a disagreement it was taken to Moses. He said do this or do that, and it was done. People said that Harmony Corners was a living, breathing example of the morality and unselfishness of human nature. After all that half century of peace, industry and good will Godfear Schiff was the one to produce discord. It was another proof that there's nothing in a name. It was seldom that anything called a Schiff away from home, but on an occasion Godfear had to make a journey to Pittsburg, eighty miles away. It was a serious event. It called for serious talk and many prayers. He might return alive, but the chances were very much against it. His will had been made for years, and he read it over, fed the cows and departed. Godfear reached the Smoky City right and up, much to his astonishment. He saw houses and stores and factories. He saw a sewing machine in a show window, and as he stood looking at it a "barker" pulled him in and the merits of the machine were explained. He thought well of it. There were seven children in his family and much sewing to do. Not a Schiff had a labor saving machine of any sort, not even a corn sheller or an apple parer. As their grandfathers had lived so were they living. Godfear was in town three days. He called to inspect that sewing machine six different times. At last he drew a long breath and decided to take the chances and ordered the thing sent on to him. The Schiffs never dealt with peddlers nor agents. The very same machine could have been bought at Godfear's own gate any day in the week. Moses sat on that machine in a judicial capacity for a week and then decided that it must be given up. It was witchcraft; it was an innovation; it would break up the long prevailing harmony of Harmony Corners. Godfear bucked. The invention had been tested, and it would do more sewing in a day than his wife could do by hand in a week. There was no odor of brimstone about it. It ate no hay or oats, and occupied but a small space. Some of the other Schiffs, and particularly the wives, backed him up. Of course, the news that Godfear Schiff had "broken out" was passed around the country, and the immediate result was to bring a swarm of sewing machine agents down on the Schiff tribe. They had sewing machines that would tick, hem, ruffle, braid, embroider, patch, sew on buttons, rock the baby, churn the butter, feed the hens, sort over potatoes, build the fire and all that, and they came and talked and talked. Then the tin peddlers and parlor organ men came. Moses Schiff saw the cloud no bigger than a man's hand, and he called a gathering of his clan. He was heeled with statistics to prove how greatly those inventions of Satan had increased the wickedness of the world. Thousands of murders, burglaries, horse thefts, elopements and so on could be directly traced to them. Did they want to find themselves on the gallows? Did they wish to know that their children were in state prison? In fact, did they sigh to meet Satan face to face and be caught up and sent down to the hot place by rapid transit? If they bought parlor organs and sewing machines, what next? Why brass bedsteads, chinaware, furs, new hats, corn shellers, carpets and stuffed chairs would be sure to follow, and then farewell to the harmony of Harmony Corners. With tears in his eyes he besought and wrestled, but a number of the Schiffs had got started on the downward road and wouldn't hold up. It was only four days after the meeting that one of them bought an egg beater and the click of the spoon against the bowl would be heard in his family no more. Then came a dollar alarm clock, and this was followed by a set of cane seated chairs. Satan had got his grip. In one year from that visit of Godfear's to Pittsburg the leaven was working overtime. The Schiffs were at odds; they were bringing lawsuits against each other; they were putting down Ingrain carpets in their parlors; they were buying patent churns; the men no longer went to church barefooted and in their shirt sleeves. Old Moses called another gathering and threatened and bulldozed, but the cyclone had got started and the only way out for him was to commit suicide. Two years later half of Harmony Corners was owned by others than Schiffs, and the harmony of half a century was harmony no more. And then its name was changed to the one it bears today—Hardscrabble. Shoe Towns. There are more than a hundred cities and towns in New England where shoes and slippers are made.

He was born in Dublin and lived in Ireland until about two months ago, when he came to Cleveland. Then he began to look around for a job. The manager of a furniture house promised to give him a trial. "Come around in the morning and go to work," he said, "and if you can deliver the goods we'll probably keep you permanently." The Dublin native went over to tell his cousin about it. He confided to him that he didn't believe he'd go back to take the job, after all. "They want me to deliver the goods," he said. "Think of going around delivering big, heavy furniture. That's what horses and wagons are for in my country."—Cleveland Plain Dealer. Harvard University. Harvard university derives its name from Rev. John Harvard, its earliest benefactor, who in 1638 bequeathed one-half of his estate, amounting to £800, for the endowment of the college. Harvard hall was built in 1765. Holywell hall, of brick in 1812 and Hollis hall, also of brick, in 1764. Stoughton hall, being of the same dimensions and material as Hollis, was built in 1804, and a writer of 1817 states that "its appearance is somewhat in the modern style." What He Admired. "What did father say when you asked him for my hand?" "Oh," replied Augustus, "he—he did his best to be pleasant. He said there was something about me that he really admired." "Did he say what?" "Yes; my impudence." A Pointer to Others. He—Going to marry the rich Jack Hammond? Why, I thought he had thrown all his money to the dogs.
