The latter train headed in on the Burlington tracks at Cameron Junction on the way to Kansas City. A misunderstanding of orders by the Burlington crew is said to be responsible for the wreck. The trains were to pass at this station.

The dead man is a brakeman of No. 6. The eighteen injured are mostly from Missouri. None are hurt seriously. O. W. Myers, of Deloit, Ia., had his right ribs broken. The weight of the engine of train No. 201 and the fact that she carried steel cars, prevented any one on it being injured. Most of the injured were on the Burlington train. Ballinger is coming, his friends insist, wholly unconscious of any act on his part, either of commission or omission, for which he should be condemned, and has determined to force his chief and his official colleagues to be, in effect, his judges.
