Dry Lecturer, Thought Foul Play Victim, Comes to Earth Once More

WANDERS IN THE WOOD

Claims Strange Man's Warning's of Death Drive Him Away From Detroit.

Rib Lake, Wis., July 20.—Rev. Louis Patmont left here last night accompanied by Rev. C. L. Milton of Milwaukee, but his destination will be kept secret. The reward of $1,000 is claimed by the postmaster at Rib Lake and newspaper men, who claim to have identified the missing man at the same moment.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 20.—Rev. Louis Patmont, "dry" lecturer, alleged kidnaped at Westville, Ill., March last and who later disappeared from Detroit, Mich., has been located and identified at Rib Lake, Wis., and is expected to come to Milwaukee shortly. His identity was established by Rev. C. L. Milton of Milwaukee, who left Saturday night for Rib Lake.

That Patmont is located and in seemingly in good health was the word from Milton last night. Gordon Klapp, who accompanied Milton, telephoned that he talked with Patmont Sunday and while he was a changed man in every way, there was no doubt as to his identity. According to Klapp, Patmont told a rambling story of his dropping from sight in Detroit and his wanderings since June 15.

Warned by Stranger.
He said a strange man warned him if he didn't leave Detroit he would be killed. After traveling about the country visiting Kansas City, Minneapolis and other cities, suffering intense mental agony, he reached the lumber regions of northern Wisconsin.
Klapp said Patmont's nerves were badly shattered. He is in constant fear that some one is following him and threatening his life. At times he appears in a state of mental coma. In a lucid moment he recognized Milton and inquired for the welfare of his wife and children in Detroit.

HUERTA UNAFRAID OF REBEL ATTACK

Former Dictator Hears of Threats at Puerto Mexico, but Does Not Worry.

Puerto Mexico, July 20.—Huerta today shrugged his shoulders and smiled contemptuously at the idea that a force of constitutionalists is known to be a short distance from here and would dare attack the city. The military companions of the fugitive former dictator, however, did not display the same degree of confidence and an extended line of outposts was maintained today which prevented the rebels approaching near. Huerta continued to pass most of the time in the railroad car in which he arrived from Mexico City. Since his arrival he has not taken an hour's exercise.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Bryan was confident today that a peaceful agreement will be reached between Carranza and Carranza for the transfer of the government at Mexico City to the constitutionalists.

STRIKE LOOMS IN TWO BIG LEAGUES

New York, July 20.—Drastic action, possibly a strike or walkout of baseball players in the National and American leagues is contemplated by the players' fraternity, according to President Fultz, in case the national commerce commission refuses to accede to the terms of the ultimatum sent it by the fraternity in the case of Player Kraft of Newark.

New York, July 20.—"The American league is ready to meet the issue," declared President Ban Johnson. "Our club owners will unite for war. It's about time this fraternity nonsense ended. If American league players or a majority of them obey the strike order Wednesday every American league club will close its gates, salaries will be stopped and heavy fines inflicted on players who violate their contracts."
The commission ruled that Kraft belonged to the Nashville (South league) club, while the fraternity claims he is the property of Newark.

Money Bag Jibe May Cost Title

Mrs. Nanny Astor.

London, Eng., July 20.—Waldorf Astor, the former American, who a few years ago came to England in a rainbow chase for a dukedom, is reported to be very angry with his witty American daughter-in-law, formerly Nanny Langhorne, for her jocular remark in reference to the tightened strings of her father-in-law's money bag. And it has brought about a rupture in the family which may cause the senior Astor to disinherit his ambitious son, Waldorf.

Mrs. Astor was one of the four beautiful Langhorns, made famous by the Charles Dana Gibson drawings. Her wit and humor are the spirit of many notable gatherings and she is very popular in America as well as in England.

In his pursuit of a dukedom Astor has found the sledding terribly hard. His present attempt to sell his two London newspapers is taken to mean the abandonment of all hope to gain a title.

London has long laughed at the multi-millionaire ex-American, and the old couplet:

"True patriot he, for he it understood,
He left his country for his country's good"

has often been quoted in connection with his name. London had its first laugh when Astor's magazine, which he bought to further his ambitions, printed an article showing his descent from a noble Spanish Louse of Astorga. It laughed again when he began pouring out his money like water for the unionist cause in exchange for a half promise that if he made his contributions large enough he might be given the title of Baron Astor Waldorf.

But plain people glowered when he closed long-used footpaths on his Clivedon estate; and King Edward exploded with royal wrath when Mr. Astor, prematurely ducal in manner, affronted a friend.

Now London wits are poking fun at "Duke" Astor again, over the money bag jibe, and he sees his chances becoming a titled Englishman go glumming.

Chums Marry Same Man.
Philadelphia, Pa., July 20.—Two girls who were school chums and live within a square of each other have just learned that apparently they married the same man, William J. Blee, also known as McCall. He is 22. Blee was arrested on a charge of bigamy, preferred by Mrs. McCall, 16. Mrs. Lillian Blee, 17, says she was Blee's first wife. She assisted Mrs. McCall in bringing the prosecution.

Dances in 108th Year.
Stillwell, Okla., July 20.—Creek Beaver entertained with a dance at his home near Stillwell, and despite his 108 years entered into the spirit of the occasion and beat the tom-tom in the "orchestra" throughout the dancing. He even took part in some of the "figures" with the agility of a man half his age.

ROADS ASKED TO DROP ALLIANCES

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Further disassociation of private business and railroads was recommended to congress today by the interstate commerce commission as a result of an investigation of the transportation of coal and oil in response to a resolution of congress. The commission recommended the commodities clause in the Hepburn rate law be extended to all traffic. The resolution in response to which the report was made was passed seven years ago, but the commission delayed the report because of its inability to get certain evidence from the New York Central.

SAY WINTERS CHILD'S BODY IS RECOVERED

Detectives Make Claim After Examination at Urbana, Ill.

DENIAL BY THE FATHER

Points to Difference in Color of Hair as Proof of Another Blunder.

Chicago, Ill., July 20.—Another supposed solution of the mysterious disappearance of Katherine Winters, 9-year-old daughter of Dr. William Winters of Newcastle, Ind., apparently failed today when a baby, exhumed yesterday in the potters' field at Urbana, Ill., was identified by Nicholas Larry as his daughter, aged 7, who had died at Jacksonville, Fla. Undertaker Stewart said Larry was the man who placed the child in the vault, where it lay a year, then was buried in the potters' field because no one claimed it.

Chicago, Ill., July 20.—"I don't think she's my little girl," asserted Dr. William Winters of Newcastle, Ind., father of missing Katherine Winters, whose body was reported recovered at Champaign, Ill., over long distance telephone today. "My girl had brown hair, while the little girl whose body was exhumed had very light blonde hair. I've been treated so badly by these tin star detectives that I take very little faith in their discovery any more. There is no use of going to Champaign, but I have sent an officer there to make sure. It's another plot to ruin my character. Why, three detectives even went around town this morning trying to get my neighbors to swear my little girl had blonde hair. Everybody who knew her knows she had brown hair."

Thirteen Months in Vault.
A body believed to be that of Katherine Winters, missing 3-year-old daughter of Dr. William Winters, a dentist of Newcastle, Ind., was exhumed in potters' field at Urbana, Ill., yesterday, according to a report received here today. Exhumation was caused by detectives representing an agency of national reputation. Every detail of the missing girl tallied with that of the body, it is reported. The clothing she wore the day she disappeared was also identified, it is said. According to the account of the finding of the body it had laid 13 months in the receiving vault of the cemetery, then buried unclaimed in the potters' field. Private detectives arrived in Urbana two days ago. They told Coroner Hammore and Sheriff Davis they had traced the body of Katherine to Florida, thence to Champaign, where it was buried.

BRYAN IN ATTACK UPON ROOSEVELT

Secretary Will Have More to Say, He Says, When Colonel Makes Reply.

Lincoln, Neb., July 20.—In a signed statement in the current issue of the Commoner, Secretary of State Bryan vigorously attacks Theodore Roosevelt for his criticisms of the administration and promises to say more when the former president becomes more specific on the foreign policy.

"Ex-President Roosevelt has commenced his attack upon President Wilson's administration, but if his first speech is any indication of what is to come, it is an attack that need not be feared," says Secretary Bryan. "Those who listen to him or read what he says will not overlook the fact that he has a double reason for being dissatisfied with the present administration."

"The first reason is found in the fact that it was President Wilson's progressiveness that sealed Mr. Roosevelt's fate in the last campaign. If the democratic convention had followed the example of the Chicago convention and nominated a reactionary, Mr. Roosevelt might have been elected, but instead of choosing a reactionary the convention made the selection from among the progressive candidates before the convention, and as a result democracy came into power."

"The democratic party has made good, and it is now so progressive that there is neither need nor room for another progressive party. The president is not quick to forgive those who have thwarted his ambitions and he has this grievance against the president."
"The second grievance is to be found in the fact that he desires to be a can-

Did Huerta Carry Away Six Millions

Gen. Huerta's last picture in uniform

When Huerta fled from Mexico City, how much money did he take with him? It is rumored that he carried drafts on European banks for $5,000,000.

London, England, July 20.—News that King George had called a round table conference of the leaders of all political parties in the United Kingdom to discuss the crisis in Ulster caused a pleasant surprise in political circles here. It is felt a conference under the direct auspices of the king would result in a settlement which extremists on both sides in Ireland will be compelled to accept.

In the house of commons Premier Asquith announced that Speaker Lowther would at his majesty's request preside over the conferences of representatives of political parties to discuss the problem of Irish government. Asquith hoped the meetings of the conference would begin tomorrow.

Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, on his behalf, remarked it had "loyally accepted the command of his majesty." John Redmond, leader of the Irish nationalists, scarcely appeared to regard the proposed conferences as attractive.

Promises to Shoot Up Courts.
London, England, July 20.—"The next bomb I explode will be in the police courts and I hope it will be this one." This was the parting shot from Annie Belle, a suffragette, to the magistrate at Westminster as he submitted her for trial on a double charge of attempting to destroy the Metropolitan tabernacle and the church of St. John the Evangelist. Miss Belle enlivened the court proceedings by singing the "Marseillaise" and shouting and struggling with court attendants.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—The Haitian government has established martial law at Port au Prince, and "appears to have complete control of the situation," according to state department dispatches.

TRYING TO PATCH UP BUTTE'S SPILT

Denver, Col., July 20.—The first biennial and 21st convention of the Western Federation of Miners began today. The split in the local organization at Butte was one of the first subjects taken up. Nine delegates from the loyal remnant of the local there are attending the convention. It is said a compromise at Butte will be proposed. Discussion of the split at Butte will extend over several days, it is said. Tentative consideration of the proposed amalgamation of the Western Federation and the United Miners of America was also begun.

SPENCER SWINGS IN WHEATON 31ST

Members Supreme Court, Sitting at East St. Louis, Deny Execution Stay.

East St. Louis, Ill., July 20.—Henry Spencer, sentenced to be hanged at Wheaton, Ill., July 31 for the murder of Mrs. Allison Rexroat, a tango teacher, was refused a stay of execution by Justices Carter, Farmer, Dunn and Vickers of the Illinois Supreme court, who met yesterday.

Justice Carter had the opinions of Chief Justice Cartwright and Justices Craig and Cooke. Spencer's attorneys filed a petition for a rehearing at the October term of court.

JUDGE IS FORCED TO SEND A CHUM'S SON TO PRISON

Pueblo, Col., July 20.—Judge Charles Essex was called upon to sentence Tom Thurston, son of a boyhood chum, Thurston pleaded guilty to larceny and was arraigned for sentence.

"It is pretty hard for me to pass sentence on you, a son of my old friend. You must know what this means to your widowed mother, Tom," said Judge Essex, "and I want you to take a pledge that you will never touch whiskey again."

The oath was taken and Thurston was given a minimum sentence of 18 months in the penitentiary.

ISSUE WARRANTS IN MINE ATTACKS

Green Wood, Ark., July 20.—Warrants charging murder, arson and rioting were prepared today by Prosecutor Little for the arrest of a number of persons declared to have participated in the attack last week by unionists and sympathizers on the Prairie Creek mines. Samuel Thomas, mine guard, who declared he witnessed the killing of two guards, is expected to testify before the grand jury today.

Wears Old Hat For Suffrage Sake

Miss Marion Drake wearing her last year's hat.

Chicago, Ill., July 20.—Ardent Illinois suffragists find it easy to deny themselves a few luxuries in order that they may have more money to contribute to the suffrage cause.

A few days ago Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, president of the Illinois Woman's Suffrage association, suggested that Illinois suffragists deny themselves luxuries they would otherwise buy before August 15 and turn over the money, thus saved to the National Woman's Suffrage association.

The response to Mrs. Trout's suggestion has surprised both her and her coworkers. It seems that every suffragist in Chicago is trying to think of something she can get along without.

Miss Marion H. Drake, the progressive of the first ward, who opposed Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin in the spring campaign, will not buy a new summer hat. She is making a heroine of herself by going about in last summer's straw.

Mrs. Clara D. Oakley, a member of the Chicago Political Equality league, will deny herself a new self-starter for her automobile.

"I shall continue to crank my car for the sake of suffrage," says Mrs. Oakley.

Mrs. Kenneth McLennon has decided that instead of having two pink backed combs reset she will give the money to the fund.

The money raised by the self-denial campaign will be used by the national association in states where suffrage amendments will be voted upon this fall. Mrs. Medill McCormick, chairman of the special campaign committee and secretary of the campaign finance committee, believes the fund will net each campaign state not less than $5,000.

CALL WOMAN FOR TRIAL IN MURDER CASE

Mme. Caillaux, Slayer of Editor of Figaro, Faces Jury in Paris

TO BE NOVEL DEFENSE

Surgeons to Be Blamed for Death of Calmette in Not Operating Immediately.

Paris, France, July 20.—Thoughts of all Parisians today were occupied solely by the opening of the trial of Madame Caillaux for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro. The proceedings were started at noon in the palace of justice, Justice Albaladejo acting as president of the court.

A dramatic setting for the affair involving political intrigues in which the prisoner's husband, former French premier and minister of finance, was a prominent figure, was just to the taste of the French public. Added to this was a rumored threat of royalist hotheads to create a disturbance during the trial, and extensive precautions were taken by the government to prevent an outbreak. Long before the opening of the palace of justice crowds defying a drizzling rain assembled in the vicinity and special forces of police were called to keep order. But few places were left for the general public in the court room, which for the most part was allotted to press representatives and barristers.

Figaro in Violent Attack.
Newspapers today are filled with references to the case. The Figaro came out with a violently worded article on the opening of the trial from the pen of Alfred Capus, recently chosen academicien or "immortal," who occupies the editorial chair held by Calmette. In it he declares "The party which assassinated Calmette is doing its best to defile his memory. Those who slew from behind would like to transform him into a man involved in the shady finances of a pirate, Caillaux. Go and do not put yourself out. You have well sharpened teeth, heavy jaw, an appetite excited by the smell of blood, but the honor of Calmette is wrought in marble you will be unable to bite into."

The only women present in court were two women barristers, an several witnesses. The rest of the space was occupied by 147 reporters, 20 artists, 75 witnesses, about 50 barristers and possibly as many republican guards, detectives and petty court officers. Madame Caillaux wept when the court clerk reading the indictment came to the words "wilful murder." The jury is composed of men of many trades and professions.

As soon as the jurors, who had been drawn by lot in a private room, and the four judges composing the court had taken their places, President Albaladejo called loudly, "Bring in the accused." The guards opened a small door in the wall of the court room beneath a bust of the Goddess of Liberty and Mme. Caillaux stepped into the center of the tribunal. She then entered the prisoner's enclosure and stood with eyes downcast, and shoulders bent, a timid-looking figure in black. The judge in a clear voice said, "What is your name?"

The words, "Genevieve Caillaux," could scarcely be heard.

As the prisoner remained standing the judge said, "You may sit down."

Doctors to Be Witnesses.

The report that the defense intends to raise the question as to whether or not M. Calmette's death was due to lack of proper treatment after the shooting because of the failure of the surgeons to operate promptly is confirmed by the fact that a number of doctors have been summoned to testify.

Mme. Caillaux was visited Sunday by her husband, Joseph Caillaux, the former minister of finance and once premier of France. Because of the high position of those connected with the case, the trial is attracting intense interest.

Mme. Caillaux shot Calmette on March 18 in the office of the Figaro. In the indictment against the defendant full weight is given to the state of mind to which Mme. Caillaux was reduced by M. Calmette's campaign against her husband, which is designated as "personal and violent."

The indictment also recites that the crime was committed with premeditation and it is around this question that the struggle between prosecution and the defense will be fought.
