Select Tale.

As ESCAPE FROM WOLVES.

An old Indian still living at this time learned certain facts from the Indian and the white man. He was a brave warrior, and had been told by the white man that he was the best hunter in the land. He then said, 'I will go and see what he means.'

The old man left his lodge and started out. He went through the forest for many miles, and then he saw a pack of wolves. He knew that they were tigers. He drew his bow and arrow, and shot at the wolves. He thought that he had killed them all, but they were only fawns. He continued to shoot, and the fawns began to run away. He was so excited that he didn't notice that they were young men.

The young men then turned and went back into the woods. They had heard the old man's story, and they knew that he was not a wolf. They then told him what they knew, and he was very much surprised. He then said, 'I will go and see what he means.'

The old man left his lodge and started out. He went through the forest for many miles, and then he saw a pack of wolves. He knew that they were tigers. He drew his bow and arrow, and shot at the wolves. He thought that he had killed them all, but they were only fawns. He continued to shoot, and the fawns began to run away. He was so excited that he didn't notice that they were young men.

The young men then turned and went back into the woods. They had heard the old man's story, and they knew that he was not a wolf. They then told him what they knew, and he was very much surprised. He then said, 'I will go and see what he means.'