

TREE PLANTING IN THE SAND HILLS.

Tree planting in Kansas is a matter much attended to, but another feature of tree culture was discussed in the late meeting of the Arkansas Valley Editorial Association. We extract the following from the report:

Major Inman who was absent during the discussion of the subject of tree planting in the sand-hills, was requested to give his views on the subject. In a portion of his remarks, he said: Many years ago a French engineer under a Turkish Pasha, planted 20,000,000 trees upon the desert lands of that empire, and the rainfall which had before been but two or three inches per year, was soon increased to twenty inches per annum. I believe that the planting of trees along the sand hills would very much increase the rainfall of western Kansas, and thereby be of vast benefit to the people who inhabit this portion of the State. He also believed that if fires were kept from burning the prairie over each year, by severe penning laws if necessary, that trees would soon sprout up and thrive without the aid of man. He believes in the theory that this country was undergoing a great meteorological change, and that there would be built up here one of the grandest civilizations of any age, that the civilization we were building up would be the greatest the world has ever seen. He was in favor of state and national aid to encourage tree planting in the sand hills, and did not believe the object attainable by private or individual exertion.

Three Crops of Apples From One Tree.

The Warrensburg (Mo.) Standard says: Last week we had laid upon our table some samples of matured apples, which were the second crop from the same tree this season. This we considered at the time quite a curiosity. William Schrieber presented us on Friday with three full sized apples, which are the third growth from the same tree this season. The second crop was taken from the tree at the time of the Kansas City fair. The tree blossomed again and fruited the third time, the last and third crop being picked on the 6th of November. We have seen several references in our exchanges to a second growth of fruit this season, but we imagine this is the first instance of the same tree maturing three distinct crops in the same year.

Tramp Signs and Habits of Tramps.

The following are said to be some of the signs cut by tramps on gate posts and trees of farms visited by them to post their fellow tramps that follow: A capital H (Handout) means "something to eat given at the door." Three perpendicular lines, with a line crossing the three diagonally, means "good for 25 cents." An index hand, "careless people; crib easy to crack." Three horizontal parallel lines, "money, clothes and food." A cross, "look out for dog." Once on the tramp, always on it. The tramping business has its fascination, although it is a difficult matter to see where the charm comes in. Yet it suits hundreds of men. They care for nobody, and have little to trouble them. The greater portion of the tramps now could obtain work if they wanted it. The regular tramp in isolated farming communities rarely asks for food unless he has some other object in view. He can steal all the chickens and vegetables he wants. There are wax impressions to be made of the outside door keys. While the unsuspecting farmer's wife is busy getting something to eat out of the pantry, the tramp takes an impression of the door key and a bird's-eye view of the premises. The next night the gang, which is hanging around in the bush, robs the house. As a general rule, there are one or more firearms in each gang. If they can rob a house easily they won't hurt the inmates. [Exchange.]

The entails of sheep are now used in California for machine belting, instead of hemp which is said to be much less durable. A three-fourth inch rope made from these entails will bear a strain of seven tons.

The acting commissioner reports that under various acts of the 45th congress, with the aid of an appropriation of forty thousand dollars, granted last March, for the protection of timber on public lands, efforts have been continued to suppress depredations, but they are yet extensive, and the interest of the government and those of the people now residing, or who may desire to settle on any of the public timbered land, require that they should still be pursued with unwaivering earnestness and vigor. In Arkansas alone, the annual loss to the government by the destruction of valuable timber is estimated at not less than $500,000. A large amount of timber has been recovered, and considerable sums of money recovered on suits brought by the government against timber depredators, and many others are still pending.

The Crawford County Horticultural Society voted the following twelve sorts of apples as best for family or orchard, in the order named: Cooper's Early White; Yellow Bough; Lowell; Maiden's Blush; Kombo; Jonathan; Grimes' Golden; Ben Davis; Missouri Pippin; Kewles' Genet; Willow Twig, Talman Sweet.

The German vote for a few years past has been in part alienated from the Republican party, but the rag baby and other ills have driven them solidly back to their old party, where they naturally belong. One of the most valuable suspicions in the coming Presidential election is this vote.

The North Carolina colored people to the number of 10,000, are said to be ready to immigrate to Indiana if the 10 who have just gone there find ready and remunerative employment.

1880. The Globe-Democrat, ST. LOUIS. 1880.

The Globe-Democrat renews its claims to popular favor and patronage, with increased facilities for gaining and retaining both, and with increased determination to more than redeem its oft-made pledges to fill the full measure of reasonable expectation as a political, family and general newspaper.

Politically the Globe-Democrat is recognized from one end of the country to the other as the unflinching champion of that Republicanism that came in power in time to save the Union from destruction, and has since devoted all its energies to the preservation intact of the fruits of the war forced upon us by the rebels of the south aided by the Democrats of the North. We have opposed all forms of compromise and conciliation that seemed to aim at a restoration to power in this country of the men and the organization which invited us in the horrors of civil war.

The Democratic party is now in the field for the next Presidential election with the doctrine of State rights and nullification emblazoned on its banner. If successful, it will most assuredly carry out its promise to repeal all the legislation necessitated by the war and its results, and will inaugurate a policy which will encourage and assist another attempt at secession and rebellion. This is what the host of the "Solid South" means. There is but one antidote for a Solid South and the 'nold evils it threatens, and that is a Solid North, united in a firm purpose to keep the political power of the Nation in the sections which sent forth its loyal legions to crush rebellion, and restore the integrity of the Union. Events have unmistakably pointed to Gen. U. S. Grant as the inevitable candidate of the Republican party for this great contest. There are others worthy as he, but there seems to be no man so certain to consolidate in his favor all the elements of success. Hence, we have supported and urged his nomination, keeping in view solely the welfare of the Republican party and the best assurance of its triumph in the West.

As a general newspaper for the counting-room, the family and the fireside, the Globe-Democrat will keep abreast of the best publications of the day. Our facilities for the collection of news are unsurpassed either east or west. We spare no expense to obtain the latest and most accurate intelligence from all quarters by mail and telegraph. We have correspondents at all new centres throughout the country, and their full and interesting chronicles of events tell how faithfully they perform the duties assigned them. Our Commercial News is prepared with great care, and we may safely challenge a compromise of this department of the Globe-Democrat with that of any other newspaper in the country. Our aims fullness and accuracy, seeking to cover all subjects of general concern, and to give the latest information and quotations as to each.

THE DOLLAR WEEKLY GLOBE-DEMOCRAT.

In pursuance of our determination to place the Weekly issue of the Globe-Democrat within the reach of every voter in the West for the campaign of 1880, we have reduced its price to one dollar per annum, postage prepaid by us. This makes it, considering its size and quality, the cheapest newspaper in the country. We are confident that this liberality on our part will be met by a generous response from the people of the whole West.
