"PATERNALISM."

It's All Right for the Bankers and Corporations.

Sugar Plums and Pie for the Lazy and Gluttonous—Bayonet Injections, Prisons and Soup-Houses for the Industrious.

Paternalism is the demagogic wail of the fellows who have both hands in Uncle Sam's inside pocket.

It is all right for the government to nurse and coddle corporations, trusts and syndicates of money-lenders, exploiters of labor, gamblers in produce and makers of "hell juice." But anything tending to protect and benefit the common people—oh! horrors!! what madness!!! paternalism!!!!

The government was not intended for protection of the people—and as King Charles asserted on the scaffold, where he was beheaded for treason, "a share in government is nothing pertaining to the people."

Governments are instituted among men solely for the protection of property and to encourage the building up of an aristocracy to manage the common cattle whom God has called to do all the work of the world.

The government may lend the banks money at 1 per cent. interest, but to lend money to the people would be paternalism.

The government may build a railroad across the continent, make a present of the whole thing to C. P. Huntington et al., and throw in twelve million acres of land for good measure, and that is statesmanship and broad-minded development of our great national resources. But for the government to retain the ownership of the railroad for the benefit of the whole people, and give the land to the people who need it for homes—why, that would be paternalism.

The government may grant the power of issuing money to banking corporations, but when it deals with those same banks cannot compel them to accept their own money, but must pay them in gold. The government may protect alien manufacturing corporations with a tariff, but to protect American workingmen from imported pauper labor would be paternalism.

The government can protect the Indians, but honest settlers must be driven out of Nebraska with Federal bayonets, and further West they may be butchered with impunity by the Scotch and English cattle kings.

The government can appoint receivers to build up swindling corporations and turn them back to the stockholders without expense, but the sheriff and the auction block are good enough for the mortgaged farm and household goods of the farmer and workingman.

The government can by contraction of the currency enable the creditors to confiscate the debtors' property to the amount of the contraction, but to expand the currency by free coinage of silver and the issue of legal-tender greenbacks sufficient to restore prices and enable the debtor to recover the property that was confiscated would be paternalism.

The government can store whisky, but to provide storage for wheat and cotton would be paternalism.

The government can operate 156 railroads for the benefit of English and American money kings, but to operate one for the benefit of the people who pay the freight would be paternalism.

The government must maintain a gold reserve for the sole purpose of accommodating bankers, importers of foreign goods and exporters of gold. It must bank against all the money brokers in the country to protect their credit, but to do a banking business for the benefit of the whole people would be paternalism.

The government can issue bonds to provide a safe and profitable investment of capital, but to provide employment for the homeless and destitute would be paternalism.

Every franchise granted to corporations is for the "encouragement of enterprise" or "infant industries," but to encourage enterprise in the common people, or to protect their homes and the little farm industry would be paternalism.

In short, all the helpful offices of this fatherly government are for the rich and greedy, and the whippings which all good fathers should sometimes bestow on their children are for the weak and poor.

Sugar plums and pie for the lazy and glettonous, bayonet injections, prisons and soup-houses for the industrious and useful.

Jangling Voices.

From the Democrat.

The republican county convention in this city, was a howling success, so far as the lung power of delegates could make it. Howling was about the only recommendation it had. The convention was controlled by the court house ring and that little cluster of astute politicians had the howls and the candidates nominated all cut and dried a week before the convention met.

They were too cowardly to assert themselves on the silver question and downed Spon ler and the News with a vengence. Their ability to straddle would excel a four-horse bareback rider in a circus. Candidates can be anything or nothing, on issues. Their business as they roam over the county will be to make votes no matter how they make them, so that they get them for the republican party.

With the exception of Sheriff Patten there is not a strong man on the ticket and all will by plyant tools of the court house ring and march to the tune of ring dictation. "The Ass knoweth his master and his master's crib.

From Sylvia Banner.

W. K. Noland was deceived and suck-ed in at the Hutchinson last Saturday. He fell down before he really got started. All but twelve of his friends stuck a home. Ratcliffe of Arlington was nominated for county assessor.

Bill Yeager held the lucky number at the Hutchinson drawing last Saturday, and is very happy over the results. "But there is many a slip twixt cup and lip." The final prize is yet to be won. Billy will find a "Tackle" a most formible opponent before he reaches the coveted court house on the sunny banks of Cow creek.

From the News.

The Sumner county republicans were as cowardly as the Reno county republicans and refused to adopt any sort of a platform.

A week has passed since the republican county convention, and everything seem to be perfectly harmonious except some dissatisfaction owing to the fact that the convention took such an advanced stand on the pension question as to condemn the action of Hoke Smith in the absence of any expression on that subject from the national convention. The masses seem to be astonished that the astute politicians who ran the convention should permit any expression upon a subject of such national scope until the position of the great trusted leaders had been duly set forth in state and national platforms.

From the Herald.

The great daily was endorsed any way, we don't think!

As far as free silver is concerned, we desire to remark, "we told you so!"

The Hutchinson combine was badly knocked out, but they deserved it.

If there is anything republicans, true genuine, republicans, believe in, it is honest money and obedience to law.

The great daily managed to get its entire editorial force into the convention as delegates, but its silver lunacy was not endorsed.

It will be pretty hard work, after thirty years of republican good money, to the people to adopt free silver fiat lunacy, or any other pop democratic principles.

Bully for Barns!
Bully for Patten!
Bully for Yeager!
Bully for Elbury!
Bully for Rutledge!
Bully for the ticket!
Bully for sound money!
Bully for Ben Ragland!
Bully for Dock Taylor!
Bully for Judge Martin!
Bully for law and decency!
Bully for the republican party!

And we might add:

Bully for Fall!
Bully for England!
Bully for prohibition!
Bully for whiskey!
Bully for gold standard!
Bully for more Mortgages!
Bully for more Sheriff sales!
Bully for Fletch Meridith for congress!

From Nickerson Argosy.

In 1892 Reno county gave a majority of 214 against the pops, 176 of which was given in this little city. Last year the majority was 732,- 197 of which came from this city. We want the republican gentlemen to bear this in mind.

In the repeat campaign before the republican convention, had the people of Nickerson so desired they could certainly have had an office as it had already been conceded them—that of register of deeds.

But no. They must try to set a 'hog' and as most everyone explained the matter at the time "they could get both." This folly and nearly everone we have talked with since have acknowledged their error. Instead of solidly supporting a candidate who had strength, they make a fight on a small issue, and throw their support to a candidate who had no strenth of his own and not able to control any as the proceedings of the convention will show. It was a mistake and one which the people cannot help but see now that it is too late.—Nickerson Record.

The Record's statement is true. The "hog" act was preformed by the Record's friends and they got left. Turon gave an object lesson in the convention. A solid delegation for two. When one went down in honorable defeat the other was taken up and nominated. Nickerson might have done the same thing if Col. Brightman had not listened to very poor advice.

Just Like Kansas.

The cry in Colorado before the last election was: We must vote the republican ticket once more "to redeem Colorado." Now the speakers all over the state are speaking from the text. "Hell Let Loose." We told them so, if they voted for the g. o. p. and followed the advice of J. Ellen Foster, who told them that morals have no place in party politics.—Helen M. Gougar.
