OUT AT GARFIELD.

Chautauqua Settles Down to Business Today.
First Lecture on Domestic Science Delivered.
MRS. McCARTER SPEAKS
Gives a Short Study of the Poet Tennyson.
Kilties Band Pleases a Large Audience.

The second day of the Chautauqua at Garfield park opened with the regular devotional meeting at 8:30 a. m., which was followed by a bible lecture by Dr. W. M. Patten, professor of biblical literature and philosophy, Baker university. This lecture is the first of a series on "How We Get Our Bible," and the particular subject was "Bible Lands." Dr. Patten showed the tendencies of the different tribes of the land in which the Israelites dwelt and their influence upon the chosen people. He compared the nomadic and agricultural people. He showed that the Jews were not purely a Semitic people, but, though mixed, still remained a separate and peculiar people. Babylon, the people of the Euphrates valley, Amorites, Samaritans, Greece and Rome, all had their influence upon the Christian religion. Indeed without Greece and Rome there would not have been the rapid spreading of the Gospel by Paul and the other early Christian ministers.
 At 10 o'clock Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of this city began her series of discourses, "Summer Mornings with the Poets." The speaker stated that three things should be gained by these mornings with the poets: Inspiration, beauty and peace. The first of the series was on Alfred Tennyson. He was poet laureate for forty years and a peer for seven years. Not as a peer that we hold him great for a peerage is nothing compared to the greatness of the man. Mrs. Carter said that Tennyson was differently constituted than our present day poets and that he was not great like Shakespeare. His work seemed to be the refining of the masses of society. He was a great English patriot. His patriotism was such that it can apply to America as well as to his own little island and indeed might be called the parent to our own. His was a great breadth of interest and sympathy. He could write the simple and beautiful lullaby, the jingle verse, or the stately and dignified music of the psalm. His conception of Christianity was also dwelt upon and "In Memoriam" was taken as the example of his friendship and Christian resignation. His death was as beautiful as his life and his last poem "Crossing the Bar" is one of the most beautiful short poems in the English language.
 At 11 o'clock Miss Margaret Haggart, head of the department of household economics, Agricultural college, New Mexico, gave a talk on domestic science. This talk was one of value to the housewife and was interspersed Kilties Band Pleases.

 About four thousand people gathered at Garfield park to listen to the evening concert by the Kilties band and no one was disappointed with the programme rendered. Although there were not seats for all few left before the concert was entirely finished. It would be drawing it rather mildly to say that the band made a hit, for they were compelled to respond to encores after fully one-half of their selections. The programme was mostly made up of patriotic and love songs—the music that lies near the heart of an American audience. Several times during the playing of national airs the people began cheering and it was evident that they went with the kilted players from first to last. It was a fine tribute from the American to the Scotch when the audience so heartily applauded the playing of "Auld Lang Syne" which is perhaps more generally known and loved than any other song of the great Scotch bard. Especially worthy of mention was the work of Mr. Richard Stoss, who delighted the audience with his cornet solo work supported by the band. A notable feature of the entertainment was the dancing of Mr. A. Fraser, who performed with rare skill the "Sword" and "Jack Tar" dances. This together with the music on the bagpipes was a pleasant diversion and was fully enjoyable as the remainder of the programme.
 The lights were hardly adequate for the size of the auditorium but the management have promised to have this defect remedied before this evening's programme. There was quite a little space in the rear of the auditorium which might have been filled with benches for a part of the crowd that was compelled to stand and those in charge will no doubt look after the patrons come out on this respect also.
Capt. J. G. Waters at the Chautauqua.
 In spite of the intermittent rain of the afternoon, a good sized crowd turned out to witness the opening of the Chautauqua course. It rained just enough to make things a little disagreeable but did not interfere with the programme save to shorten the flag raising ceremony somewhat. The following programme was presented and listened to a few remarks by Capt. William Peterson, commander of the G. A. R., which organization has charge of the ceremonies. The programme was followed by Mr. Albert Cook, and rendered a programme which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The class of music which they play is of a type that can be readily appreciated by the size of the crowd on so unfavorable a day. During the intermission between the two parts of the musical programme, the president of the association, Rev. C. E. Holcomb, introduced Capt. J. G. Waters, who spoke in behalf of the association. Captain Waters, besides bidding the moral and physical cleanliness of the grounds and the city. He said that Topeka can boast of a city free from the degrading views of many of the cities of the land. He also took occasion to speak at some length on the need of the nation along the lines of Christian patriotism for which the association stands. He congratulated the association on having steered clear of the disgrace of securing such men as Burton and Tillman whose speeches are in opposition to the spirit of our institutions. He warned the churches against permitting men whose deeds are unworthy, to remain as communicants. The Kilties band was also complimented by the speaker.

The Canny Scots did not take kindly to the remarks about the bagpipes and the origin of the band. The last seen of Captain Waters he was surrounded by the Highland Kilties who attempted to roast him in their gentle manner.
 The notes of an Aeolian harp could scarcely compare with the melody of the supper call sounded on the back of a frying pan suggesting a "Pike" or "War-path."
 Over three-fourths of the living tents were taken before the afternoon was over. Considering the weather conditions, a fine showing has been made and the management feel that the enterprise has made an excellent beginning.
 Considerable trouble was experienced last evening by those attempting to gain entrance to the grounds in carriages and automobiles. If those coming in such conveyances will take Quincy street route straight through, all difficulty will be avoided.
 Most of the headquarters of the different organizations are in readiness to receive visitors. They are operated at rest and display rooms.
 Not a little delay is caused by the defective switch as the "Y" opposite the grounds. If the railway company could take care of this and also make a few more cars at the park after each evening performance, it would add much to the comfort of the patrons.

 The Temperance Union headquarters are quiet today; the attorneys and secretaries being down at Pittsburg engaged in the Crawford and Cherokee fight.
 The Missionary headquarters contain a display of literature from the different churches and also a set of curios from the Caroline Islands belonging to Rev. Thomas Gray. A Chinese exhibit belonging to Dr. Paul Todd is expected to be there soon.
 Solder creek is a center of a great deal of interest at the park. The water came up several feet during the night and carries a great deal of drift-wood. At one side of the grounds the water is eating back into the bank and a fine young oak tree is about ready to be washed into the creek. Some distance up stream several large cottonwoods are also ready to topple over. The water does not seem to be rising any more and no trouble is anticipated.
 A needed improvement is being made around the gate and ticket office. Cinders are being hauled in and efforts made to get rid of the mud hole which was the despair of the ladies last evening.

HOT WEATHER DIVORCE.

Three Cases Are Filed in the District Court.
 Hot weather does not seem to be conducive to conjugal felicity. Three suits for divorce were filed with the clerk of the district court yesterday afternoon.
 Less than a year of married life has been quite sufficient for Mrs. Martha Runyon, according to her petition for a divorce from her husband G. W. Runyon. They were married on August 14, 1906. Mrs. Runyon states that she and her husband lived together for only six months and because he has been guilty of extreme cruelty towards her she wants a divorce and also wishes a decree restoring her maiden name, Martha Friable. Anna Winey wants a divorce from her husband, Fred Winey, to whom she was married on June 10, 1903, for the reason that he has failed to support her. They have one child, Virgil, three years old, and Mrs. Winey declares that she and her child have been supported by her parents and through her own efforts, since the date of her marriage. She declares that her husband has a good position in Lawrence, Kan., from which he receives fair wages, and besides a divorce she wants the custody of their daughter and such alimony as the court may think to be just.
 William E. Bacon is the third yesterday afternoon's suitor for divorce. He alleges that his wife, Stella B. Bacon, whom he married at Osage City in December, 1896, has been in the habit during the past three years of absenting herself from home for continued periods. For this reason he wants a divorce and also the custody of their nine-year-old child, Joseph Edward Bacon, who is dumb and mute.
