

A LITTLE BIG WASTE.

DISTINGUISH between economy and wisdom. Sitting at home to save shoe-leather is economy, but it is scarcely wisdom. In the same way, doing without Ivory Soap is economy but it isn't wise; your risks are greater than all possible saving. Every cheap soap contains free alkali. Now, free alkali will eat its way through the new oil cloth on the kitchen floor. Imagine then what it will do in a single Monday's washing! Is such economy wise?

KLONDIKE SALOONS.

Eleven in Full Blast in Spite of Gov. Stealey.

The Kansas issue, the official organ of the State Temperance union, in the current issue, has the following information from a special correspondent concerning the actual conditions in the Klondike at Leavenworth which Attorney General Godard says has been suppressed.

There are now eleven saloons running wide open. In addition to these there are thirteen houses of prostitution and numerous other low dives and gambling dens, the latter being particularly frequent immediately after pension day at the Soldiers' home.

"Outside of the Klondike and along the Elke are road houses of the vilest kind. The community about the Soldiers' home, where many of the nation's veterans must spend their last days, is a seething mass of the foulest corruption.

"These are the facts in the case. The temperance people of Kansas have asked for the facts—have demanded them—and the union has responded in statements which are conservative as compared with the real conditions which exist.

"The union is a non-partisan organization. It has no desire to antagonize any official or official, but it must deal with facts, regardless of whatever party may be in power.

"The Klondike can and ought to be absolutely suppressed. Leavenworth, Wichita, and other law-nullifying cities should be made to feel the strong arm of the law. Kansas needs more than anything else, a law which will respect their official oaths and enforce the law in every locality without fear or favor.

DRESSER OF THE WEST.

That is What a Kansas City Paper Calls Dean Low.

Topeka will be represented at the Kansas show people and a prize winner horse.

O. P. Updegraff will act as judge and master of ceremonies and Phyllis T. Dr. George C. Richards' prize winner, will be there. A Kansas City paper has the following to say of the Topeka contingent:

"Dean Low, truly the gilded youth of Topeka, is at the Baltimore. Mr. Low claims with Watson Armour when in Kansas City and he has the reputation of being the horse show dresser of the west. Mr. Low has made horse show appointments a study and what he does not know about dress isn't worth knowing. He is the son of M. A. Low, Rock Island attorney in Topeka. He has several entries in the Kansas City show.

"Phyllis T. one of the Topeka horses, and a sweet type of the roaneter, noted for speed, will be exhibited by E. K. Sims of Kansas City. Phyllis captured two immense silver loving cups in the Denver horse show and has also carried off other good premiums."

OUT OF THE WAY.

Parsons Asylum Fight Goes Over Until After Election.

The Parsons-Clay Center asylum quarrel has been put out of the way until after the election by the supreme court, which set for final hearing November 1 the application for a writ of mandamus to compel the board of charities to proceed to condemn and acquire the site for the new asylum at Parsons.

Attorney General Godard permitted the use of his name on the relation of the state of Kansas in this case.

The board of charities is now enjoined, under an order from the probate court of Clay county from proceeding in this matter. The case brought in the supreme court by Parsons asks that this injunction dissolve and that a peremptory writ of mandamus issue to compel the board to proceed.

OUR OWN EXPOSITION.

Secretary Philips Issues a Statement Concerning Appropriations.

Secretary H. M. Philips, of the mid-continental, 1904, exposition, has given out the following:

"At the great mid-continental exposition which is to be held in Topeka in 1904, celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Kansas' organization as a territory, the state will have such an opportunity to put her best foot forward as never before. This will be made a national, and, in fact, an international affair, in which the people of the whole country are expected to participate, and accordingly congress will be called upon by the Kansas exposition to grant it along with an appropriation of not less than a million dollars.

"Of course, Kansas can not ask congress to do this until she has a state fair shown in an unmistakable substantial way through her own legislature a proper appreciation of the undertaking. For this reason, no other, it is expected that every senator and representative elected to the incoming legislature will consider it a patriotic duty to help forward promptly every necessary measure for promoting the exposition. The minimum amount thought of as the state fair is $250,000 or $300,000, and this can be so distributed in the levies covering the next three or four years as to be scarcely appreciable to any taxpayer, either by congress or by the state.

"The exposition undoubtedly is to present Kansas to the rest of the world in such a favorable light as has never been dreamed of even by her own people, but to succeed it must have the loyal, active and constant support of every man and woman in Kansas."

MAJ. ANDERSON HEARS.

Director of Census Writes There Can Be No Recount in Topeka.

Major Anderson has received a reply from W. R. Merriam, the director of the census at Washington. Recently Major Anderson wrote the director of census to the effect that Topeka had not been justly represented in the last census and requesting that a recount be allowed.

Major Anderson explained that if the government did not feel that it should stand the expense that the city of Topeka would. However, the director did not feel that the request could be granted.

The letter from the director has been turned over to Col. Sam Ridges who will probably prepare a revised enumeration of the population. This will be given as much publicity as possible even if the director of the census will not make the substitution.

"Now Don't Get the Blues."

When a cheerful, brave and light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the blues, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way: She has been feeling out of sorts for some time, experiencing severe headache and backache; sleeps very poorly and is exceedingly nervous.

Sometimes she is nearly overcome by faintness, dizziness, and palpitation of the heart; then that bearing-down feeling is dreadfully wearing.

Her husband says, "Now, don't get the blues! You will be all right after you have taken the doctor's medicine." But she does not get all right. She grows worse day by day, until all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake. She loses faith; hope vanishes; then comes the morbid, melancholy, everlasting blues. She should have been told just what the trouble was, but probably she withheld some information from the doctor, who, therefore, is unable to accurately locate her particular illness.

Mrs. Pinkham has relieved thousands of women from just this kind of trouble, and now retains their grateful letters in her library as proof of the great assistance she has rendered them. This same assistance awaits every sick woman in the land.

Mrs. Winifred Allender's Letter.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have received from your wonderful remedies. Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I was a misery to myself and every one around me. I suffered terrible pain in my back, head, and right side, was very nervous, would cry for hours. Menes would appear sometimes in two weeks, then again not for three or four months. I was so tired and weak, could not sleep nights, sharp pains would dart through my heart that would almost cause me to fall. "My mother coaxed me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had no faith in it, but to please her I did so. The first bottle helped me so much that I continued its use. I am now well and weigh more than I ever did in my life."—MRS. WINIFRED ALLENDER, Farmington, Ill.
