Law Enforcement

Much of lawlessness and crime is induced by lack of law enforcement on the part of public officials. The officials are not wholly to blame, for they are the servants of the people, and when popular demand becomes strong enough, either the officials can be made to do their duty or others can be put in their stead. The laws against moonshining were allowed to go unenforced so long that the moonshining business actually invaded the realm of respectable citizens. The price of liquor is so high, and the best citizens have been so indifferent, that many men who have hitherto been considered decent people became mixed up with the traffic. Another violation of law that has never been considered serious because of its non-enforcement is the breaking of the automobile speed regulation. Now war has been declared upon the traffickers in liquor and automobile speeders. Violators are taken in daily in Madison county, and it is to be hoped that full penalties will be inflicted. All loyal citizens should stand by the officials, both county and local, whenever they do their duty. It is time for those who have been breaking either of the above mentioned laws, and who have not yet been apprehended, to make a vow that they will henceforth be law-abiding citizens and cease leading shadowed careers. Fair warning has been given. Every court docket is full of criminal and civil cases. Richmond has appointed a motorcycle policeman who is daily running down the speeders. Forty-four were arrested in one day. The judge is planning to appoint a county motorcycle policeman to make county-wide arrests, and break up the criminal accidents against both life and property. Let the law be enforced.

Fourth of July Celebrations

July 4th should be a sacred day to every American citizen. It is a day when all citizens should forget their differences in politics, in religion and business interests and turn their thoughts with one accord to the greatest benefactor of the human race, the American Government. The FOURTH DAY OF JULY is the birthday of "Uncle Sam," and what relative could be more precious to the heart of every American than this dear old man who as a myth has become so real to us all?

There comes to our attention at this writing two great Fourth of July celebrations that should interest every citizen in Madison and Jackson counties—one at Berea, and the other at McKee. Accounts of these celebrations are found elsewhere in this issue of The Citizen, but we wish to emphasize in this column the importance of these gatherings.

Berea and the surrounding communities are getting ready for the greatest festival that this town ever witnessed. The promoters of the celebration are expecting a parade a mile long with twenty-five or thirty artistic floats representing all the organizations in Berea and one for each of the six organized communities outside of Berea. The band will furnish music and the day will close with a pageant in the Tabernacle. Now is the time for southern Madison county to get together as never before and witness what can be done when all interests are pooled and all are working in unison toward one end.

On the same day McKee will be the scene of a similar rally. The purpose of the Jackson county rally is not merely to celebrate but to launch a great county achievement program. Every community in the county is to be organized on that day for a better county and every phase of community life will have its share of attention in the organization. Jackson county is in the mood to go forward and word is coming from every district that the people are ready to go the limit to give the county the place it should have.

Nothing could be more worthy of patriotic citizens than to reconsecrate themselves to the cause of progress on the birthday of the Nation.

Where The Rippling Warrior Flows

My love she lives in a little cot
With the sunflower and the rose,
With the wooded hill
And the shady rill
Where the rippling Warrior flows.
O I love my love and I love her true,
And the hours with her are all too few;
But I'll come back with the sparkling dew
Where the rippling Warrior flows.

My love she sings like a nightingale,
And she sings her songs to me;
And her sparkling eyes
Glow like the skies
By the weeping willow tree.
O I love my love and I love her true,
And the hours with her are all too few,
But I'll come back with the sparkling dew
By the weeping willow tree.

My love she laughs like the morning time
When the skies are all aglow,
And her radiant face
Is the dwelling place
Of joys that I long to know.
O I love my love and love her true,
And the hours with her are all too few,
But I'll come back with the sparkling dew
For the joys that I long to know.

My love she speaks but a whispered word,
But it makes my heart rejoice,
And her hand in mine
Is a joy divine
When I hear her gentle voice.
O I love my love and I love her true,
And the hours with her are all too few,
But I'll come back with the sparkling dew
When I hear her gentle voice.

My love she sits on a shady seat
By the weeping willow tree.
And my heart leaps up
Like a flowing cup,
For her love is all for me.
O I love my love and I love her true,
And the hours with her are all too few,
But I'll come back with the sparkling dew
For her love is all for me.

EVOLUTION AND DARWINISM

There seems to be considerable confusion in the minds of the opponents of evolution as to the meaning of the terms "evolution" and "Darwinism." Some direct their attacks at Darwinism or Darwinian evolution, implying that there is another variety of evolution that is not so false and dangerous, while others use the words as essentially synonymous and ask the former class, if they reject Darwinian evolution, to define the evolution they accept.

Altho Darwin was by no means the first to advance the theory of evolution, his epoch-making books, "The Origin of Species" and "The Descent of Man," in about the middle of the last century, brought the theory into such prominence that it was known for many years as Darwinism. Scientists at present, however, do not use the term as synonymous with evolution, but for certain ideas which Darwin associated with the theory and which have been to a great extent discarded, but the essential principle of evolution is the same today as it was understood to be by Darwin. He believed that he had found in natural and sexual selection and survival of the fittest an adequate explanation of the causes and methods of the process in organic life. "Darwinism," as used fifty years ago, meant evolution plus this explanation of it, which until near the close of the century was generally accepted. This explanation, as stated above, has now been largely discredited by scientists and the term "Darwinism" stands simply for his theory of natural selection. When prominent scientists say, as did Professor Bateson at Toronto recently, that Darwinism can no longer be maintained, they do not refer at all to the principle of evolution. Professor Bateson is a strong supporter of evolution and so stated in the same address which contained the former statement. And yet such statements about Darwinism are hailed by the anti-evolutionists as evidence of "The Collapse of Evolution," while they fail to quote those authorities on the subject of evolution proper.

The issue is really between the development theory and that of special creation. As applied to man and the human race, the former means that God created the race by a process of development just as He creates men today, and that every individual in the history of the developing race was born and grew up from infancy as men do now. The special creation theory is that the first man was instantaneously created as an adult, with all the powers and capacities of a normal, full-grown man. The only evidence of the truth of the special creation theory is a wrong interpretation of the Bible, while the evidences of the development theory are so varied and overwhelming as to make it practically a closed question in the minds of scholars in all the different branches of physical science, and the recognition of the principle of evolution in the realm of social, mental and moral sciences has contributed greatly to the wonderful progress that has been made in these sciences in recent times.

Biologists today are seeking, not to find new evidences of evolution, but to discover an explanation of the operating causes in the process which shall be more satisfactory than Darwin's natural selection theory.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

At a called meeting of the Woman's Club held at Ladies Hall on Wednesday afternoon, June 21, Mrs. Osborne was elected chairman of the Home Economics Committee for the coming year.

In the report of her attendance at the State Convention of the Women's Clubs held in Hopkinsville in May, the president, Mrs. Best, expressed herself as well pleased with the spirit of the convention and its work. She returned to us fairly bubbling over with enthusiasm, inspiration, and suggestions for club activities for another year. Let us all help her make her dreams come true.

TO PLAY UNCLE SAM

Jim Hockaday whom everybody knows, living out in the Kingston neighborhood, will play the part of Uncle Sam in the Community Pageant on the Fourth of July. Jim is a bully good fellow and will do the part to a fare-you-well. He is noted for his talent along dramatic lines. Jim took his degree at Georgetown College after taking a part of his college course at Centre College. He is one of the best farmers in this section of the state. He takes a special interest in flowers, maintaining a wonderful flower garden at his home in which he does the work himself, in his leisure time.

HUSTLERS HAVE FULL SCHEDULE

Paint Lick Game, June 22
The local Blue Lick Hustlers won over Paint Lick in a one-sided affair. The Hustlers were 11 to 3 up to the ninth. Paint Lick scored 4 runs on errors and Bowman's wildness, caused by trying to pitch wet balls.

Final score by innings:
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Hustlers . . . . . 0 1 0 3 2 0 2 0 3 11
Paint Lick . . . . . 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 0 4 7
Battery for Paint Lick—Lackey, Beasley, Clark. Hustlers—Bowman Kinnard, Umpires, Duerson, Abney.
Whites Station Boys Defeated at Johnson Park, June 24

The locals won a most exciting game from the Whites Station boys here today. There was plenty of slugging done by both teams. R. Dunn made another sparkling good catch on Comb's fly.

Final score by innings:
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Whites Sta. . . . . 0 0 5 0 0 1 0 2 3 11
Hustlers . . . . . 5 0 0 1 0 3 3 2 x 14
Battery for Whites Station—Park Maupin, Harrison. Hustlers—Kinnard, Farmer. Umpire, Jackson.

Double Header at Johnson Park, June 25

The Hustlers divided a double bill here today with Richmond and Waco. Our local boys won over the Richmond boys and came so near winning the second game, right on the last, that the Waco bunch got somewhat nervous. The Waco boys got to Bowman slants for three runs in the first inning. But one game is enough in one day. So he was replaced by Holland, who kept the Waco team in tow for the remainder of the game. The Hustlers tied the score in the seventh. Waco put one more across in the eighth. Hustlers failed to score in their half.

Score by innings:
1 2 3 4 5 6 7
Richmond . . . . . 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1
Hustlers . . . . . 5 0 0 1 2 1 x 9
Battery for Richmond—Rogers and Peyton. Hustlers—Bowman and Kinnard.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8
Waco . . . . . 3 1 0 1 0 0 0 2 7
Hustlers . . . . . 0 0 0 1 0 1 4 0 6
Battery for Waco—Metcalfe and Brotherton. Hustlers—Bowman, Holland and Kinnard. Umpire, Lewis.

The management are compelled from now on to make charge for admission to the grounds, and all will be required to purchase tickets, excepting only ladies, officers and players.

THE PARADE

Many questions have been asked about what is expected in the way of floats in the Fourth of July parade. The committee wishes to announce that there is no set requirement and nothing elaborate is needful. A wagon or automobile decorated with some flags and whatever else occurs to those preparing it and containing people from the neighborhood or organization is all that is sufficient. The one essential thing is that there shall be a plainly inscribed banner telling the neighborhood or organization the float represents. That will be enough to show that you are present and participating in the community picnic. Beyond that it is left to each group to build into their float whatever ideas they may wish to bring out. The parade will be one of the big numbers on the program of the day. Some of the rural neighborhoods will have as many as three floats representing besides the neighborhood, the Sunday-school, the Junior Agriculture Club and other organizations. This is the chance to show that you are entitled to be on our community map.

DON'T FORGET to bring your cup and spoon for the coffee to be served at dinner time on the Fourth of July by the Progress and Echo Clubs.

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. WASHBURN

The Union Church on Friday night gave a farewell reception to Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Washburn at the home of Professor and Mrs. Dodge. As the evening was clear, the large number of friends assembled on the lawn. Howard Hudson was master of ceremonies. In fitting remarks by Professor and Mrs. Dodge the guests were welcomed, and appropriate words of regard were spoken for Mr. and Mrs. Washburn, who have lived during the year in the home of Professor Dodge. Mrs. George Dick, in behalf of the Missionary Society of the Union Church, presented to the Washburns a sum of money to be used in their work in Africa. Pleasant words in reply were spoken by Mr. and Mrs. Washburn, and a song sung in the native African language. Prayer was offered by Mr. Osborne, and after refreshments the company broke up.

Mr. and Mrs. Washburn left on their long journey on Wednesday.

I make a man well dressed—Thrift
