FRANK M. THOMASON, editor of the Georgetown News, was nominated by a majority of the Democratic councilmen-elect as mayor of Georgetown. Mr. Thomason is one of the best known newspaper men in Kentucky and with his excellent paper has always stood for the enforcement of law, even to the point of jeopardizing his own life. His selection to this important office will be to the credit of the city of Georgetown, as those acquainted with the mayor-elect realize the duties imposed will be fearlessly and conscientiously discharged.

The lure of the Thanksgiving turkey made the first break in the Democratic Senate program devised to rush the Administration Currency Bill through that body before the holidays. After working all day on the measure, with but a slim attendance, the conference of Senate Democrats flatly declined to hold a night scheduled session.

Now honest, Mr. Senator, wasn't there something else besides turkey that made the Senators disinclined to hold a night session?

SECRETARY McADOO issued a statement Friday declaring that banks throughout the country reported to be restricting credits in order to meet the provisions of the expected currency law, are making a mistake. He announced that the resources of the treasury will be at the disposal of the banks to aid them in complying with the new law when it is put on the statute books.

DR. J. N. McCOMBACE, the member of the Legislature from Bowling Green, has made some very splendid suggestions to facilitate and expedite legislation. The doctor will make a most useful member of the Legislature if he doesn't try to run it.—Elizabethtown News.

HARRY GIOVANNOLI, formerly of the Danville Advocate, will assume editorial charge of the Lexington Leader Jan. 1. Mr. Giovannoli is a gifted writer and an experienced newspaper man and will keep the Leader up to its present high standard.

If the next Legislature will abolish a lot of the unnecessary offices created at the last session and do away with half of the appropriations usually made by that body, deliberations will not have been in vain.

PROHIBITION forces in Chicago will launch immediately a campaign to vote out the city's saloons in April, 1915, the plans including the election of a "dry" mayor at that time.

As is characteristic of the family, Chapman Grant, grandson of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, has resigned a position to become a Second Lieutenant in the U. S. army.

Croup and Cough Remedy.
Croup is a terrible disease. It attacks children so suddenly they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy at once. There is nothing better in the world than Dr. King's New Discovery. Lewis Chamberlain, of Manchester, O., writes about his children. "Sometimes in severe attacks we were afraid they would die, but since proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup, coughs and colds." So can you. 50c and $1. A bottle should be in every home. At all druggists. H. E. Bucklen & Co., Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Mistakes.

The editor of a newspaper is not infallible and makes mistakes the same as any other human being, but no one knows this better than the editor himself. The nature of an editor's work makes his mistakes more conspicuous.

After pondering over this subject recently, an editor delivers himself of the following, on the errors of editors and others: We have noticed a number of squibs in our exchanges regarding mistakes. These items lead us to believe that other editors besides editors are subject to this malady. The editor's mistakes stand out more conspicuously than other professional men's, because every issue of his paper is an open letter to the public. A fellow may happen along and inform his neighbor that there is a new set of twins at Jones' house, and if later it developed that the twins were a boy, no one pays any attention to the originator of the false rumor. But should it appear in the paper as originally reported, the father will in all probability be down and exchange bullet courtesies with the editor. Again when the village belle chafes to get tied up to some worthless cuss, whose only qualification is that he can chew tobacco and relate suggestive stories, the whole town may with impunity review the past history of the two and its cuts very little ice. But if the editor happens to spell the groom's name with an "o" instead of an "a" and overlooks to correct the fact that the bride's a member in good standing of the Ladies' Aid Society, they both would be insulted and mercilessly flay the editor and his Glimet.

What is strange about the mistakes of a newspaper man is the fact that no matter how many errors he makes in lying about another man's qualities, he never lays himself liable to be punctured with a forty-five or lynched. Indeed, it is a funny old world. Everybody makes mistakes. The only ones who never make them are slumbering in the cemeteries—and it is not unlikely that some of them are there because the doctors also made mistakes. A man often makes a mistake by marrying when he should have taken a post graduate course in how to support himself. A fine woman often is in error when she wantonly throws herself away on some fool who can sing coon songs like Caruso, but couldn't make a noise like a loaf of bread to save his life. A boy makes a mistake when he thinks he knows more than the entire staff of teachers, including the principal of the school.

The world is chock full of mistakes and mistake-makers. If the newspapers man should take the pains to record them all, he'd make the mistake of his life and die on the bed of the press with his shirt sleeves rolled up and his boots on.

Public Sale

I will sell at auction to the highest bidder on Tuesday, December 16th, at 1 o'clock, p. m., on the premises, the following property: My farm of 290 acres, situated five miles from Danville, on the Stanford pike, the same distance from Stanford. DOGS HAVE GOOD MEMORIES

Though Long Periods May Elope, They Do Not Forget Their Former Owners.

Some remarkable instances of dogs' memories are given by a writer in the Scotsman. The late Major Fair of Wells he says, received a Dandie Dinmont terrier puppy from a well known breeder, and kept her until nine months old, when she was sent back. She came into my possession five years later. One day, upon meeting Major Fair on the road, she ran forward, recognizing him and, showing great delight in her happy doggy way, although she had not seen him for over three years.

Some years later (when the dog was nine years of age) I went into a local barber's shop and was surprised to see and hear her excitedly showing signs of meeting a friend which she did by yelping and jumping upon the man's knee and trying to lick his face. This man turned out to be Major Fair's coachman, who had brought her up, and had not seen her for over six years.

Dogs have a mode of concealing recognition if it suits their purpose. A friend of mine sold a terrier to the late Ballie Morrison of Hawick. Upon calling upon the Ballie some three months later my friend was surprised at the dog taking no notice of him, but on his way home at night, when about four miles from Hawick, he happened to look back, and saw the dog following him in a stealthy manner, which he persisted in doing until it reached Jedburgh. It was sent back by carrier next day and never on any future occasion recognized its old master. Surely this was not lapse of memory so much as offended dignity.

REASON IN THE ARGUMENT

When You Come to Think of It, Child Seemed to Have the Right of the Controversy.

At certain seasons a little Sunday school class in New York is visited by a vestryman in the church, who is afflicted with a terrible ail of episcopomposty. He came one day and quizzed the scholars upon their lessons, and at the end of every question he paused as if to say, "A-ha! You don't know that!"

"And now," he demanded, "what is the sixth commandment?"

No one answered. The episcopomposty vestryman turned to the teacher and convicted her with a ponderous "A-ha!"

"Come," he said, "what commandment did Cain break? What commandment was it that he broke when he killed Abel? Can't anyone tell me?"

One scholar beckoned the teacher to her. The teacher listened to the whispered confidence.

"What does the child say?" demanded the vestryman. "If one child knows the answer to that simple question, let me hear it."

"The child says, sir," answered the teacher, not without some trepidation, "that there weren't any commandments when Cain killed Abel."—New York Evening Post.

GEORGETOWN, TEXAS. J. A. Kimbro, says: "For several years past Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been my household remedy for all coughs, colds, and lung troubles. It has given permanent relief in a number of cases of obstinate coughs and colds." Contains no opiates. Refuse substitutes.

MARKETING OF LAMB CROP

Particular Attention Should Be Devoted to Task of Getting Animals in Proper Condition.

Every flock owner should devote particular attention to the handling of his flock in such manner that his crop of lambs will be in proper condition to market when the price is right to sell.

The increasing demand for fancy mutton at times during the year has given flock owners a much better opportunity to sell their lambs than during the ordinary season. The man with a flock of high-class mutton sheep has a field of operation all his own. Today there is a steady demand for all the lambs he can produce at any season of the year and at prices that insure a fair margin of profit.

It is simply a matter of having his lambs in good condition when the markets are not overloaded with the products from the large feed lots. In close proximity to the large cities in the eastern states there is a profitable field for the winter lamb business.

This is a branch of the sheep business that can never suffer because of competition with the large feed lots. The consumers of this class of fancy mutton are the rich people who have money to pay for any article that pleases their palates and who will never accept the feed lot lamb as a substitute for the tender, juicy and palatable lamb that possesses superior qualities.

Another branch of mutton growing that perhaps is better adapted to the average farmer is that of maturing spring lambs for the market. Such lambs are ready for market shortly after the winter lambs are sold. As a general rule such lambs bring more money than those that are held back and finished along toward autumn.

MAKING PROFIT IN TANKAGE

Article is Becoming More and More Popular as Nitrogenous Supplement to Corn in Feeding.

Tankage is becoming more and more popular as a nitrogenous supplement to corn in pork making, says the National Stockman. This is especially true in the middle west, where the packers have pushed its sale. No doubt exists as to its value. At the Ohio experiment station Professor Carmichael placed one 100-pound pig with each two steers being fed corn. The pigs found a full feed of corn in the droppings from the steers. One-half of the pigs were fed in addition to the corn one-third pound each of tankage per day. The increased gains over the pigs fed no tankage amounted to 162 pounds for each 100 pounds of tankage fed. At present prices of hogs this means a big profit on tankage fed. Tankage contains about 50 per cent. crude protein and should be bought now for about $40 per ton.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Clover is the best all-round hay for sheep.

There is no profit in killing a pig before it is fit.

Overfat sheep are not the best for breeding purposes.

Bring the hogs in from the yards, save on warm, sunshiny days.

Many horses are permanently injured by having all the hay they can eat.

Some one has very properly called the sheep the animal with the golden hoof.

Give the ram about one pound of bran daily with all the green food he can eat.

It is cruel to compel active farm horses to go for weeks in the winter without exercise.

It never pays to breed a poor sheep, no matter how good a sire you have. Breed up, not down.

Keep the brood sows and the young pigs selected for breeders separate from the fattening stock.

NEW IDEA IN MUSICAL PROGRAMS

THE FAMOUS SCHUMANN QUINTET.

LAMPERT EDUCATES PEOPLE IN AUDIENCE

Makes Them Prefer Classical Selections to Rag-Time.

The company that has been the greatest musical success and the sensation of the Chautauqua season will give a concert here this season when Karl A. Lampert and his Schumann Quintet of players appear for their engagement. This company presents "symphonic concerts" with a company of only five musicians—each a fine artist. How they do it is too long a story to print here. A part of the symphonic effect is secured with a specially constructed reed organ that the company carries.

Karl Lampert, the organizer and originator of this company and style of program, is several kinds of a genius. He is neither pretty nor graceful, but, far more important, he is sympathetic and sincere. He and his players play with their souls; they play reverently. And Lampert loves his audience as well as his music. As Ralph Parlette says: "He treats his audience as though it were a few close friends he had invited into his room to share his Christmas candy." For nine years he played first violin in the Theodore Thomas Orchestra of Chicago. He was born near Dusseldorf, Germany, and studied under Jacobson and Ruchy. His assistants are all genuine artists, most of them Theodore Thomas Orchestra players.

To give a detailed description of their program would, to a certain extent, take away the element of surprise and destroy its unique features. It is said by those who have heard
