Four Weeks Off and Democrats Assured of a Representative Ticket.

Hert and Searcy Can't Excite Sympathy for Morrow and His Wrongs.

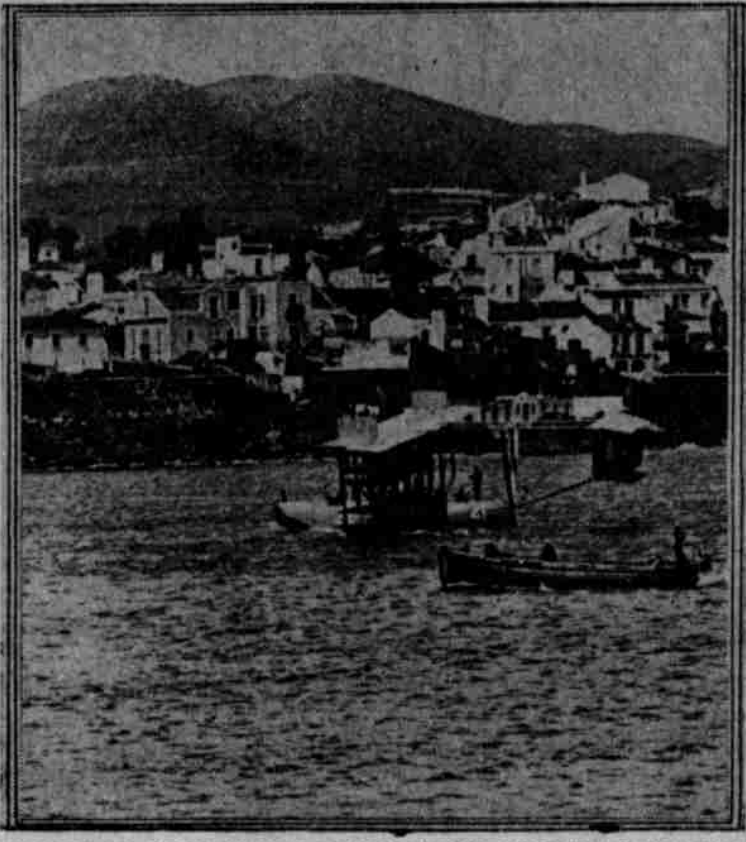

Machinations of Bingham Press Draws Rebuke from Teachers and the Press.

A STRONG LOCAL TICKET.

The State political races for both parties are now made up and with the primary four weeks off added interest is being shown. The only contest in the Republican ranks is that for the nomination of Attorney General. George W. Moore, a leader of long standing in the G. O. P., refused to bow to the dictates of the Hert-Searcy machine and will buck the machine in the August primary against Charles L. Dawson, who was the choice of the hand-picked at the Lexington convention. But putting gloom into Jolly on primary days isn't worrying the Republican machine leaders half as much as the sagging boom of Morrow, the candidate for Governor, and Bosses Hert and Searcy are at their wits' end trying to devise some remedy to save the fast slipping oratorical star. The Republican machine leaders opened their campaign with the piffling plea of "right off in the wrong" in 1915, and sat back to see how indignant the voters of Kentucky would become when they thought of the wrongs of "Howdy Ed, the candidate for Governor, and his friends." It didn't take the Democratic press and voters throughout the State very long to get the number of the Courier-Journal and Times as to the effect of these papers to knife the Democratic ticket in the interest of Morrow. The toadying to Republican Boss Hert in the Bingham press was first tipped in the columns of the Kentucky Irish American, and as proof conclusive that the tip circulated widely the action of the Kentucky Educators' Association is sufficient. The Bingham press tried to bluff Gov. Black and failed; then tried to start trouble between the Denhardt, Carroll and Black camps and failed. The last effort was to bluff the Educational Association into adopting resolutions that would serve as campaign material for Hert and the Bingham machine. This plot also failed and the Times became furious and threatens to never publish any more news about this important gathering. The editor of the Bingham press, called in the Shelbyville Record, called in which he asked if the Courier-Journal and Times thought so much of Denhardt's proposed reforms why didn't they support his candidacy in trying to create a smooth sailing for Hert and Morrow in fooling no one but themselves.

The State Democratic candidates are pleased with the situation and are making strenuous campaigns for the primary. Some of the most active ones are W. H. Shanks for Lieutenant Governor, Henry Bosworth and J. P. W. Brouse for Auditor, Alvin Steger for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, and the other might be said that all of the Fifth district seems united for the popular Owen county man. Prof. R. S. Eubank, for Superintendent of Public Schools, is going strong, and the same applies to Ryland C. Musick, of Jackson, for Attorney General. Mr. Musick was the guest of the Shelby Democratic Club in this city last week and brought down the house with a stirring address. Local Democracy can well afford to be proud of the ticket selected for the general election, all of whom are to be nominated in the primary without opposition with the exception of one or two races. This is an indication of party harmony and a harbinger of good results in November. Democrats of all factions have shown a willingness to fall in behind Chairman Frank McGrath, who they have confidence in his ability to pilot them to victory. The nominees for State Senator are Charles Knight in the Thirty-seventh district and Lawrence Mackey in the Twenty-third. For Legislature—Kendrick Lewis, Fifty-first district; J. Robert Muhs, Fifty-second; Ben C. Beckman, Aughanke, Fifty-third; L. Sherley Cunniff, Fifty-fourth; Judge Muir Weisinger, Fifty-fifth; Ben Sachs, Fifty-sixth; Henry Kraft, Fifty-seventh; and James Linton, Fifty-eighth. For County Commissioners, Dr. H. E. Meckling, Joseph Nevin and Jas. Caldwell.

The General Council nominees are R. H. Alexander, Fred W. Hardwick, Jas. P. Gregory, G. L. Watkins, Dr. J. B. Gilbert, Thos. J. Campbell, J. W. Miller, Gabe J. Felsenthal, B. J. Campbell, Jr., E. J. Cooney, Joe Overberg and Wallace McKay. For Councilmen—First ward, Clem. Fox; Second ward, Wm. Karst, Jos. A. Young; Third ward, V. K. Ecker, Leo J. Sandman; Fourth ward, Wm. D. Meyers, John Young, Fifth ward, Arthur Kaitenbacher, Jack Brown, Sixth ward, Les Hamilton, Sam Loreh; Seventh ward, E. S. Courtney, E. J. Parker; Eighth ward, T. J. Morrow, John H. Hennessy; Ninth ward, John Ar-

MASS FOR BOY SCOUTS.

The Associated Press correspondent writes from Rome that on the site where once Christians were offered as the prey of wild beasts to amuse the Roman populace in the Roman coliseum where Caesar sacrificed the faithful to satisfy a pagan lust, a Christian service has at last been held. It was celebrated recently in memory of the Boy Scouts of the Italian army who had done messenger service at the front and were killed in action. The immense ruin of pagan days was filled with people. Detachments of Boy Scouts occupied the central part of the building, a place in pagan days used for the arena. The Scouts were decked in their uniforms and carried rifles instead of the sword and spear of the ancient Roman gladiator. After the mass Monsignor Bartolomasi delivered a stirring sermon in which he drew attention to the change in human thought which was able to convert this pagan amphitheater into a Christian temple.

AGED BISHOP DIES.

HEITZ-ESTERLE.

One of the prettiest of summer weddings was that of Miss Edna Hertz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hertz, to Arthur Esterle, which took place Thursday morning, 8:30, June 26, at St. Brigit church, with nuptial mass, the Rev. Father Jansen officiating. The church was artistically decorated with palms, ferns and large bouquets of white hydrangeas. The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. Miss Lillian Keefe was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant.

SANG FIRST MASS.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock the Rev. James Willett, who was ordained by Archbishop Glennon in St. Louis, celebrated his first solemn mass in this diocese at St. James church, Bardstown road and Edenside, where his brother, the Rev. E. E. Willett, is pastor. Assisting the celebrant on this solemn occasion were the Rev. John T. Hill, pastor of St. Ann's church, and the Rev. Celestine Brey, pastor of Holy Cross church. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Daniel A. Driscoll, secretary to Bishop O'Donnoghue. An augmented choir furnished special music and the altar and sanctuary were brilliant with lights and flowers. Father James Willett, who was ordained for this diocese, will receive his appointment shortly.

SHATTERED

Sherman's Political Trick Transparent and Insinuations Rejected With Indignation.

Ludicrous to Intimate That Pope Benedict Seeks World Control.

Seeks Only the Freedom of the Papacy Itself From Political Domination.

WELCOMES A PROMISING PEACE

We should have been happy to be able to take it for granted that the League of Nations, both in itself and in the arguments advanced for or against it, was a non-partisan issue. But Senator Sherman, for one, has shattered this dream. He knew, of course, that the league is President Wilson's one surpassing ambition, and he was aware also that President Wilson's solid phalanx are principally in the Democratic South where the Catholic church has a comparatively meagre representation. Inject a doubt into the Southern mind that the league is partial to Catholics and you have dealt the worst possible blow both to the league and to the President. This is what Senator Sherman did by his speech in the Senate. Maybe, however, that the solid South is so firmly grounded in its faith in Wilson, and the Senator's political trick means to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe as has just horrified the world with its rivers of human blood, its tears of widows and orphans, its famines and pestilence, we should be shocked if the head of the Catholic church were not among the first to welcome a promising scheme of insuring a lasting peace. No need, then, of supposing that there was a hypocritical twinkle in the Pope's eye when he declared his approval of the league. It is ludicrous to intimate that the Vatican is playing a game for the political domination of the world, when there was a time when all Europe was Catholic and the Pope, as head of a united Christendom, was looked up to as the natural arbiter in disputes between kings and peoples. The time is long past when the pope over a century ago, in a speech, an English writer who has a grievance against Benedict XV, because, in the recent world war, he did not act up to the splendid moral courage which great predecessors of his, the Middle Ages, Benedict XV did the best he could under changed circumstances. But is it his fault that he is no longer the acknowledged arbiter of Christendom?

If the Pope still maintains temporal power over a very limited territory, it is precisely to safeguard the Papacy against the suspicion of being mixed up in politics. Were the Pope the subject of any earthly power, there would be a time when all Europe was Catholic and the Pope, as head of a united Christendom, was looked up to as the natural arbiter in disputes between kings and peoples. The time is long past when the pope over a century ago, in a speech, an English writer who has a grievance against Benedict XV, because, in the recent world war, he did not act up to the splendid moral courage which great predecessors of his, the Middle Ages, Benedict XV did the best he could under changed circumstances. But is it his fault that he is no longer the acknowledged arbiter of Christendom?

His Holiness Pope Benedict XV, has recommended the Children's Crusade to the Apostleship of Prayer as the general intention for the month of July. He urges the faithful to make extraordinary efforts, by prayer and good counsel, to enlist all Catholic children under the banner of the League of the Sacred Heart, because the little ones are especially dear to our Divine Lord, and because He knows that their association in this sanctifying confraternity during the tender and impressionable years of life will have a salutary effect upon their mature careers. "Suffer little children to come unto Me," are the words of our Savior himself. The Holy Father now appeals to us to gratify this loving desire of our Lord. Let us unite in prayer with the Holy Father and do our utmost to promote the Children's Crusade during this month.

BISHOPS PROTEST.

Irish Bishops assembled at Maypooth last week adopted a resolution which says in part: "We have the rule of the sword, which is utterly unsuited to a civilized nation and supremely provocative of disorder and chronic rebellion. There have been acts of violence which we have deplored and they have sprung from this

CAUSE ALONE.

For trifles which in any other country would be within the rights of all men, Irish people have been sent to jail under savage sentences. Enormous sums are raised annually by overtaxation, without any attempt beyond empty promises to provide a suitable scheme of reconstruction and development. In the interests of peace, order and morality this aggressive domination by England should stop, once and for all. The declaration recommends that the Irish follow Belgium's example of patience, "in like trials," and ends by expressing "our profound gratitude for the priceless service done Ireland and civilization by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States. The clergy and people of every denomination in America are nobly espousing the cause of Ireland at this turning point in her history." Cardinal Logue presided at the meeting and all the Bishops were present except Archbishop Walsh, who is ill.

Miss Corinne Jansen, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and Frank W. Gainey, of Buffalo, was the best man. The ushers were Joseph Kirchner and Raymond Kirchner. Rebuff Given Carsonism in East Antrim by Independent Unionists.

Sir Edward's Man Badly Beaten in Most Strenuous Political Contest.

Will the Orange Factionist Chief Keep His Threat and Resign?

THERE WERE EXCITING SCENES

Carsonism has been given a severe rebuff in East Antrim. The result of the by-election for the seat vacated by the resignation of Lieut. Col. McCalmont was declared as below: G. B. Hanna (Ind. U.) . . . 8,714 Maj. W. A. Moore (Carsonite) 7,549 Legg (Liberal) . . . 1,778 Ind. Unionist majority . . . 1,165 The return of Hanna is a serious blow to Carsonism. During the contest—one of the most strenuous in the political history of Ulster—a great amount of bitterness was disclosed between the official and democratic wings of the Ulster Unionist group. Hanna's challenge was against the supremacy of the East Antrim Constitutional Association which, he held, had no representative authority for the selection of his opponent and the rejection of himself. As an Orangeman he objected to "a stranger" chosen without regard to the wishes of the electorate which, as the figures show, is predominantly Unionist, being put forward by the clique, as he called it, which spoke on behalf of Sir Edward Carson. He did not, however, discard Sir Edward; indeed he and his friends submitted their views to that gentleman in London, as "arbitrator" between the parties, gave the advice, "Resign the return of Major Moore," and subsequently allowed members of his party to announce in the constituency that if Hanna were returned he might have to reconsider his position. Moreover, they insisted that in such event he would resign from the Ulster leadership, and in any case they said, Hanna would not be recognized by the Ulster party. Personalities were freely indulged in at the meetings of the respective parties, and at some there were exciting scenes, with heckling, while stones and rotten eggs were features at gatherings addressed by Major Moore. Many Orange lodges and sections of the Unionist labor organization supported Hanna, who was accused of being a Sinn Feiner and of wishing to destroy the Carson party. On the other hand, he roundly asserted that efforts had been made to induce him to stand down by offers of a money sum and appointment as an R. M., and on one occasion he admitted that there was a prospect, if he were returned, of his surrendering his practices as a Ballymena solicitor and entering a business career in London, where constant residence would enable him the better to serve the constituency. Major Moore was largely commended for his service in the war with the Canadians and as a winner of the D. S. O. and a resolution in his favor was passed by the County Antrim Grand Orange Lodge, which, by the way, Hanna is a member. One of Hanna's platform statements was that Sir Edward Carson told him he knew nothing of Major Moore, but that a friend in Donegal had asked him to get "our Willie" a seat. Mr. Legg's campaign was conducted without chairman or organization in the regular sense of the word, but his progressive views on Irish government, as the figures indicate, with considerable acceptance for an area like East Antrim, which touches on the Unionist suburbs of Belfast and embraces several of the seaside resorts on the coast from the city round to the west.

On the polling day posters were displayed with the words: "Moore and the Union. Hanna and Dis-Union. Which?" The poll was very exhaustive. It may be recalled that Lieut. Col. McCalmont at the general election defeated a Sinn Fein candidate by over 14,000 votes. After the declaration, which took place at the County Court, Belfast, Hanna, who was "chaired" from the steps of the building by an enthusiastic crowd, said he hoped that when he went to Westminster he would so conduct himself that the people of East Antrim would have the same pride in him as he would have in representing them. Addressing a meeting of his friends, Major Moore said that, although beaten, he was not disgraced. They all knew the principles he had fought for, and he was sure they would not be misled. Mr. Legg not having obtained an eighth of the total poll, forfeits his deposit.

POET PRIEST HERE.

Rev. Father Henry B. Tierney, the American poet priest and friend of the late Joyce Kilmer, was in the city this week visiting friends and gathering material for a new volume of Southern lyrics. Father Tierney lives at Trenton, Mo., near the birthplace and home of Gen. Jack Pershing and Ethan Crowder. He was formerly a writer on the old St. Joseph papers and is now a regular contributor to the Kansas City Star and many leading periodicals. Years ago Father Tierney wrote several poems for the Kentucky Irish American.

DAUGHTERS OF ISABELLA.

Newport Circle, Daughters of Isabella, had its list of members materially increased Sunday, when about sixty candidates were initiated into the organization. A team from Mother Theodosia Circle, Indianapolis, directed by Mrs. James Roca, did the honors. The occasion was honored by the presence of Mrs. Elizabeth Trent, Deputy State Regent of Indiana. While organized but a short time, Newport Circle is rapidly forging to the front and gives every evidence of soon ranking among the leading societies in the Ohio Valley.
