THE Louisville Dispatch thinks there is one thing the United States should require Spain to do—give up Weyler. He ought to be turned over to the Cubans. There is no room in this country for him.

AS THE time for the Democratic convention, which meets in Cynthia, draws near, the interest throughout the Ninth Congressional district grows. Hon. Walter Sharp, of Owingsville, it has been hinted, will be a candidate before the convention, and some claim that he is the strongest man the party can nominate. On the other hand the friends of Mr. J. N. Kehoe, of this county, say he will be the only formidable candidate, though he has not yet announced himself and it is not certain that he will make the race.

BRADLEY RED HOT.

He Addresses a Scathing Letter To Colonel Castleman, Who Criticises the Governor's Management of Troops.

War has broken out between Governor Bradley and Colonel John B. Castleman, commanding the First Kentucky Regiment. Castleman is understood to have made remarks reflecting upon the Governor's management of the troops. Bradley has written a letter in reply in which he says:

"I may be allowed to say it would have been more in keeping with the qualities of a soldier had you plainly stated, in your open letter, to whom you referred, and this you might have done before you left the State.

"Your statement is untrue, and I can not imagine its inspiration, unless, indeed, it may be that my unfortunate failure to recognize in you the proper material for Brigadier General has been the cause of my undoing. If this, indeed, be the fruitful source of all my woe, I beg you to remember that I have been actuated by no ill will, but have only failed through want of proper comprehension to observe your true greatness."

The letter is lengthy, Governor Bradley goes on to deny into the charges of mismanagement in terms at once sarcastic and scathing. He says that Colonels Gaither, Collier and Smith have not complained, but that he (Castleman) has, "doubtless because you thought you were the only man in Kentucky who could command a regiment thousands of miles away and at the same time command the same regiment at home."

Mr. Pugh Feels Certain.

The Courier-Journal says that while the race for the Republican nomination in this district is generally considered close it is said Mr. Pugh feels no fear over the outcome. Speaking of the matter the other day he said he was satisfied he would be re-nominated and re-elected for a third term. When asked about an interview which he had with the President and was alleged to have remarked that he could not be re-elected, Mr. Pugh said: "I told the President that Cleveland carried the Ninth district in 1892 by over 2,000 majority; that I was elected in 1894 and re-elected in 1896, and if nominated this time could again win in November. I also said there was some opposition against me growing out of the distribution of Federal offices, but that I was, nevertheless, certain of the nomination."

Suffering humanity should be supplied with every means possible for its relief. It is with pleasure we publish the following: "This is to certify that I was a terrible sufferer from yellow jaundice for over six months, and was treated by some of the best physicians in our city and all to no avail. A LETTER FROM THE EDITOR.

'Squire Marsh Tells of the Visit to Walkerville, Where the Bulletin Representatives Sample the Celebrated "Canadian Club."

ON BOARD "CITY OF MACKINAC,"
July 3, 1898.

Kentucky editors made their first trip to Canada Saturday afternoon, and if any of them ever had occasion to "skip out from home," he'll most likely make a break for Walkerville.

Walkerville treated the newspaper people so royally yesterday that they'll not forget it soon. All agree that the press association was never more hospitably welcomed and more elegantly entertained than it was by Hiram Walker & Sons on the occasion of this visit.

After sweltering in the heat at Cincinnati and on the way up, the press gang were pretty well fagged out when they struck the lake breezes at Toledo at noon Saturday. The run up was made over the C. H. and D. road, and was as enjoyable as it could be in such a hot spell. The train officials and the road's clever representative, Mr. Park Cowan, made things as pleasant as possible under the circumstances. The latter was untiring in his attentions, and had electric cars in waiting at the Toledo depot to convey the crowd to the Detroit and Cleveland's palatial steamer "City of Mackinac." The trip from Toledo to Detroit gave the crowd a slight foretaste of what they are enjoying to-day. The delightful breezes were a most welcome change from the sweltering heat.

It was after 3 o'clock when the steamer rounded in at the Detroit docks, discharged all her passengers except the editors and their ladies, and then steamed across to Walkerville, three miles distant. Some of the editors had thought of getting off at Detroit, but they took the hint from Morningstar and remained aboard; and it was fortunate they did. The steamer landed the crowd on a pretty lawn in front of a large three-story brown stone building. The building and its surroundings,—clean gravel and stone walks, the pretty lawn with patches of lovely flowers, with a crowd of sturdy Canadians, in white flannel suits, off at one side engaged in a ball game, (bowling on the green), and an orchestra discoursing sweet music at the opposite end of the lawn, suggested a summer resort, but such was not the case. The building contains the general offices of Hiram Walker & Sons, proprietors of the famous "Canadian Club" distillery. The establishment is an immense one that puts to shame our Kentucky distillers. They can get a good many points from Walker & Sons. The various buildings of the plant are brick surrounded with drives and walks, while within all is scrupulously neat and clean. The crowd were conducted into one of the bonded

A JOYFUL MEETING.

Father and Son Brought Together Under Unusual Circumstances, After Being Separated Sixteen Years.

There was a pathetic meeting between a father and son in Maysville the other evening, they not having seen each other for sixteen years. It took place in Mr. W. A. Schatzmann's saloon on East Second street. About nine o'clock a young man, a stranger, walked into the place and bracing up to the bar where several others were indulging in their favorite drinks, he called for a lemonade. After the astonished barkeeper had recovered from his surprise at such an unusual order, he hastened to execute same.

"Young man, why don't you drink something that will do you some good?" said a bystander, at the same time holding aloft in admiration his half-finished glass of lager.

"Well, sir, I don't know that it has ever benefitted you any," retorted the other.

This riled the elder speaker and led him to ask questions which developed the fact that he was talking to his own son. The latter had heard while in Chicago that his long-absent sire was in Cincinnati in the show business and thought he would run down and see him, but on his arrival there he learned that he had gone to this city, where the son followed. He had recognized his father as soon as he saw him, but wished to test the latter's parental instinct. There was joyful times in the old town that night.

warehouses and given a look at over 20,000 barrels of "Canadian Club." Near by stand four other warehouses, containing in all nearly 100,000 barrels of whiskey. This gives an idea of the extent of the firm's business. After taking a look at the buildings, the editors were escorted to the lawn near the landing where seated in the coal shade they were served with refreshments; sandwiches, salads, coffee, iced tea, ices, cakes, punch, champagne, &c. The stars and stripes and England's flag floated side by side, and the national airs of the two countries rendered by the orchestra were the signal for repeated cheers. Second Vice President Bob Brown in a witty speech expressed the thanks and the appreciation of the editors for the hospitality and elegant treatment accorded them. One of the Messrs. Walker responded and the affair wound up by the party grouping themselves on the lawn and allowing an artist to take a snap shot photo of them.

But little was done at the business meeting of the association at the Palace Hotel, Cincinnati, Friday afternoon. At the close the Citizens' Committee in charge of the arrangements for the approaching National encampment of the G. A. R. to be held in the Queen City soon took the editors in tow and in the palace electric cars "Arctic," "Atlantic," "Baltic" and "Pacific" given a trolley ride over the city, taking in the hilltops and the Zoo, where they enjoyed a spread. Col. W. B. Melish was in charge, and left nothing undone to insure his guests a pleasant time. That evening most of the crowd visited the Lagoon as the guests of Senator Goebel, who took advantage of the opportunity and added many to his list of admirers and friends by the genial and hearty manner in which he welcomed them.

Coming up Saturday afternoon a business meeting of the association was held, at which Colonel Henry E. Woolfolk, of the Danville Advocate, was elected President, Judge John Weston, of the Williamstown Courier, First Vice President, and Col. Bob Brown, of the Louisville Times, Second Vice President. Bob Morningstar was re-elected Secretary for the third consecutive term. The annual dues were raised from $1 to $2.

Our party numbers 135. Kentucky editors have never enjoyed an outing more thoroughly than they are the present one. They are indebted to Secretary Morningstar for many good things, but when he arranged the present trip he overtopped 'em all. The '98 outing will ever remain a most pleasant memory.

J. L. BAILEY, of Hopkinsville, who so mysteriously disappeared from his home in May, has been heard from. His wife received a telegram from Santiago, stating that one of her husband's legs had been shot off in battle there, and that as soon as he was able to travel he would be sent home. Upon leaving Hopkinsville in May he went to Tennessee and enlisted, and was sent to the front with the first troops from that State.

Friday's Cash Sale.

CHILDREN'S HOSIERY.

Dozens of odd lots and odd sizes have accumulated during the season and must be cleared out at once. Nothing but a bargain price, and that a remarkable low one, can make odd lots desirable. For full appreciation of the price cut on these goods, all we ask is an examination of them, the closer and more critical, the better—they'll stand the test of sharpest scrutiny. They are safe, comfortable, well-made stockings for the little feet. Plaids predominate. Red is in high favor with other colors in soft blends that are most pleasing. Some with silk clocking, all in fast colors. Two grades as follows: 35c. for 19c., 50c. for 35c.

D. HUNT & SON.

AN AWFUL ACCIDENT.

A Poor Fellow is Knocked From a C. and O. Freight Train and Will Probably Lose a Leg.

This morning as C. and O. freight train No. 75, westbound, was slowing up at the station, the jar caused by the sudden application of the brakes threw a tramp, who had been riding on the bumpers between the cars under the wheels and he sustained a compound fracture of the right leg.

The poor fellow, who gave his name as Robert Johnson and his home at Richmond, Va., was carried to the freight house and Dr. Reed summoned, the company's regular physician being absent. The patient was made as comfortable as possible, and on examination the surgeon expressed the opinion that the member would have to be amputated, though at latest accounts this step had not been taken. He was taken to the alms house where he is receiving every attention.

THE SON WENT THROUGH

Without Father's Aid, and Went the Sire One Better on the Father and Son Business.

[Exchange.]

Adj. Gen. Corbin has just passed through an experience in nepotism, or the opposite of it, which is worth telling. He has a son who is old enough to have a commission, and who was fired with military ardor when the war came. Young Corbin suggested that he thought he could serve his country as well as some of the other "sons." The Adjutant General said that might be, but he couldn't get a commission through him. If the young man wanted to go to war he would have to find his own way. The young man did find a way. He went out as a newspaper correspondent. The other day the Adjutant General received a telegram from his son asking him to read a certain dispatch from Tampa. The Adjutant General sent out for the paper, and, with emotions to which he has not yet given expression, read a well written and vigorously expressed description of the mistakes in connection with the departure of the Shafter expedition. The young critic didn't spare anybody, but pointed out wherein the business of the war department might be much better managed. It is a question in army circles whether the young man hasn't seen the old man and gone him one better on the "father and son business."

MOSES MASTERS, of Nicholasville, had a folding bed to close upon him, breaking his collar bone and otherwise badly injuring him.
