Stored at the post-office at Frankfort, Kentucky as second class mailable matter.

GEORGE A. LEWIS,

Editor and Publisher.

FRANKFORT, JANUARY 6, 1883.

Come in and settle up that little back difference you owe on the ROUNDABOUT for last year, and let's start square with the new. For this year we can furnish you the ROUNDABOUT and weekly Courier-Journal for $2.00 or the ROUNDABOUT and weekly Louisville Commercial for $1.80. In addition we will give to each subscriber a book containing valuable information concerning the horse with remedies for the various diseases that animal is heir to. By either of these arrangements you will get all your county news as well as foreign information for about the price of one paper. Come in and let's talk about it.

The old Board of School Trustees have made good officers. They have discharged their duties faithfully and impartially. No teacher has been placed in the school on account of favoritism, each one having won her place by a competitive examination. Why not re-elect them? It will be to the interest of the school. There has been less complaint of them than any board we have had for some time.

Saturday a negro boy went to the residence of a gentleman in South Frankfort, who has recently removed to this city, and told the lady of the house that a neighbor wished to borrow her brass preserving kettle, which was given him without question. Upon inquiry of the neighbor, who the negro said sent him, the lady learned to her surprise that he had played a sharp trick on her and had stolen the kettle. It was found Monday at the second hand store, where he had sold it.

Master Frank Bull, son of Mr. S. C. Bull, was carelessly handling a twenty-two caliber target rifle, Saturday afternoon, cocked it placed the muzzle on his foot, held it by the stock and was walking about the room in that way, when he was suddenly made aware that the gun was loaded by its going off and the ball lodging in his foot, between the third and fourth toes. Fortunately no bones were broken. The bullet was extracted from the bottom of his foot, and he is doing well.

Officers Hyde, Norman and Stephens gambled a couple of white men named Capito and Warfield, Monday afternoon, while engaged in a game of cards in the stable at the Valley Mills. The money was up one of the men "turned down a spade." Officer Hyde "made it clubs," and as the officers held a "full hand" the boys had to "put" up to Judge Saeed, who requested a contribution of twenty dollars each. Capito gave bond but Warfield had to play a "tomb hand" in the work house.

A negro woman known as Big Liz set fire to the work-house Monday afternoon and came near burning the tomatoes to death. In order to save themselves they tore a hole in the wall, ran out and surrendered to the keeper. Liz is now in castle Sheehan, and when the present term of the Circuit Court is ended, will go into retirement at the foot of High street for a term of years.

Monday evening Richard Lynch, son of Mr. Dan Lynch, had a small bottle of gun powder in his hand when one of his play fellows lit a match and dropped it into the bottle, causing the powder to explode. The bottle was broken his hands were cut and a piece of glass struck him in the forehead, inflicting a very painful wound.
