

CONFIDENCE.

New Yorkers Not Panicky Over the Cholera in Their Midst.

The Element of Confidence in the Constituted Authorities is Present.

The Individual is Supplementing the Official Labor in Fighting the Plague—Frosts Are Near and Cholera Must Go—Four Cases on the Bohemia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The metropolis awoke Friday morning to a cloudless sky and a crisp, windy atmosphere. These weather conditions while cholera is near become daily an element in the news situation.

Frost is not far away. The days are already having chills by night and fevers at noontide. The crisp air also braces and brightens the population against fright or that nervous apprehension that in its results invites the approach of any disorder.

There has not as yet in any locality of the city been reported any symptoms of hysterical panic. Even neighbors to those who have been stricken are complacent and accept the situation philosophically, if not even carelessly.

The element of confidence in constituted authority is present. Daily those who read the prints are learning how firmly and closely the various municipal officials are co-operating.

The street cleaning department is quickened in its efforts, and the people observe the results daily in the renewed and more careful scouring of the streets. Lower portions of the city are being attended to in a manner so thorough as to be a novelty to the dwellers thereabouts.

The odor of disinfectants is upon the air. The pungent, clean smell of chlorides comes from unexpected localities. The individual is supplementing the official effort, and in homes, offices and business places generally precautionary measures are evident.

Shoulder to shoulder with the health board stand the police, with Byrnes in the forefront. Doctor and policeman for the time being are brothers. They travel in pairs and groups.

The hospital authorities have slit open their armor of hide-bound apathy and are alert and co-operative. The coroners, too, are grimly active or ready for activity.

All vacations in the board are this morning declared off, and the entire staff will wait in constant readiness for prompt action if unhappily they are needed.

The funds for protection are daily piling up, and people who read the morning papers are reassured. In one fund, that of the chamber of commerce, is the sum of $150,000 over $63,000 of the total having come in Thursday.

The poor who read feel their anxiety lessened. The rich, they see, are alert with their means and this counts for good to the poor more than to the wealthy.

It is an element of strength in the situation. Then behind all local effort is the proved strength of the state and its blunt and homespun executive. He has said he "don't care for votes lost or won by any action he may take in a case like the present cholera trouble."

The people all have read of this, they know what he has done and they feel more than ever reassured. Dr. Byron visited the Bohemia at quarantine. He reports that there were 11 deaths at sea, and that four cases were removed to Swinburne Island Friday morning.

He reports that those who died on board the vessel died of gastro-intestinal trouble.

WASHINGTON ASTIR. Anxiety About the Sanitary Condition of the White Lot, Headquarters for the G. A. R.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The cholera visitation to New York city has made a stir in a good many places. Washington, which is reported to be in good sanitary condition, has been serene, and is so still; but there is a vigilant eye out. Secretary Charles Foster sent for Commissioner Douglass Thursday and had a talk with him on the cholera subject.

The secretary's special anxiety was about the sanitary condition of the White Lot, where there are temporary sleeping quarters for about 25,000 G. A. R. men. The commissioners report that everything is in good condition, and ample arrangements will be made for the care of those who may be sick from any cause.

The question of instituting a medical inspection of passengers arriving from New York is under serious consideration, but the authorities are cautious and deliberative on the subject on account of the complications which would arise in the rush of Grand Army visitors.

A Child Murderer Arrested. LONDON, Sept. 17.—A wholesale system of child murder was uncovered here Friday. In the house of Mary Ann Hall the police found a trunk in which were the remains of several bodies. Lime and chemicals sufficient for the disposal of hundreds of bodies were found. Mary Ann, who is a midwife, was arrested while throwing the body of an infant into the river.

EVERY woman will be encouraged, says The Courier-Journal, by the fact that a woman in Louisville, on looking under the bed, discovered a man. The sex has been scoffed at too long because of this highly necessary precaution of looking under the bed. A woman may look every night of her life without finding a masculine intruder below the mattress, but some woman somewhere will find him, we may rest assured. Let every member of the feminine sex resolve not to relax her vigilance.

WHEN THE COLD WAVE CAME.

He was sweltering in the city, And the air was sharp and chill, And she wrote him loving letters— They were something like a score, And she told him over and over, That she thought it just a shame, That he waited in the city Till The Cold Wave Came.

But he answered her demurely, That he couldn't leave the town; He was overruled with business— Did the dear, devoted dame, But so long as she was happy, And the children were the same, Why, he'd sweeter in the city Till The Cold Wave Came.

Oh! the morning broke in showers, And the air was sharp and chill, And the sweetest note was ringing, In the glen and on the hill, And she thought she'd just surprise him, And a bottle on the right, Where he labored long and lonely, Till The Cold Wave Came.

And she hurried from the seashore, By the swiftest train that ran, To her home within the city, To surprise this lonely man, By the light from out the window, On the door she read the name— In she stepped, and oh! so softly, When The Cold Wave Came.

And oh! she did surprise him, Where he reveled in the night, With a poker deck before him, And a bottle on the right, And his wicked cronies 'round him, And the chandeliers aflame— And 'twas warm enough he found it, When The Cold Wave Came.

PREVENTION VS. CURE.

No One Who Obeys These Instructions Need Have Any Fear of Cholera.

OFFICE CITY PHYSICIAN, MAYSVILLE, September 17th, 1892.

HOW CAUGHT.

Healthy persons "catch" cholera by taking into their systems through the mouth, as in their food or drink, or from their hands, knives, forks, plates, tumblers, clothing, &c., the germs of the disease, which are always present in the discharges from the stomach and bowels of those sick with cholera.

Thorough cooking destroys the cholera germs; therefore don't eat raw, uncooked articles of any kind, not even milk.

Personal cleanliness, and cleanliness of the living and sleeping rooms and their contents, and thorough ventilation should be rigidly enforced. Food water-closets, sinks, faucets, cellars, &c., should be avoided, and when present should be referred to the Health Board at once and remedied.

Don't eat or handle food or drink with unwashed hands, or receive it from the unwashed hands of others.

Don't use the hands for any purpose when soiled with cholera discharges; thoroughly cleanse them at once.

Don't eat or drink articles unless they have been thoroughly and recently cooked or boiled, and the more recent and hotter they are the safer.

Don't employ utensils in eating or drinking unless they have been recently put in boiling water; the more recent the safer.

Under Bookmaker's Contr. It is now said that the controlling interest in the Latonia Jockey Club is held by the Applegates, well-known bookmakers of Lexington and Louisville. When the sale of Judge Perkins's stock, which controlled, was originally reported Secretary Hopper promptly denied the rumor that it had gone to the owners of Garfield Park, Chicago, but admitted that the track had passed into the hands of a syndicate of Kentuckians.

This latter is reported to include the Applegate and the "Suburban" or Enright Poolroom Company, and other horsemen who hold, it is said, a franchise for a race course in Kenton, and an option on a tract of land near Latonia, both of which were used as leverage in the acquirement of the control of Latonia.

These Marriages. Huntington Herald.—There is some speculation among the expectant public as to who will fill the vacancy created in the matrimonial business line by the death of "Squire Massie Beasley of Aberdeen. It is to be hoped such an industry may drop from sight forever. From eight to ten thousand couples have been united in illegal marriage by "Squire Beasley and his predecessor, "Squire Shelton. A great portion of the matches have been productive of misery. Innocent, trusting girls in their teens have been lured from comfortable homes by drunkards, gamblers and debauches against the will of loving parents, and have entered upon lives of wretchedness from which there is too often no escape but death. We have known the tough, whisky-soaked, tobacco-stained old bald-headed sinner whose soul had been blackened by a thousand foul escapades, steal from her happy home the child in her pinafore, and usher her into a life of miserable abuse, intolerable suffering and thankless drudgery. And there was no recourse. Out upon such business. Ohio should wipe this stain from her escutcheon, now and forever.

AND HERE IS ANOTHER. It is about time that Maysville shut down on the runaway marrying business. A man named Harrison Bradford is under the impression that he has fallen heir to the late "Squire Beasley's business and is marrying people right along. It does not appear that he has any legal authority to make the tie binding, and he is likely to be the cause of a great deal of unhappiness and misery."

Part of the above is all right, but would the gentleman who wrote in for The Ashland Signal tell us what Maysville has got to do with the matter? The late "Squire Beasley was and Harrison Bradford is a resident of Aberdeen, Brown county, O., entirely out of Maysville's province.

HENSHAW and Ten Broeck in the musical comedy "The Nabobs" will make their first appearance in Maysville at the Washington Opera-house on next Tuesday evening, September 30th. The two stars are said to be without an equal in their line of comedy. Seats now on sale at Nelson's.

A STRANGE BOX.

An Infernal Machine Found in Gov. Flower's Room.

Mayor Grant Asks President Harrison to Stop Immigration.

Another Death From Cholera in New York City—Several More Suspicious Cases Reported—Importation of Beet Sugar From Hamburg and Altona.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A mysterious box, which is believed to contain an infernal machine, has been received by Gov. Flower at his cholera headquarters in the Windsor hotel. The nature of the contents was fortunately discovered before any harm was done. The box was followed up by a letter, the contents of which indicated that it was inspired by the same disordered brain which planned the mysterious machine.

The manly stand taken by the governor in resisting the mob at Fire Island and in placing the unhappy passengers of the Normanna in the shelter provided for them by the state seems to be the only excuse for the outrage.

Dr. Ashley A. Webber, of Brooklyn, reported to the board of health Friday night the death of Miss Meyer at 291 North Eighth street under circumstances that lead him to believe a case of Asiatic cholera. Two inspectors were detailed to investigate and report.

Two additional suspicious cases were reported, one on Fulton and another on McKibben streets. They are being investigated.

At a conference of the health board their attention was called to the importations of beet sugar, which comes largely from Hamburg and Altona. Although it was not thought advisable to prohibit its importation, it was recommended that great care be exercised in its reception.

After receiving reports from all the city officials having the sanitary condition of the city in their care, and conferring at length with the heads of the various city departments, Mayor Grant decided Friday night that it would be advisable to request the president to stop immigration from infected European ports entirely for the present.

The following message was accordingly sent to President Harrison: MAYOR'S OFFICE, Sept. 16, 1892.

HON. BENJ. HARRISON, President, Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C.—Dear Sir: As mayor of the city of New York I deem it my duty to call your attention to the present condition of sanitary affairs in this city.

While there is no cause for alarm in the present condition, and while every thing is done by the authorities to prevent the spreading of the cholera, every precaution should be taken to prevent its further introduction in this community.

I, therefore, request that you, as president of the United States, exercise all the authority you possess to prevent further immigration to this country until all fear of the introduction of cholera shall have disappeared, I am, with great respect, very truly,

HUGH J. GRANT, Mayor.

Craves for Animal Blood. COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17.—The mysterious fiend who has been ruthlessly slaughtering live stock in the northern suburbs for several weeks is still at work. Several telegrams have also been received urging that a quarantine of ninety days be established against all immigrants from Europe.

Scalded Her Child to Death. VALPARAISO, Ind., Sept. 16.—A little child of James Early, of this county, was scalded to death. The child was sitting on the stoop playing, when the mother came out of the house carrying a tub partly filled with boiling water. Just as she was passing the child a handle of the tub broke and let the hot water drench the little one.

It Came From Hamburg. CINCINNATI, Sept. 17.—Collector of Customs Amor Smith Friday detained a fine banner imported by St. Bernard's Catholic church.
