ELUCUTIONARY ENTERTAINMENT.—D. G. LAWSON, of Glasgow, Scotland, an elucutionist of great ability, will give an entertainment at the Opera House in Stanford, next Monday night, 8th, under the auspices of Prof. Abner Rogers. Admission—adults 50 cents, children 25 cents.

THE Kentucky Central did not take charge of the Richmond Branch as expected, but it is understood, will wait till the completion of their road to Richmond. LATER—Information received yesterday to the effect that the Company has sent a man to arrange the transfer at once.

THE Daily Bowling Green Times says: The talented Kentucky actress, Miss Julia A. Hunt is missing, and it is said that she has forsaken her husband and gone to Europe with another man, but we do not believe it. Nor do we. Miss Hunt is a genuine lady, and nothing but the best proof will convince us that she has fallen.

PICTURES! PICTURES!—Shaffer the Photographer is making the nicest pictures that has ever been made in Stanford. Prices are very reasonable for first class work. Mr. Shaffer's ink and water color copies of old pictures are very fine, he enlarges to any size. Cloudy weather no hindrance to good results. No extra charge for children. Now is the time to get your work done while you can do so at home. Satisfaction guaranteed. Gallery over Post-Office.

ANTHONY & ELLIS' Uncle Tom's Cabin Company, which appears here next Tuesday night, will introduce during the play which they give with wonderful realistic effect, a pack of blood-hounds, a live donkey and a pony trained to take part in the performance. It will be a rare sight for a Stanford audience and as the prices are fixed at the low rate of 25 and 50 cents, with no extra charge for reserving, a big crowd ought to attend. Secure your tickets at McRoberts & Staggs'.

WE invite attention to the new advertisement of A. Owsley & Son, which appears in another column. Mr. Walter W. Owsley has shown excellent business qualifications and strict attention to his duties, which his father has rewarded by giving him an interest in his large establishment, much to the gratification of his friends. In this connection we are requested to say that the business of the old firm is now ready for settlement and that those indebted are expected to come forward and liquidate at once. A word to the wise is sufficient.

THE DELINQUENT list allowed Sheriff Menefee by the Court shows 738 names. Last year he returned only 539 and the year before S. H. Baughman failed to collect 804. This is a pretty bad showing for Mr. Menefee but he is to a certain extent excusable. The bad crops of year before last left many people in comparative want, from which the good crop of last year had not extricated them at the time of collection, besides the additional 2 cents tax decided to be collected after he had settled with a large number of persons, necessitating almost double trouble and gave him less time to see after the poll tax payers. He might have however, done a little better and must do so next time.

THE Magistrates of the county sitting as a Court decided on Tuesday, after numerous speeches advocating it, to exempt from taxation for county purposes the Cincinnati, Green River and Nashville Railroad for a period of thirty years and ordered that the next Legislature be requested to legalize the proceedings. The vote stood 7 to 5, as follows: For exemption, E. B. Caldwell, Jr., W. R. Carson, W. P. Grimm, M. S. Peyton, W. M. Garnett, J. P. Daniel and J. P. Hughes; against, M. C. Portman, John Bailey, M. S. Bestin, Adam Petrey and Christopher Brown. H. W. Farris and Craig Lynn were absent, but we are told they would have voted "aye," while two of the "noes" were for 20 years exemption. It is a surprise that some of the five voted as they did because ordinarily they are tolerably fair minded men but no one is surprised at any stand Squire Portman may take. He usually tries to be on the popular side and having apparently conceived the idea that to do so is to oppose any measure that may benefit Stanford, he of course opposed any and every thing proposed. His factious pleas, his evident insincerity and his well-known propensity to talk in a loose way, produced the opposite effect he intended, and he had the mortification of seeing himself most gloriously set down upon. He made a statement concerning this paper that was by no means substantiated by the facts, of which he was promptly informed at the time. We have nothing against him personally, but we dislike demagogues and do not think he has helped his avowed candidacy by his action in this matter, nor do we think he will attain the measure of his ambition unless the "colored troops come nobly to his rescue" again. Squire Carson deserves much credit for the public spirit he manifested and for his telling little speech in favor of the exemption. Since the building of railroads, no county has been requested to do less than the C. G. R. & N. R. R. asks and to have refused her this little inducement, would, as Mr. D. W. Vandever expressed it, have not only been mean but "niggardly and shameful."

YESTERDAY was a dismal day in town. A cold drizzling rain fell, the stores were closed and everything wore a sombre hue. THE County Court on motion of Squire W. R. Carson decided to subscribe $1,400 towards building a bridge across Dix River on the Stanford and Proschersville turnpike and made the necessary order to have the action legalized by the Legislature.

COUNTY ATTORNEY, D. R. Carpenter rather got away with the magistrates this week. They squabbled around for three days supposing that they could vote themselves the usual $3 per day, but when they started to do so, he quietly informed them that it was $2 and no more and showed them a recent decision of the Court of Appeals on the subject. They all turned white about the gills but had to submit. Score one for Doc.

DEATHS.

—Godfrey Baugh died suddenly at his home near Highland this week of old age. —SHAWES—After a short illness of pneumonia, Capt. John Henry Shanks breathed his last at 8:30 A. M. the morning of the 3d, aged 54 years, on the 16th of December last. He was a native of this county, and after obtaining a good common school education, followed the business of merchandising in Stanford and farming till the war broke out, when he espoused the Confederate cause and bore a prominent part in many of the great battles. At Corinth, he was appointed Aid-de-camp to Gen. Hanes and subsequently held the same position to Col. Traub in Breckinridge's division. After the siege at Vicksburg, he returned to Kentucky, where after taking an active part in organizing the provisional government, he was made a member of it. Believing, however, that his place was at the front, he soon again joined the army, this time as a Captain in Col. Grigsby's regiment of Gen. Morgan's command and was with him during his famous Ohio raid, was there captured and with others placed in a dungeon at Camp Chase, from which they escaped by tunneling under its walls. He reached the Confederate lines in safety and joining a remnant of his old command, was engaged in a number of skirmishes and battles, in one of which, near Hopkinsville, Ky., he was wounded almost identically as President Garfield was. The enemy got possession of the field and a Federal Surgeon, after taking a hasty glance at his wound, said, "It's no use taking this fellow to the hospital, he'll die in a few hours." He was not dead, however, when they came to bury the unfortunate, and he was then taken to Hopkinsville, where he recovered, and after three months exchanged for a Federal Captain. He then went to Gen. Lyon's division, and was with him during his severe winter campaign and at the famous battle of Selma. Shortly afterwards he laid down his arms and was paroled on condition that he would not hereafter battle against the government.

The above is but a brief outline of his distinguished services for the cause he loved. After the war, which left him almost penniless, he returned to Stanford, where his brother, S. H. Shanks, gave him an interest in his store. In 1868 he was married to Miss Louisa Bailey, of Shelby county, and five children mourn with her an irreparable loss. In 1869 when the Farmers National Bank was organized he was unanimously elected its president and every year since on account of his excellent management, he has been similarly honored and was its president at his death. He was a born financier as the accumulation of property and money variously estimated at $50,000 to $75,000 since the war abundantly proves. He was fully conscious of his condition and a day or two before his death made a will which is a marvel of justice and an unflinching faith in the integrity of his brother, Sam.

As a man no person stood higher in this community than Capt. Shanks. Conscientious, moral, fair in his dealings and chivalrous, he enjoyed the respect of all who knew him and his death is in the nature of a public calamity, and to his family, Ah, there's the weight of woe. A kind husband and a loving father has been taken when his presence and his attention are most needed but in their affliction they will be sustained by a tender Providence and a community of sympathizing and loving friends. May the God of consolation to the widow and orphans sustain them in this terrible hour.

As a mark of respect all the business houses were closed from 11 till after the funeral yesterday, while the Farmers National Bank of which he was president, was partially draped in mourning and remained closed all day. Elder W. L. Williams preached the funeral discourse at the Christian Church, after which a procession of mourning friends nearly a mile long, and preceded by the members of the Masonic Fraternity, of which he was an honored member, followed the remains to their last resting place in Buffalo Cemetery.

RELIGIOUS.

—The week of prayer begins next Sunday. We have not heard of any special service here. —Bro. Shackelford and I have just closed an eleven days meeting at Mt. Moriah. Twenty one confessed, one from the Baptist, two restored, two united, in all twenty-five. The attention and order were very good, also the crowds. Martin Owens.

—The friends of Capt. Shanks take consolation in the fact that when Mrs. Harris called and asked if he wished her to pray for him, he replied, "Yes, I would like to have the prayers of all good people." —The New York Sun takes but little stock in the anointing business, as this item shows. We desire to be informed of any case of success in the healing business by the so called Evangelist Barnes, who is operating in this city, and who has begun to anoint people with oil for the cure of their diseases. We desire to have a scientific investigation made of every alleged case of oleaginuous healing under the operation of Brother Barnes.
