Phone to Crab Orchard.

Dr. Kinnaird, of this city, and Mr. J. E. Carson, of Crab Orchard, have succeeded in making up the required amount of stock and will next week begin the erection of a telephone line from this place to Crab Orchard. The line will have instruments at Sweeney Morgan's, Frenchersville, Mr. Carson's and probably other points along the route. This line is one of the most badly needed and will prove not only a great benefit to our town but will be of inestimable value to our friends along the route and at Crab Orchard. We will venture the assertion that Garrard now has the best telephone system of any county in the state. Our people may be a little slow in getting started, but when they go a 'cat-in' they go a 'cat-in'.

The Ladies' Day.

The good ladies were out in full force Saturday, and the largest crowd ever seen on similar occasions witnessed the millinery openings. The business houses of Mrs. Moody Harden and Miss Sallie Tillet, our local dealers, had been beautifully decorated and the large lines of handsome and tasty hats, ribbons etc., were arranged in an artistic manner which was beautiful indeed. All day long both stores were crowded and many purchased their new headwear for spring. We will venture the assertion that no millinery establishments outside the cities can surpass those of Lancaster in keeping up with the styles and giving reasonable prices. Both of the Lancaster dealers visit the eastern markets every spring and every fall and put in a week or so ascertaining the new ideas and fashions. They select their goods right at the wholesale markets and, by doing so, get better bargains and can afford to sell cheaper than those who buy from drummers. Lancaster people are proud of their millinery stores and stand by them well.

The stock on display here this spring are far more elaborate and varied than ever before, and those ladies who could not come in Saturday should lose no time in seeing the many beautiful designs before they are all picked over.

Latest War News.

Louisville, 3 p. m. Apr. 14. RECORD, Lancaster, Ky.

No sensational developments in war situation up to 3 p. m. Testimony of Consul General Lee before Senate Committee made public show that Spanish officers blew up the Maine, that Weyler letter was genuine. Conservative senators have decided to make fight for house Cuban resolutions directing president to act at once and intervene in Cuba. Quick action by the Senate is being urged. The people of Spain clamor for Weyler to save country's honor. Twenty-fifth colored infantry from Montana passed through Ky., today for Chickamauga.

Fixing It Up.

In order to get the track in first-class shape for the new trains, the railroad company has put a force of ten additional hands on each section of this branch.

Can It Be?

Depot Agent Patterson tells us there is now talk of running all the Livingston trains via Lancaster. Should this prove true, we will have the best railroad facilities of any town in Central Kentucky.

Opening Day.

The store room of the Logan Dry Goods Co., was crowded Saturday, the occasion being the grand opening of spring goods. This up-to-date firm has bought and put on display an elegant line of good and they are fresh new and clean. All the stock is splinter new, no old goods in the house. The very latest novelties in ladies' wear can be found here, and you can get them at city prices. Mr. Logan's long experience as a traveling man enables him to get the very latest and at the lowest prices. The store Saturday was a scene of beauty, and if you have not yet done so, go at once and see the beautiful goods.

Out Of The Woods

Lancaster is to Be Given First Class Railroad Service.

Trains Direct to Louisville and Cin'tl.

As stated in last issue of THE RECORD, an engagement was made by the committee of Lancaster citizens to meet Mr. Metcalf, general manager of the L & N railroad in Louisville. Friday night the following persons went down and held a conference with officials Saturday: R. F. Hudson, cashier Citizens' National Bank, S. C. Denny, assistant cashier National Bank, J. W. Miller, manager Pilgrimage Distillery, R. Kinnaird, J. M. Farra and Louis Landram. The plan stated in last issue were explained to the railroad people, but they could not agree upon all of it. After discussion they decided, however, upon a plan which is far better than the one originally asked for. They agreed to take the two night trains now running from Cincinnati to Livingston, via Borea, and run them to Stanford instead. This will make close connection at Stanford with the night trains both ways. This is a passenger, express and mail train, and will pass Lancaster about two o'clock in the morning, reaching Cincinnati about seven. Returning, this train will leave Cincinnati at 7:30 in the evening, pass Lancaster about midnight and connect with the Stanford trains (both north and south) giving close connection to and from Louisville and Knoxville. As stated above, these trains will carry the mail and will give us mail sent from both Louisville and Cincinnati the night before, at 7 o'clock the next morning (7 o'clock is the time for opening the Lancaster post office.)

In addition to the above change, the officials will reverse the present day train and it will come from Richmond, passing Lancaster about 11 o'clock a. m., making connection with Louisville trains at Stanford and returning after arrival of Louisville train, passing Lancaster about two or three o'clock. This change will put Cincinnati freight here four hours earlier, and give us a splendid express service, beside putting Louisville freight here several hours earlier. It will put the evening mail about one hour earlier, and give until eleven o'clock in the morning to send out our mail, instead of ten, as at present. One objection to reversing the day train was that one engine might not be able to pull out the freight and stock. The engine now in use is a small, six drive-wheel, but by putting on a regular, eight-wheel engine all can be pulled easily. This change will be a great advantage to stock men, as it takes out stock ALL THE YEAR AROUND at 3 o'clock in the evening, reaching Cincinnati early next morning. The track of this branch is in good shape, only needing some ballast to make it first-class. The night trains carry Pullman sleepers, and parties going to Cincinnati, Knoxville and Louisville can take a berth and enjoy a good rest all the way. As stated above, we will have direct connection with both Louisville and Cincinnati. One can leave here in the night and be in either city at 7:30 the next morning, have all day to attend to business and leave the city at 7:30 the same evening.

This change has so many advantages that we have not the space to give them, but when established, our people will wonder how we ever did without it. The change will be made the first of next month, as the company will then inaugurate its spring schedules.

Our people are delighted with the idea of being given first-class railroad accommodations, and it really sounds too good to be true. Mr. Metcalf is an exceedingly pleasant gentleman, and received the committee in his private office and talked the matter over deliberately. He said he had been studying for twenty years, on how to give the good people of Richmond and Lancaster first-class accommodations, and now believed he had hit upon the plan. He has certainly done so, not only for Richmond and Lancaster, but Stanford also. The latter folks are compelled to go to Junction City and wait several hours for a Cincinnati train, and now they get a first-class, fast train right from their front door. As for Richmond, she gets the same advantage we do in regard to Louisville travel (she has already first-class Cincinnati trains). At present our Richmond friends go to Louisville via Winchester, or over the R. N. I. & B., which takes all day. Under the new arrangement they can go through in day time, or take a train at midnight and be in Louisville at 7 a. m. We could fill every column of THE RECORD with advantages this change will give the people on the line from Richmond to Stanford, but will let them wait 'til the first of next month when these things will be proven.

Danger Over.

The Register says the small-pox has about died out in Richmond and that all danger is past. This is good news and we hope there will be no new cases. Our clever Richmond friends have had quite a siege.

Helped Us.

Owing to sickness in his family, Col. Walton, of the Interior Journal could not go with the rail road committee to Louisville. He sent long telegram to the general manager how ever urging that officials grant our requests.

How's This One?

A certain man came in THE RECORD office this week and discontinued his paper, saying that he had "offered to print advertisements for horses and jacks" and he didn't want his family to read such. This is almost too ridiculous to believe, but it's an actual fact. We never said one word, for fear the old fellow would faint at coming in contact with the naked truth.

Look Before Buying.

The store room of J. Joseph is now chock full of the latest creations in dress goods and ladies' furnishings. Mr. Joseph only recently returned from the Eastern cities where he scoured the markets and picked up great bargains in goods for all the departments of his Lancaster store. He makes a specialty of fine dress goods this season and defies competition both as to quality and prices. His stock of hosiery consists fine shoes, ribbons, and ladies' furnishings of all kinds can not be surpassed in Central Kentucky. Umbrellas, trunks, valises in great variety. Their aim is to please their customers. Years of experience in the business enables Mr. Joseph to buy his goods at such reasonably low figures that he can afford to sell them at lower prices. All they ask at Joseph's store is for you to look at the goods, examine the quality and get the prices. Then if you are not thoroughly satisfied, you are not expected to purchase. They extend a cordial invitation to all to call at their store and take a look at the fine display.

The steamer Falls City on Sunday made an excursion from High Bridge to the mouth of Sugar creek, eight miles above Hickman landing, on the upper Kentucky river, the highest point ever reached by a packet steamer.
