MEETING CLOSES

Methodist Church Has Revival Full Of Rich Blessings--Rev. Mr. Hanes Brings Cheering And Comforting Sermons.

The Methodist meeting which closed last night was a revival of religion in the church. The members were never so refreshed and were given a new hold on Christian life. The Rev. Mr. Hanes preached the most spiritual and practical sermons that could be preached. He was assisted by the Rev. Mr. Springfield, the singer, and the Rev. Mr. Lewis the pastor.

Testimonies from Sunday School scholars and Leaguers, church members and children were given at the day services which made them the sweetest and most helpful hours of the meeting. The number of converts will be given next week.

The music was a beautiful feature of the meeting. Eldred Babbage played the cornet and Libon Smith the violin. The young people of the church were as faithful in attendance as the older members.

The Cloverport Baptist Sunday school has passed the hundred mark and is still climbing. Their aim is two hundred by September the first. A new blackboard has been purchased for use in the school and new song books have been received and were used Sunday for the first time.

The Children's Day services will be held Sunday night at the Lucile Memorial church. Rev. Mr. Knott McNeen will preach there Sunday morning.

The Baptist church will begin their protracted meeting the fourth Sunday in this month. Bro. J. T. Lewis, a former and much loved pastor, will aid Bro. Cottrell in the meeting. His many friends are looking forward with great pleasure to his coming and to the privilege of hearing him preach in Cloverport again. A great meeting is anticipated.

Pastor Cottrell was in Louisville last Tuesday in attendance upon a meeting of the State Board of Missions of which he is a member. Much business was accomplished. Among other things provision was made for the employment of two more State Sunday school men. This gives Secretary Entzinger three field workers. An effort will be made to reach every Baptist S. S. in the State within the next two years to organize them for the most efficient work.

The Missionary Society of the Baptist church met with Mrs. Cordrey Monday in their monthly meeting. This Society has done much in its long and successful history and is planning larger things for the future.

Pastor Cottrell is making a systematic visitation of Cloverport with a view to taking a religious census. When the canvass is completed he will give to the public through the News the results of his findings.

Rev. and Mrs. Cottrell took their two year old daughter, Dorothy, to Owensboro three weeks ago to undergo an operation under the direction of Drs. Stirman and Gillim. The operation was successful, but has been slow in healing. Mrs. Cottrell remained in Owensboro where Dorothy has been under the care of Dr. Stirman for three weeks. She is now well and Mrs. Cottrell returned to Cloverport yesterday.

Pastor Cottrell says he is delighted with Cloverport and appreciates the cordial reception he has received by the Cloverport people generally. He feels encouraged at the outlook of his work here and wants his life and ministry to count for the most in the elevation of our citizenship.

Takes Place Saturday

The resignation of P. D. Plank, Master Mechanic of the L. H. & St. L. shops, of this place, will go into effect Saturday. Mr. Plank has held this office for more than fifteen years, and will be succeeded by his assistant, James B. Randall, who is a man old in the service of the company.

Little Girls' Injured Arms.

Lida May English fell while playing Thursday and badly fractured her left arm. Little Miss Vera Jolly also broke her arm the same day.

MR. NELSON

Finds Personal Work The Best Way To Promote Christianity. Says A Man's Heart Has To Be Broken Before It Can Be Turned.

Lee Nelson, a preacher and machinist, who has a place at the shops in this city, took deep interest in the Methodist meeting. Mr. Nelson is the happiest type of a Christian, although he declares that a man's heart must be broken before it will turn to a Christian heart. He is a fat, jolly fellow and everybody who sees him could not help admiring his disposition.

He makes an effort every day at his work particularly—to persuade men to live the thoughtful, reverent and Christian life. Recently, someone was swearing in his presence while at work, and he reminded the young man of one of the ten commandments "Thou shalt not swear." He has not broken it before him since, and he and Mr. Nelson are the best of friends.

The preacher machinist hopes to bring his family from Evansville and make Cloverport his home.

CREWS-CRACROFT

Wedding Takes Place In St. Mary's Church Of The Woods. Bridal Guests Entertained. Couple To Live At Flaherty

McQuady, June 6. (Special)—That "all the world loves a lover" was again demonstrated by the large crowd which, despite the early hour, gathered at the church of St. Mary of the Woods, on June 4, to witness the marriage ceremony of Miss Nellie Crews, of McQuady and Mr. Charles Cracroft, of Flaherty. Mr. Fidelio Bricksy, the popular clerk of P. Sherran & Bro., and Miss Annie McGary, a charming belle of McQuady, were the waiters. Paul and Eloise Crews, small nephew and niece of the bride, were the flower children. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Lillian Sheeran with her usual grace and talent.

The bride was lovely dressed in a clinging gown and veil of sheer white. The groom looked his handsomest in the conventional black.

Quietly, solemnly, and beautifully was the sacred ceremony performed by Rev. J. F. Knue. Two more lives were united for "better or worse."

After a delightful repast served at the home of the bride they left for Flaherty, their future home, amid a shower of rice and good wishes. Here's wishing them a fair breeze and smooth sailing across the matrimonial sea.

FOR PRESIDENT—

WOODROW WILSON

From the New York World

Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey should be the Democratic candidate for President.

That is the opinion of The World. That is the counsel of the New Jersey primaries. That is the logic of the situation.

It is time for facts and not for theories. Judson Harmon might prove a strong candidate in New York and Ohio, but his nomination has been rendered impossible. Champ Clark would be a hopelessly beaten candidate in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. He could do no better than Mr. Bryan, who has lost these States three times and would lose them again if nominated. Oscar W. Underwood is of Presidential size, but he has been untested as a candidate in the North and is an unknown quantity to most of the voters. Woodrow Wilson alone has a record of continuing victory in the section in which victory is essential to Democratic success.

What other Democratic candidate could poll so many votes in the great debatable States of the East—New York, New Jersey and Connecticut?

What other Democratic candidate, who could carry these States, would be so strong in the great debatable States of the Middle West—Ohio and Indiana?

What other Democratic candidate could make so powerful an appeal to hundreds of thousands of thoughtful independent voters without whose support no Democratic President can be elected?

What other Democratic candidate could so well stem the rising tide of Rooseveltism, which now threatens to engulf representative government and republican institutions?

What other Democratic candidate would so fully measure up to the ideals of the sane radicals and the sane conservatives upon whose joint action the result of the election will hinge?

The World hitherto has withheld its active support from all candidates. It advocated an open convention at Baltimore, and advised its Democratic friends to await the action of the Republicans at Chicago. The open convention is assured. The measure of all the candidates has been taken. The situation is clarified and further delay is unnecessary.

Like a twentieth-century Genghis Khan, Theodore Roosevelt, with his horde of prairie Populists and Wall street Socialists, is sweeping down upon the Republican National Convention. Mr. Taft seems as powerless to check him as the degenerate Romans were to check the descent of the Goths and the Vandals. The historic party of Lincoln and Seward and Chase and Sumner and Conkling and Chandler and Blaine and Garfield and Harrison and Sherman and McKinley is apparently in the death throes. This is the twilight of the gods, and the Democratic party must rise not only to its opportunity but to its responsibility.

How can it do its duty better than to match sanity against lunacy; statesmanship against demagoguery; the historian against the Rough Rider; the educator of public opinion against the debaucher of public opinion; the first term against the third term; the tariff-reformer against the stand-patter; the man who would prosecute trust magnates against the man who protects trust magnates; the man with clean hands against the man who draws his campaign fund from Wall street; the supporter of constitutional government against the champion of personal government; law against lawlessness; Americanism against Mexicanism; the Republic against the dictatorship?

Who better represents these issues than Woodrow Wilson? Who is better qualified than Woodrow Wilson to appeal to the intelligence and common sense of the American people against the most cunning and adroit demagogue that modern civilization has produced since Napoleon III.?

Who would stand a better chance of election in this great national crisis?

Let us look at the facts: It will require 266 electoral votes to elect a President. The so-called Southern States, including Maryland and Missouri, have 175 votes. Assuming that Arizona will go Democratic too, practically any Democratic candidate for President can count on 178 electoral votes. But 88 more are necessary to victory. Where can these 88 be found?

It is folly to look for them west of the Mississippi River. The West is in the midst of another revival of Populism. In Theodore Roosevelt it has found a new substitute for its gospel of free silver. He is the political reincarnation of James B. Weaver, Mary E. Lease, Jerry Simpson and Puffer. He is the heaven-born ratio of 16 to 1 in a still more fascinating form. It is idle to think that any Democrat could appeal to the West against Roosevelt. It is idle to think that anybody who is not a far more masterful and dangerous demagogue than Roosevelt could command the support of the Populists who now call themselves Republican Progressives.

The Democratic party, if it is to win the election, and safeguard American institutions, must unite the East and the South as Tilden did in 1876. The candidate must carry New York with its 45 electoral votes. He must carry New Jersey with its 14 electoral votes. He must carry Connecticut with its 7 electoral votes. To lose these States is to give Roosevelt a walkover. To win these States is to win not only 66 of the 88 electoral votes that are needed, but in all probability it is to win Ohio with 24 votes; it is to win Indiana with 15 votes, which is the historical political ally of New York and New Jersey; it is to give the Democratic party an opportunity of victory in Massachusetts with its 18 votes, and to bring Delaware with its 3 votes back into the Democratic column. In other words, it is to elect a Democratic President of the United States.

It is in the East that Democratic victory must be won. It is in the East that Rooseveltism must be overthrown. It is in the East that must save the country from a third term and all it implies. For that reason The World regards Woodrow Wilson as the strongest candidate the Democratic party can nominate.

The New Jersey primaries were a vital test of his political strength not only in New Jersey but in New York. They proved that local opposition to him is largely a myth. Although the campaign against him was well organized and abundantly financed, it failed miserably. He swept the State, and the only four delegates he lost were lost through the personal efforts of James Smith, Jr., a political boss whom Gov. Wilson kept out of the United States Senate.

In a section of the country where Wall street and the political bosses are most powerful, Gov. Wilson demonstrated that he has the confidence of the rank and file of the party, without which any man's candidacy is futile. He demonstrated as well that his political strength is the kind of strength that is essential to Democratic success in the vitally necessary States of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

So much for that. During Gov. Wilson's public career The World has been compelled to take issue with him on many questions. We regarded with grave misgivings his sudden conversion to the initiative and referendum, reversing the principles of a lifetime. We regretted his apparent disposition to imitate Mr. Bryan's sweeping charges against the so-called Money Trust without supporting these charges with facts and specifications. We regretted his long campaign tours, his too eager chase after the nomination, and certain symptoms of instability which threatened to weaken his public usefulness. We have not hesitated to warn him when we thought he was going astray, and shall not hesitate to do so again in the future.

But Gov. Wilson's elements of weakness are vastly overbalanced by his elements of strength. He has proved his political courage and his fearlessness. He has proved himself sound on tariff reform. He has proved himself sound on the Sherman law. He has proved himself sound on corporation control. He has proved himself sound on trust prosecutions and personal guilt. He has proved himself sound against government by Wall street plutocracy. He has proved himself sound on the independence of the judiciary. He has proved himself sound on the fundamental principals of constitutional government. He has proved that he is instinctively and temperamentally a Democrat. He has proved himself a free man who cannot be bulldozed by bosses or influenced against his conviction even by his personal friends. This is the sort of man who ought to be President.

Gov. Wilson has had more public experience than Grover Cleveland had when he was elected President. He is better known to the rank and file of the party than Samuel J. Tilden was when he was nominated for President. The World believes that he would be a progressive constitutional President whom the American people could trust and for whom they would never have cause to apologize.

We appeal to all Democrats to consider this matter soberly and thoughtfully and without prejudice. We appeal to the delegates to the Democratic National Convention to be swayed by no considerations except those of principle and the public welfare. We appeal to Mr. Bryan to throw his great political influence upon the side of Gov. Wilson and aid the Democratic party to meet adequately this great crisis in the Nation's history. He has the most brilliant opportunity for disinterested, patriotic leadership that has come to any American of his generation, and he has before him in Theodore Roosevelt a striking example of the meaning of ruthless and unyielding ambition.

It is not in behalf of Woodrow Wilson that The World urges his nomination. It is not merely in behalf of the Democratic party as a party. It is in behalf of the American people. It is in behalf of American institutions. It is in behalf of the Republic. It is in behalf of the Nation that is now confronted with the gravest menace that it has faced since the obliteration of human slavery and the overthrow of secession.

Selling Old Clothes

There is a young woman in town who always has good luck in selling clothes that she does not want to use any longer for herself. For instance, if anyone comes to her to buy second-handed garments, she always puts them in their best shape. Old shoes she always cleans well and polishes them, and they bring the price they are really worth. The same idea can be applied to dresses by cleaning and pressing them.

Father Henry To Louisville

A class of about 100 received the first communion at St. Patrick's church in Stithon Sunday, which was Father Henry's last services there. It was in the nature of a concession to Father Henry and his beloved young people that he remained for this final service before going to his new work in Louisville.—E'town News.
