THE ROUND OF LIFE.

Two children, down by the shining strand,
With eyes as blue as the summer sea,
While the sinking sun fills all the land
With the glow of a golden mystery;
Laughing aloud at the sea-mew's cry,
Gazing with joy on its snowy breast,
Till the first star looks from the evening sky,
And the Amber bars stretch over the west.

A soft green dell by the breezy shore
A sailor lad and a maiden fair;
Hand clasped in hand, while the tale of yore
Is borne again on the listening air,
For love is young, though love be old,
And love alone the heart can fill,
And the dear old tale that has been told
In the days gone by, is sooken still.

A trim-built home on a sheltered bay;
A wife looking out on the glistening sea;
A prayer for the loved one far away,
And prattling limbs 'neath the old roof-tree;
A lifted latch and radiant face
By the open door in the falling night;
A welcome home and a warm embrace
From the love of his youth and his children bright.

An aged man in an old arm-chair;
A golden light from the western sky;
His wife by his side, with her silvered hair,
And the open book of God close by,
Sweet on the bay the gloaming falls,
And bright is the glow of the evening star;
But dearer to them are the jasper walls
And the golden streets of the land afar.

An old church-yard on a green hillside,
Two lying still on their peaceful rest;
The fisherman's boat going out with the tide
In the fiery glow of the amber west.
Children's laughter and the old men's sighs,
The night that follows the mornings clear,
A rainbow bridging our darkened skies,
Are the round of our life from year to year!

WONDERFUL RIFLE SHOOTING.

Some of the Exploits of Prince Otto, the Boy Chief of the Nez Perces.

Prince Otto, the boy chief of the Nez Perce Indians, the protege of Captain Macdonald, and without exception the most wonderful rifle shot in the world, gave an exhibit of rifle shooting at Platt's Hall last week that was far superior to the best work ever done by Carver or Dr. Ruth. The audience was select and included several English, French, Russian and Italian officers, and every one present was satisfied at the close of the exhibition that they had witnessed the most wonderful feats ever performed with a rifle. After going through a manual of arms that would puzzle the oldest militia general in the Union, Otto commenced shooting. A five cent piece was placed upon the top of the head of the figure. Otto's back being to the object, the word "about" was given and the coin was peered through the centre. He then put down his rifle six feet from where he stood, turned a summersault, caught his rifle again, fired and cut the string of the suspended figure at which he had previously fired.

A pistol barrel was then placed in a steel frame; behind this was fixed a razor, with the edge facing the audience. On each side of this razor was a glass ball securely placed. The pistol ball, razor and balls were masked with a covering of white cloth. The boy was then blindfolded and his back turned to the object. The "about face" was given, when he fired down through the pistol barrels, split his single rifle ball upon the razor's edge and broke both glass balls on the right and left. This remarkable feat was performed by the boy's sense of location. Then a loaded pistol placed diagonally from where

Otto stood. Three balls were set swinging in contrary directions. Otto fired, hit the trigger of the pistol and broke the three balls. Eight metal balls were then screwed on the ten-foot frame. On the sides below and above balls were set swinging in every direction. Macdonald stood in front of the boy, who then fired over his head, and at each side of him, and between his knees, breaking the balls from any and every part where they were suspended behind MacDonald's back.

A target was then put up behind MacDonald's back. The boy then went through the same performance, standing opposite MacDonald, and rung the bell (which is placed at the extreme rear) at every shot by caroming on the metal balls. Six small lighted tapers were then arranged upon a slender perpendicular pole; then, while in the various postures of vaulting and tumbling, Otto extinguished each respective light with his rifle. Glass balls were thrown up in the air in every conceivable direction. These, Otto broke promiscuously, without sight all, at for a large business card was fastened over the point of his rifle.

This description of shooting he considers most simple, and though wonderful to the spectator scarcely worthy his own prowess. Otto's average in this class of shooting is ninety-eight out of one hundred. Otto placed his weapon at a point distant six feet from him; then, at the word "ready" two glass balls were thrown in the air. He tumbled, caught his rifle, and broke both of these balls with one shot. Twelve glass balls were placed upon a perpendicular pole in exact rotation. Otto loaded, fired, and broke every one of them in twelve seconds. Otto's favorite weapon is the Winchester rifle, one of which, in token of admiration, was presented to him by the Winchester Rifle Company. To close the performance, Otto, his left arm was securely tied to his side loaded aimed, fired and broke a large number of glass balls with his right arm.—California Advertiser.

When he earned a miserable living in Rosita, Colorado, by doing errands for a stableman, he was called Old Man Bassick and his wife and daughter worked at the washtub. One day he found ore in a mountain near by, and within the year has become a half millionaire. Now he is respectfully mentioned as Mr. Bassick. There are those, who sneer at the family's ignorance as the following anecdote shows: Mrs. Bassick was at Canon. It was noticed that she frequently walked out upon the hotel porch as if looking for some one. "Do you expect friends?" asked the obsequious Boniface. "No indeed," she replied, "I'm expecting my phantom." Her pretty phaeton, for which she had paid $3,000, afterward rolled around the corner.

Mr. Ashmead Bartlett is, according to Buckle, one man in 30,000, for that, according to him, is the proportion which men marrying women old enough to be their grandmothers bear to the population.

Magnificent pine forests have lately been discovered on the upper waters of the Saskatchewan, and explorers have traced them fifty miles up the shoulder of the Rocky Mountains.
