APPALLING SCENES.

The Horrors of Ischia Eclipsed in Java.

Full Details of the Recent Earthquake and Volcanic Eruption Scenes too Dreadful for Comprehension—Thousands Upon Thousands of Lives Lost.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A dispatch from Batavia, Java, says the towns of Anjier, Tiringine, and Telokbelong were destroyed by tidal waves caused by volcanic eruptions. All the light-houses in Sunda Straits disappeared, and where the mountain of Krakatau formerly stood the sea now flows. The aspect of Sunda Straits is much changed, and navigation is dangerous. The disturbances began on the Island of Krakatau, in the straits of Sunda, about fifteen miles off the coast of Java. The deep rumblings were distinctly audible at Surakeria and Batavia, about forty-five and twenty-two miles off, respectively. Little alarm was felt at first, but within a few hours showers of stones began to fall at Jonkjakerta, Surabaya, and Zerang. All through the night showers of red hot rocks and ashes fell, making complete darkness in these towns. In Batavia there was an occasional fall, and it was difficult to keep the street lights burning in the European quarter. By the next morning all communication with Anjier was cut off, all the bridges having been destroyed by descending rock and ashes, and the road rendered impassable. The first eruptions were on Saturday night. On Sunday morning the disturbances had extended beneath the waters of the strait, and they were soon boiling and hissing violently, while great waves dashed upon the Javanese shores, and the temperature of the sea went up nearly twenty degrees. Even as far away from the original point of disturbance as Madura, the furious waves were lashed into mountains of foam as they came rolling in. The threatening rumbling gradually became more and more distinct, and by noon the Maha Meru, the largest of the volcanoes of Java, was belching forth flames at a very alarming rate. This eruption soon spread to the Gunung Tengger, the crater of which is the largest in the world, being nearly four miles in diameter; the Gunung Guntur, and many other mountains, until more than a third of the forty-five craters of Java were either in active eruption or seriously threatening it.

Just before dusk a great luminous cloud formed over the Gunung Guntur, and the crater of that volcano began to vomit up enormous streams of white acid and sulphurous mud, besides smaller quantities of lava. There were rapidly successive explosions, followed by tremendous showers of cinders and enormous fragments, which were hurled high into the air and scattered in all directions, to fall, after the force was spent, upon the valley below carrying death and destruction.

As the eruptions increased in frequency and violence, the disturbance of the waters surrounding the barren coast became more violent. The waves came rolling over a marshy plain along the shore, suddenly engulfing a hamlet of fishermen's rude houses, and turning suddenly back, swept away almost every vestige of what had a moment before been a scene of bustling activity where family after family had been rushing around in a vain endeavor to save their effects and get away with their lives from the awful combination of elements threatening them. What a few hours before were fertile valleys, covered with flourishing plantations of coffee, rice, sugar, indigo or tobacco, the staples of the island, were soon but mud, stone, and lava-covered fields of destruction and ruin. Probably not a single crop of Java will be saved.

The population of Europeans and Americans in Batavia suffered a loss of perhaps 800 souls out of 35,000 whites living there. At Anjier the European and American quarter was first overwhelmed by rocks, mud, and lava from the crater, and then the water came up and swallowed the ruins, leaving nothing to mark the site, and causing the loss of somewhere in the neighborhood of 2,000 lives of the inhabitants and those who had tried to find a refuge there.

Bantam, once a prosperous and flourishing native city, but practically abandoned many years ago, was entirely covered several times by the waters, and there must have been from 1,200 to 1,500 people drowned.

The Island of Serang, just off the coast, was completely inundated and not a soul remains to tell the tale of disaster and death.

While there can be no accurate estimate formed at present of the loss of life, it must be apparent, when it is considered that the island has a population of over 10,000,000 people, that the death list will foot up far into the thousands.

BATAVIA, Aug. 30.—Since noon everything has been quiet. The sky is clear, and communication with Serang is restored. The temperature fell ten degrees on Monday, but is now normal. The town is covered with a thin layer of ashes, which was so hot when falling, that it killed birds. The telegraph linemen report that while repairing the line near Anjier early Monday morning, they saw a high column of the sea approaching with a roaring noise. They fled without learning the fate of the inhabitants.

A Terrible Discovery.

MATAMORAS, MEXICO, Aug. 30.—It is reported that a Norwegian vessel was recently discovered near Campich afloat, and having on board the body of one man who held in his hand a paper stating that all his companions had died at sea, presumably of yellow fever, and had been thrown overboard. The name of the vessel is not given.

GIRL BURGLARS.

Sleeping in the House Which They Robbed—Arrested and Locked Up.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Patrolman Arbecam of station 5, at about 5:30 in the afternoon saw Maggie Donovan, a fifteen-year-old girl, living at 3 Rochester street, with a large bundle of clothing and numerous articles which he concluded she had not become possessed of in an honest manner, and accordingly took her to the station-house. He soon learned that the property had been taken from the residence of E. S. Knight, 116 Columbus avenue, and upon visiting the house ascertained that the family had gone out of town to spend Sunday. Upon gaining entrance to the house he found one Lizzie Downs, eleven years old, of 15 Rochester street, and took her into custody. It appears that the two girls climbed over the fence into the back yard Saturday evening, and then climbed up the grapevine trellis to the second story, where they broke a pane of glass, and unlocking the window, gained an entrance to the house. Once inside they made a selection of articles which pleased their fancy, and put them in piles on the floor preparatory to taking them away. After getting the goods packed up in bundles, the two girls concluded to retire, and selecting a bed which suited them, retired on the night. Sunday was spent in searching the house for valuables which had escaped their notice the night before, and at about five o'clock Maggie started for home with a bundle, intending to return and relieve her partner, but instead was locked up. The two will appear in court to answer to the charge of breaking and entering.

THE JAMES TRIAL.

The State Testimony in and the Case Rested.

GALLATIN, Mo., Aug. 30.—The testimony of the State's witnesses was intended to supply all the missing links and complete the chain of evidence which the State has been forging for the past four days, and when the State rested its case little doubt was left in the minds of those who have heard the evidence from the beginning, of its completeness. The State has woven a net work of circumstances around the accused from which it will require the most direct and positive testimony in rebuttal to extricate him, but all that can be done by able lawyers will be done. The witnesses for the defense bear good characters, and their testimony will be entitled to great weight. The defense will doubtless be conducted upon two theories. First, to show that James was not a participant in the Winston robbery and that Liddell swore falsely. The other position will be that even if the defendant was at Winston, it has not been shown that he took an active part in the affair, or that he killed McMillan or robbed the express car. This is briefly the line of defense mapped out. James' attorneys were in consultation all the afternoon and evening.

PREDICTED FAILURE.

Speculations as to the Big Bridge Railroad.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Experiments continue to be made with the railroad which is designed to traverse the Brooklyn bridge, the result of which, up to the present time at least, has not been of a character to warrant belief in the complete success of the system. It is now nearly three months since the engines have been running, and yet little advancement toward the completion of the enterprise has been made. As a result of this delay, the people are growing impatient and on many sides doubts as to the practicability of the system are expressed. A number of gentlemen, skilled in the science of engineering, have examined the machinery and are of the opinion that the system is likely to prove impracticable, and, as a consequence, must eventually be discarded. One gentleman said that even if the road is ever placed in working order the strain to which it will subject the structure will be more than it can bear. There is but one engine to draw the string of cars up a steep incline, and as a result all their weight is concentrated on the apex of the bridge.

EATING BONDS.

The Peculiar Appetite of a Chicago Maniac.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—The Clifton House came very near being the scene of a tragedy. At midnight shrieks and howls reverberated through the halls. Joe Abbott, a young, powerful man, had locked and barred himself in the cloak room and had gone raving mad. The police patrol was called and six officers broke open the door and scented the barricade, when Abbott dealt four of them terrible blows with his fist, jelling them to the floor. He then jumped head first through the window into the hall and dashed bleeding into the street. When captured and handcuffed, he foamed with rage and roared like a wild beast. He had secured a $1,000 government bond from a satchel and had chewed it into fragments. The proprietor of the hotel stated that it was a clear case of stercoraceous. The young man had talent, Shakespeare was his favorite, and he read his plays until he had memorized them fully.

A High Tide.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 30.—There is not a place on our beach front that has not been damaged to some extent by the high tide and heavy surf. The total loss will not be less than $75,000. Long before high water, which was at 6 o'clock, the board walk began to wash away, and by high water the beach along the center of the city was a mass of debris. Bath-houses, restaurants, photograph galleries, and stores, with dwellings attached, which were built so far from the surf that it was thought that no sea could reach them, were undermined and carried bodily into the ocean.

A MAD STEER LOOSE

Thrilling Scenes in the Streets of New York.

A Furious Onslaught That Ended in Liberty—Running Amuck Through Crowded Streets—Cowboys With Lasso in Hot Pursuit—Terrible Injuries of an Aged Woman—The Final Capture.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The unemployed residents of the Nineteenth ward enjoyed the not altogether rare sport of hunting a steer. The animal was in a pen in East Forty-fourth street, when two boys were sent to lead him to a private stall. As they approached the steer lowered his head, and the next moment the boys were among the rafters of the shed. The animal then broke the fence of the pen, and ran into Forty-fourth street and started towards Second avenue. He encountered a homeless woman named Mary Lambert, about fifty years old, who opened out a huge umbrella to protect herself. The steer tossed her into the air. There is no knowing how high up she would have gone had not the elevated railroad structure stopped her course skyward. She landed on the street on her face. An arm was broken, her face was cut and she was injured internally besides. A policeman who was in pursuit called an ambulance and the woman was taken to the Bellevue hospital.

The steer then turned southwards, followed by Charles Reynolds, an ex-cowboy, who was mounted on a surface car mustang and provided with a lasso. Behind him there was a large crowd that pelted the beast with stones and increased his fury by lodging bullets from revolvers in his flanks.

At Forty-third street and Second avenue John Nolan and Carl Huhbacker climbed up the pillars of the elevated railroad to escape death. Then the steer turned upon John Haggerty and Roderick Killenator, other ex-cowboys. They also escaped by climbing to the elevated railroad. Both left parts of their clothes in the street below. The steer then ran down Second avenue to Fort-second street, turned westwards at the corner, and halted in Third avenue. The crowd behind quickly came up, and the steer apprehending danger, started up Third avenue, and at Forty-third street turned his face again westward, and came to a halt again in Lexington avenue, his pursuers being far behind. Presently the sounds of pistol shots startled the steer, and he fled northwards, and did not stop until he reached Sixty-first street. He encountered a quad of police and a mob of a thousand persons at Sixty-first street and he promptly turned southward followed by a constantly increasing crowd. At Fifty-seventh street and Lexington avenue, however, Charles Reynolds lassoed the steer and brought him to a standstill. The beast was placed on a truck and taken to the slaughter-house of R. Block in East Forty-seventh street. Mr. Block said he was not the owner. No owner appeared up to a late hour to claim the steer. It is said that several persons, whose names the police did not get, were injured more or less by the animal.

HORACE GREELEY'S FARE.

Soon to Be Sold at Public Auction.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The estate of the late Horace Greeley at New Castle, Westchester county, known as the Horace Greeley Farm, will be sold at public auction September 8 by Israel A. Haight, trustee of the property. The property is to be sold in pursuance of a decree of the Supreme Court rendered June 4 last. Horace Greeley in his will prescribed that this property should be sold and the proceeds distributed among his children. He appointed Mrs. M. C. Smith as executrix. Mrs. Smith, for some unknown reason, did not carry out the orders of the will, and at her death left no instructions to her heirs as to the disposal of the property. Gabrielle M. Greeley, daughter of Horace Greeley, thereupon brought action against Nicholas Smith, her brother-in-law, to have the estate disposed of as ordered in the will of her father, and an interlocutory judgment entered in the action July 2 provided the sale of the state. There is no ill-feeling on either side over the action. Mrs. Smith's neglect to carry out the dictates of the will resulting, it is believed, from inability to attend to the matter, as she was an invalid for some time previous to her death. The property is situated in the town of New Castle, Westchester county, and comprises about 100 acres, with suitable buildings for farming purposes. The sale is to take place at the postoffice at Chappaqua Station.

A COLORED MOSES

He is Anxious to Accomplish Great Results.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 30.—John W. Niles, an Arkansas negro, is here with letters of introduction to Frederick Douglass, Richard T. Greener and other colored men, from the officers of the "Colored Indemnity Association of Arkansas." He said that the object of his visit was to get pecuniary assistance from whites and blacks in furtherance of the purpose of the "association," which was to separate the whites from the blacks of the South and to gather the latter on some particular tract of country to be "owned by themselves." He said that secret societies having that object in view had been organized among colored people all over the South. He complained in general terms about what he termed the oppression of the colored people in the South. He particularly complained of the irregularity of the delivery of mails in that section. He said that because he was connected with this movement his letters were intercepted. He also said that he had been to see the Assistant Postmaster-General and made a statement to him, and that he promised to have the matter investigated.

MASHED BY A DUDE.

The Reigning Scoundrel at Atlantic City Beach.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—A Philadelphia merchant and his young wife have been stopping at one of the fashionable hotels at Atlantic City. The lady, who was a belle before her marriage, took long and lonely walks with a society dude, without her husband's knowledge, but at last her husband was informed of the attentions the young man was paying to his wife, and concluded to investigate. One night about 11 o'clock while he was passing down Kentucky avenue, near Atlantic, the merchant saw the young man kiss his wife at the corner of the two thoroughfares, and then embrace her in an affectionate farewell. He immediately rushed toward them, knocked the dude down, and drawing a pen-knife, made a plunge at his wife, who received the dangerous wound in her neck and right breast. She gave a piercing shriek and fell to the ground. The husband repented as soon as his wife fell. He procured a carriage and had her removed to the hotel, where she was furnished with medical attendance. The whole thing is being smoothed over, and the greatest secrecy is maintained. The police have heard of the cutting, but their efforts to learn anything definite have proved unsuccessful.

DEATH FROM NEGLECT.

The Sad Ending of a Young Woman at Long Branch.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 30.—Sarah Kavanaugh, aged twenty, a daughter of Julia Kavanaugh, one of the most notorious characters of Long Branch, has just died under peculiarly distressing circumstances. Recently the Kavanaugh House was raided by the police, and both mother and younger daughter sentenced to jail. Sarah, however, escaped arrest, and entered on a career of debauchery and dissipation, which ended in her being taken down with sickness on Wednesday last. She lay on a pallet of straw in one of the rooms of the house from then until she died, entirely alone, surrounded on all sides with bare walls, filth and squalor. The poor girl's life slowly ebbed away, and she died in indescribable agony and distress. No food or sign of it could be found in the house, and the girl's death must have been caused as much by hunger as anything else. The Kavanaughs are the worst characters here, and every member of the family has been in jail on more or less serious charges. The father is now in hiding from the United States authorities.

OHIO EDITORS.

Southwestern Ohio Press Association Organized.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30.—Representatives of about fifty newspapers in Central and Southwestern Ohio were present at the organization of the Southwestern Association. The meeting was an adjourned one appointed at the preliminary gathering at the Gibson House some weeks ago. It was held in the parlors of the Gibson. The Committee on Advertising reported a schedule of rates which was adopted and will be rigidly adhered to, thus protecting newspapers from many abuses and impositions which have of late years gradually crept in, and to eradicate which the organization was formed. An outline of a Constitution and By-laws was drafted. It gives the Association a President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer and an Executive Committee. Any one can become a member by paying the annual dues of $1. The meetings hereafter will be held quarterly, commencing on the first Thursday in January, 1884, and fifteen members constitute a quorum to do business.

PREPARED FOR THEM.

The President and Party Ready for the Kidnappers.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, WY. T., Aug. 29.—via LIVINGSTON, MONT., Aug. 30.—The President was apprised by information from Wood river, Idaho, of the party of sixty-five roughs organized there for the purpose of kidnapping him. He was killing trout in the lake at the time, and referred the matter to General Sheridan, who dispatched a courier to this place, ordering the troops to prepare to intercept any such party. There are 150 soldiers encamped here, and the President has as many more with him. There are some 2,000 soldiers at his disposal at the park, and it is naturally supposed they will have a hand in the kidnapping business. The Presidential ambulances have arrived here, and the party have taken to the saddle again for the purpose of visiting the outlying scenery.

A Jealous Husband's Rage.

ST. PAUL, MINN., Aug. 30.—John Hogan, a railroad boss, has been insanely jealous of his wife, who is pretty and only twenty-three, fifteen years younger than her husband. Frank McCarthy, an employe, has contributed to his unreason. Mrs. Hogan went to Lake Elmo. Her husband watched her and observed McCarthy join her. The two walked down a shady road half a mile from the hotel. The jealous husband, who followed, drew a revolver and shot McCarthy in the neck. The latter fled and cannot be found. It is thought the wound is fatal.

Oil Wells in Forest County, Pa.

TITUSVILLE, AUG. 30.—The monthly oil report to be published by the oil region journals on September 1 is now being prepared, and, regarding Forest county, will show an increase of eleven new wells on the Cooper tract, with a corresponding decrease of production of 297 barrels from July 27 to August 27. The Balltown field shows thirteen new wells completed, with an increase of 1,324 barrels; new production or total increase of 1302 barrels.
