The Rural Credits Law.

The time is near at hand when the farmers of the United States will be furnished easy means of paying for their land or of buying more farms to increase their holdings. Keen interest is being manifested in the inauguration of the new rural credits law. The framers of the law express the view that farmers will be quick to take advantage of the amortization plan provided by the new act. The term "amortization" means a method of paying a debt in such manner as to extinguish both principal and interest at the close of a given period.

Under the new plan provided by the rural credits law, it will be possible for a farmer to borrow money on his land and to take as many years as he may desire to pay off the loan. The annual payments will be of the same amount and the last payment will liquidate the debt in full. Each annual payment, of course, will discharge a part of the original debt. For instance, should a farmer, when the new law is in full operation, borrow $1,000 at 5 per cent. interest, the annual interest charge would be $50. If the borrower should pay only $50 a year, he never could reduce the original amount of the loan. He would, of course, continue to owe $1,000.

Under the amortization plan embodied in this new piece of legislation the farmer, should he pay $80.20 a year, or $30.24 more than the yearly interest charge, would pay his debt in full at the end of twenty years. In this way the loan of $1,000 actually would be paid off with $604.80 computed simple interest at the rate of 5 per cent—a total payment of $1,604.80. It will be possible, it is asserted, under the new law, for a farmer to borrow $1,000 or more on the same scale of repayment on an unrecalable contract for twenty years at a rate of interest a little above 3 per cent.

Provision is made in the new law, under which a borrower may choose the length of time he wishes his debt to run, provided the period is not less than five years nor more than forty years.

The San Francisco officials believe they have the anarchists who planted a suitcase bomb that exploded on a crowded downtown corner and killed nine and wounded more than forty during the preparedness parade Saturday. Warren K. Billings was identified by Miss Estelle Smith as a man she saw with a suitcase on a roof near the scene of the explosion a few minutes before the bomb burst. The police say they are certain Billings was the leader of the gang responsible for the outrage. Six alleged dynamiters are in custody and the arrest of Thomas Mooney, a labor agitator, was expected. It was at Mooney's house that the police found, they said, bomb materials and a record of dynamite stolen from quarries. The district attorney's office admitted that there was reason to believe the bomb explosion was an attempt to get a marching body of United street railway platform men, who several weeks ago balked Mooney in an attempt to bring about a street car strike. The street car men were in the preparedness parade on a short distance from the point where the explosion took place.

Men of Science.

Men of science form, as it were, an organized army, laboring on behalf of the whole nation, and generally under its direction, and at its expense, to augment the stock of such knowledge as may serve to promote industrial enterprise, to increase wealth, to adorn life, to improve political and social relations and to further the moral development of individual citizens. After the immediate practical results of their work we forbear to inquire; that we leave to the instructed. We are convinced that whatever contributes to the knowledge of the forces of nature or the powers of the human mind is worth cherishing, and may, in its own due time, bear practical fruit, very often where we should least have expected it.—Helmholtz.

Operation Was a Failure.

A young married man, whose wife sometimes talks in her sleep, recently underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils. His health has been benefited, but it is hard to overcome the habit of years and he still slumbers with his mouth open at times. The other night he awoke with a start and a gurgle in his throat. His wife, too, had been disturbed, although not enough to awaken her, so it was her subconscious self which spoke when she said irritably: "I don't see why when they are taking out the tonsils they don't cut out the snore, too."

Chinese Servants.
The servants in a Chinese family are not expensive, so far as wages are concerned, but they cost a great deal in perquisites. They rarely receive more than two dollars a month, but they are given their food, and they help themselves lavishly to anything they may desire. They dress themselves from the old clothing of the family, freely take the hairpins and the toilet articles of the mistress, clothe their children from the common wardrobe and, in fact, are a part of the family. The Chinese lady and her servants gossip together as friends, rooms are entered without warning, conversations interrupted and suggestions offered which, to the foreigner, seem to be of the grossest impertinence. This intimacy is due partly to the fact that many of the servants are distant relatives. Practically the only news from the outside world that comes to the woman behind the walls is brought by her sons or by the servants. She makes few visits, and these usually at the home of some relative, entering her closely-covered chair within her courtyard and being carried swiftly to the courtyard of the house where she is to visit.

He Was Thankful.

If you would please a mother praise her child; but do it with discretion. A visiting gentleman had submitted for some time to the attentions of the three-year-old boy of his hostess, but at last grew a little tired of having his whiskers pulled and his horns trodden upon. "Madam," said he, "there is one thing about your charming little boy which especially pleases me." "And what is that?" asked the smiling mother. "That he isn't a twin."

She Was Smothering.
Rockford, Ala.—Mrs. M. C. Paschal, of this place, said: "I was tormented with nervous prostration, and had headache, backache, pains in my right side, and smothering spells. I called in physicians to treat my case, but without effect. Finally, I tried Cardui, and it gave perfect satisfaction. I recommend it to every sick woman." Are you weak, tired, worn out? Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women? Cardui has a record of over fifty years in relieving such troubles, and will certainly benefit you. It prevents those frequent headaches, and keeps you up, out of bed, feeling happy. Try Cardui. Advertisement.
