

EDUCATION IN CHINA.

Every family in China is ambitious that at least one of its members should obtain literary eminence; to accomplish this object every sacrifice is made, every exertion called to action.

Writing in China is, to a great extent pictorial, and the mental process by which character conveys an idea is not necessarily associated with the use of words.

The official character, which is about 1900 years old, is bolder, blacker, and less fine than the ordinary type, and bears something the same resemblance to it that Roman capitals have to common letters.

The Chinese mind, like a horse in a mill, is ever treading the same dull, narrow round which has been trod for ages; it is harnessed to the routine ex-

A great excitement took place in the African M. E. Church, in the Second Ward in this city, on Thursday evening. The learned and able preacher was in the midst of an elegant sermon, and he was giving his flock some good advice concerning the Christian doctrine of morality, when one of the "brothers" arose from his seat and informed the preacher that he had better practice what he preached before advising others.

An aeronaut in this city is making a bridal-car balloon. It is intended that persons so minded can be married and make their wedding tour in it, and the first marriage ceremony will take place on or about the first proximo.

A MONSTROSITY.—Yesterday we examined one of the greatest curiosities we ever looked upon; it was half hours and half negro.

DOCTOR AND DOCTRESS.—In coming down Dauphine street, a French friend of ours called our attention to a sign on which was painted "doctress."
