

SELLING OFF AT COST.—Now for a rush at Davidson's store, on Lafayette street, where the present stock of goods, as we are informed by Mr. Asher, will be disposed of at cost prices, in order to make room for a large new stock soon to be opened by that gentleman, who will assume the sole proprietary charge and management of the establishment.

Mister Vinco.—It is of no consequence to the general reader, but there are special and particular parties at home and abroad who will be gratified to learn that Mister Vinco has re-opened again as good as new on Lafayette. To such, it is hardly necessary to say, Mister Vinco has lately been through fire and water, though unable always to carry his old shop with him. In these past seven years he has been washed out, burned out, blown out, run out, and is still on hand none the worse for it.

It may be asserted as a fact not to be refuted by mere argument, that within these last twenty-five years Mister Vinco has had by the nose more distinguished citizens, celebrated clergymen, patriots, heroes, exiles, and martyrs than any other man of his inches in christendom, and the credit of having had them thus is greater than the merit of keeping a world of common people by the ears.

Mr. Vincent Victor.—It would afford me pleasure to comply with your request and be shaved; but I am suddenly called to Mobile this morning to attend the morning festival of my friend, the Baron Schenk.
