HEN SIGNS.—Some one has given the following signs for distinguishing hens that either will not lay only a few eggs in the spring, and a vacation for the remainder of the year:

A hen that lays to-day and again to-morrow has a comb and gills red and glowing, while the comb and gills of a barren hen will be colorless, pallid and sometimes wrinkled and dried up.

ANECDOTE OF R. A. ALEXANDER. Several years ago a boot and shoemaker located in the town of Versailles, and hung out his sign.

"Not much," replied the shopkeeper, "I've had that trick tried on me too often. You don't get that boot till you have paid for the mending."

"I've a good pair of slippers that I will loan you to go and get the money," said the shopkeeper.

"Follow your course, my dear sir, and your success is sure." In a short time visitors, neighbors and friends, came dropping into the establishment of the shopkeeper, and announced to him, with a quizzical humor, that he had refused to credit Lord Alexander, the richest man in Kentucky.

I never argue about milk with man or woman, says the Hon. A. B. Dickinson, if they do not know that milk can be kept with all the cream in it, as it is when first drawn from the cows; but I will tell you how it is done.

mal heat is out, and no cream will rise after that operation. Try it and see how much it will be improved for family use.

Inventions frequently occur simultaneously in different parts of the world. Thus the American art of discovering bullets imbedded in the flesh by electricity, is also claimed by the London and Paris physicians, who prove that the invention in all three instances was suggested by the case of Garibaldi, when he was wounded at Aspromonte.
