SINCE THE DAYS of Jesus Christ, the human heart has leaped for the true light of the morning, and as the dawn of the new age dawned, the head of his neighbors, a time when each man should be king, has leaped for the true light of another new age. Here is where we find the true meaning of the world, where the true meaning of man's work is found. The greatest expression of civilization, has proven to be true humanity. The greatest and the noblest, and the noblest of things, is human service.

The day's work is done at 4:30; the men are ready to go to the table for the evening meal. The men gather about the table and share in the table of plenty. The Colony's farm and gardens provide the living for the household, and the household in turn provides the necessities of the farm and gardens. The Colony's timber lands are now fur- nished with timber for all the Colony's needs. The Colony's school system is as progressive as the world's school system. The Colony's employees are paid a living wage as a right, and the employees are satisfied with the undeveloped state of the Colony. The Colony's industries are all owned and operated by the employees of the Colony. The Colony's system of government is exceedingly democratic. The Colony's laborers are protected against unemployment and poverty and disease and hunger, and the Colony's employees are protected against unemployment and poverty and disease and hunger. The Colony is a miniature co-operative commonwealth, and the Colony is a place where the golden twilight is shining.
