Earthquakes in Michigan.

The earthquake Friday last was the third occurring in this region of which there is any record, although judging from the disturbed appearance of the rocks in the Lake Superior region and the native metallic metals—gold, silver and copper—there must have been at some remote period a far severer shake than any of which we have any knowledge. The first shock of which we have any record occurred in 1812 the second in 1860, both of which were slight, and as described in Roberts' "City of the Straits" were in the effect much like that of Friday last. A resident of this city is of the opinion that there was a slight shock on Wednesday or Thursday evening preceding this last one, when he says, a door of his house, which is a frame which stood open eight or ten inches, closed suddenly with a slam and with such force that particles of plastering rattled down in the partition. He went into the adjoining room and inquired of the girl if she slammed to the door. She said she did not and was not near it, but thought he had done it. Both looked around for a cause, but found all doors and windows closed, so it could not have been caused by wind, and it was regarded as mysterious.—Detroit Free Press.

Michigan Visited by an Earthquake.

Between 2:15 and 3 o'clock Friday afternoon several towns in Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana were shaken by an earthquake of a few seconds' duration, the oscillations being more perceptible in the upper stories of structures. Tableware was dashed to the floor, furniture disturbed, and windows wrecked, alarming the inmates, who, in many instances, fled panic-stricken to the streets. At Detroit the quake was severely felt and the river rose some inches. The Methodist Conference and Ladies' Missionary Society in session at Defiance, Ohio, hastily quitted the building which they occupied; and the disturbance almost caused a panic at a reunion in Ottawa, Ohio, Children in the schools at Indianapolis became alarmed, and occupants of railroad depots in the sections visited imagined that a locomotive had collided with the buildings. A rumbling sound was heard in some places, resembling a distant explosion. Tremors were also felt in portions of Canada, Kentucky, and West Virginia, and were so severe in the suburbs of Cincinnati as to terrify the children in the schools. A shock was felt by printers in a newspaper office at Dubuque at 2:05 o'clock in the morning.

"Every Man His Own Saloon Keeper."

Hon. Robert White of East Tawas, who was a delegate to the Democratic convention in this city, was interviewed by the Tribune reporter relative to the moral effect of prohibition at Tawas. The village authorities have made it a prohibition town. There is not a public saloon in the place although several attempts have been made to establish one. Said Mr. White: "You may not believe it, but that prohibition is one of the worst things that could have happened to our place. It has made every man his own saloon keeper. That is to say, those who are inclined to drink, carry the liquor in bottles in their pocket. But it's a regular bonanza for the shore boats. Their bars sell an immense amount of liquor between the two villages."—Bay City Tribune.
